UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, EUGENE, WEDNESDAY, MAY 14, 1941

NUMBER 126

FOUR SCORE VICTORY

Number I

Number II

Number III

Number IV

Quiet settled on the University political front late last night with the announcement of Oregon's 1941-42 student body officers. From left are Lou Torgeson, student body president; Bob Calkins, first vice-president; Jim Frost, second vice-president; and Bette Morfitt, secretary-treasurer.

Record Vote Sees End To Hot Battle

Calkins, Frost, Morfitt Also Gain Executive Posts

Lou Torgeson, president
Bob Calkins, first vice-president
Jim Frost, second vice-president
Bette Morfitt, secretary-treasurer

These persons will hold the reins of student government at Oregon next year, University students decided yesterday in one of the heaviest elections in recent years. They were elected to "big four" positions on the ASUO executive committee.

Class representatives to the committee are:
Senior: Becky Anderson, Bob Lovell
Junior: John Busterud, Steve Worth
Sophomore: Chuck Woodruff, Oglesby Young

Actual first place votes cast for winners were:
Torgeson, 759
Calkins, 577
Frost, 532

It was unnecessary to compute second and third place votes to count ballots for Miss Morfitt. A total of 1903 votes were cast in this election, which, election officials said, was "one of the heaviest" ASUO votes ever cast. They attributed some of the heavy vote to the fact that all students could vote in ASUO elections this year.

G. W. Drowzes in Comedy Hit

Show Is First Amateur Run

Kaufman-Hart Play Starts May 16; Also May 17, 20

By JOANNE NICHOLS
"George Washington Slept Here," newest Kaufman-Hart comedy hit, will open in the University theater Friday, May 16, in the play's first amateur presentation. It will also appear Saturday, May 17, and Tuesday, May 20.

The gay comedy, which just finished a long Broadway run, is not a costume play but the up-to-date story of a modern family and its friends, its cares, and its joys.

Newton Fuller, the "head of the house," has "back-to-the-farm" yearnings for a "little place in the country to call his own." The play is concerned with the amazing and amusing incidents which arise when he buys a house in which George Washington is supposed to have slept. "George Washington Slept Here" ignores current world problems and laughs at the trials of all of us. Its characters are young moderns; its situations are gay and youthful.

George Kaufman and Moss Hart, collaborators on such plays as "The Man Who Came to Dinner," still running on Broadway, shine again in "George Washington Slept Here." Hart's recent play, "Lady in the Dark," in which Gertrude Lawrence starred, was recently sold to a Hollywood studio for a quarter of a million dollars.

There'll Be Change As Gals Take Over

By SALLY MITCHELL

It's papa who pays 364 days out of the year, but there'll be some changes made this Saturday night when girls play escort for the Mortar Board ball. Campus men are for it 100 per cent, and oddly enough, the girls are, too.

"I like Mortar Board," one lad volunteered, "because I get so much personal attention. After the dance last year my girl took me down town and had my shoes shined. But," he added, "it was all her fault they got stepped on."

Does 'Em Good

"I think once a year it does a girl a lot of good to dig down in her purse," another boy said. "I have to do it every weekend."

"What I like about Mortar Board," was a third comment, "is the wonderful effect it has on my budget. It helps tide me over."

"Last year my girl bought me a dollar dinner before the dance, and she even left a tip for the waitress," another remarked. "And that's more than I can ever afford to do."

The Expose

"What amazes me," one fellow exclaimed, "is how a girl can be so independent the night of Mortar Board and so darned helpless the rest of the year. It's amazin'!"

"I remember last year we ate before and after the dance," one boy recalled, "and my girl had a sandwich and shake sent to my house. That's what I call due consideration."

"I didn't get to go to the dance last year," another replied, "but

Farewell to the election. This is all I have to say. They should have known that July 4th Was Independents' day.

Local Poll Proves 2000 Hear Forum

Results of the campus forum of the air radio poll showed that an estimated 2000 people listen to the University-sponsored program, Lillian Davis and Les Endicott, poll directors, revealed recently.

The telephone poll, carried on by members of Marvin Krenk's argumentation and persuasion classes, showed that 40 per cent of the radio listeners know the program by name.

During this week's program, over radio station KORE this evening at 9:15 o'clock, a similar telephone poll will be carried on by Mary Beltz and Bob Broderick.

Thesis Deadline

Deadline for handing in graduate theses has been extended to Monday, May 19. The former deadline was today. This extension has been made because of the scarcity of thesis typists.

Theses should be turned in at the graduate office in Johnson hall.

Glee to Crown 'King of Dogs'

Dancers to Select Most Popular Mut On UO Campus

An addition to the already impressive list of campus nobility will come Saturday, May 24 when the "King of Dogs" is crowned at the annual Frosh Glee with Johnny Lee.

Details of the "Dog Days" theme of the frosh dance were revealed last night by Oge Young, general chairman.

The laziness of summer inspired the theme, Young revealed, and the dance will try to bring this "languorousness" out.

Hilyard, Sigma Hall Get Barker Cups

Hilyard house and Sigma hall were awarded the Vice-Presidential cups at the Junior Prom Friday, May 9. The cups are given by the University vice-president, Dr. Burt Brown Barker. Dr. Barker awarded the cups personally.

Feel the Lighter Vein By Eugene Gleemen

Presenting songs in various moods and from many lands, the Eugene Gleemen will present their annual spring concert tonight at 8 o'clock in McArthur court. All University students will be admitted free of charge to the concert on presentation of their educational activities card.

The Gleemen are turning over all the net proceeds from tonight's program to the local YMCA for the community house building fund.

Three University students will sing solo parts this evening. Bob Carmichael, Laurence Celsi, and Lester Ready are featured in individual roles and C. L. Constance, assistant registrar, is a member of the quartet which will sing "O Filii et Filiae."

Opening with the traditional "Prayer of Thanksgiving" the first section of the program also includes "Ah, Fill the Cup," "Creation Hymn" by Rachmaninoff, and "Hallelujah," from the "Mount of Olives."

In a lighter vein will be the old-fashioned "Turkey in the Straw" and "Ol' Man River." "Flow Gently Sweet Afton" and "Last Night the Nightingale Woke Me" are also old favorites.

Concluding in a patriotic mood the entire chorus will offer "There'll Always Be an England" and "America."
