

'ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT'

UNION NOW!

By Ann Reynolds

It'll be in other hands soon. The student-faculty committee by the end of this week will have finished their job and will have submitted their report to Dr. Erb. The report, representing weeks of hard work, suggested sites chosen not by the committee but by the students who were interested enough to state their preferences. Not everybody could be pleased but the majority is represented in choosing the location west of Deady as the most plausible and convenient place.

The committee has worked without the slightest suggestion of pressure from outside groups since they judged with the interest of students at large in one hand and a budget in the other.

Now that the job is finished it is equally important that students increase their interest in the student union building. This is the stage in which many fine projects die and without the need for the building shown, the long hours spent on the plans will again be of no avail.

Future Cloudy

The years ahead look slightly dusky for the possibility of building but if we continue the enthusiasm and demand sensible action, we will get action. It is slightly ironic that affairs on the other side of the world could affect the speed with which we will have our building.

Here's a fact that few University people know concerning the organization that promotes and unites the student unions on other campuses in America. The University of Oregon is a member of the National Association of Student Unions even though we do not as yet have a building.

Photos to Come

The association announced yesterday that they are sending the University a group of photographs showing the plans and building of other campus projects. This exhibit will reach the campus about the middle of May and will be on display a few weeks for the students. This means of promotion is valuable since they will be able to see how successful other student unions have been.

Hanna's Articles Find Publishers

Articles written by Mark Hanna, instructor of speech, appeared in the current issues of the popular journals, "American Forests," and "The Quarterly Journal of Speech."

"The Dog With the Cold Nose," a speech article directed toward the conservation and forest fire control of the timber resources of the nation, appeared in the magazine, "American Forests." Hanna's article emphasized the need for a new type of fire prevention campaign. The article pointed out the need for attention-getting human interest material, in lieu of the present statistical type of advertising used.

Mr. Hanna's article, "College Speech and 'The Grapes of Wrath,'" which appeared in Quarterly Journal of Speech, dealt with the lower division speech section, held each Thursday evening in the library browsing room.

This experimental section in speech, instructed by Mr. Hanna, reads a number of novels each term, and discussion of the books is presented by members of the class, the article pointed out.

Thierolf Wins Jumping Event

Evelyn Lemasters Gets 'Special' First In Riding Show

Five trophies were given to outstanding horsemen at the student horse show held at the fair grounds Saturday afternoon. Taking the trophy in the jumping event was Richard Thierolf who, according to Mrs. Milton Rhoem, wife of the academy owner and an accomplished horsewoman, "rode his horse like a professional rider."

Other trophies went to Evelyn LeMasters, special horsemanship; E. Shafer, hands and seat class, basic students; M. Lawson, hands and seat class, advanced students; and Fred Waller, ROTC drill team and horsemanship class.

More

Taking places in the other events were jumpers: Joseph Rieg, second; A. Sheppard, third; and Fred Waller, fourth.

Pairs class, basic students: B. Johnson and J. Glasby, first; Dorothy Havens and Nancy Dutton, second; J. Withers and C. Renn, third; Charlotte Knox and Norma Poland, fourth.

Special horsemanship class: J. Huff, second; P. Magill, third; Artabelle Grover, fourth.

Hands and seat class, basic students: Roberta Buckingham, second; Ena Livingston, third, and Eleanor Engdahl, fourth.

Advanced

Hands and seat class, advanced students: Margaret Zimmerman, second; Lorabell Wraith, third; and M. Miller, fourth.

ROTC drill team and horsemanship class: R. Rogers, second; R. Johnson, third; and J. Skibinski, fourth.

'Y' Sing Postponed

The "Y" sing, originally scheduled for 6:30 last night on the bungalow lawn, has been indefinitely postponed, due to bad weather.

Stovall Asks CPTs To Register Now

Students who intend to take the summer civil pilot training course or the course which will begin fall term are requested by J. C. Stovall, assistant CPT director, to make application in the Fenton hall office (314) as soon as possible.

Mr. Stovall emphasized that advance application was necessary because they wanted to make at least a temporary list of the students who will make up the next "flying fifty."

Reminding girls who may be "air-minded," Mr. Stovall said that 5 out of the quota of 50 students could be girls and that they should also apply immediately.

YWCA Frosh Have Ice Cream Sellout

A complete sellout was the record for the YWCA freshman ice cream sale yesterday.

Today the "Y" girls will again sell drumsticks in booths situated at the "Side," library, Co-op, Friendly hall, between Oregon and commerce, and at the "Y" bungalow.

The money which the girls derive from the sale will go towards sending more Oregon delegates to Seabeck, the summer conference camp.

Oregon Acquires F. S. Dunn Library

More than 1,500 books from the private library of the late Professor Frederic S. Dunn, of the University of Oregon, have been acquired by the University library. Barrian Dunn and Mrs. Nathan Barrett, son and daughter of Professor Dunn, gave most of the volumes but they were secured partly by purchase.

A graduate of both the University of Oregon and Harvard University, Professor Dunn was the head of the department of Latin here at the time of his death.

More than 300 volumes which are principally in the field of Roman literature and history have been found that do not duplicate materials already in the University library. Several of the volumes were printed more than 300 years ago.
