PROOF THAT FRATERNITY GROWTH IS SLOWING DOWN IS SEEN FROM THE FACT THAT MORE THAN $20,000,000 IS BEING SPENT ANNUALLY ON NEW FRATERNITY HOUSES!

International Side Show

By RIDGELY CUMMINGS

A prominent local business man (name withheld by request) was taking me to task the other night for these columns.

"We are in the last long twilight of private enterprise," he said in a tone of accusation, implying that it was my fault and the fault of people like me who believe that the national labor relations board, the wages and hours administration, the works progress administration, and other government bureaus set up to protect the "haves" against the "haves" are needed in the present phase of capitalism which this nation has reached.

"It is the 'liberal attitude,'" I replied in defense.

The interlocutor mildly blew his top. "Liberal attitude! A liberal is usually the man who doesn't own the business! What's going to happen to the men who own property with all these heavy taxes clamped on them, and snoopers coming around from Washington telling them how to run their business?, etc., etc."

He Who Cries Loudest

As often happens in an argument, the person who brings to bear the greatest amount of emotional violence stands a good chance of coming off the victor. He piles up point after point in sweeping succession, each contention so close on the heels of the other that the opponent doesn't get a chance to answer them one by one and at the end he is like someone who has just been hit by a tidal wave and knocked off his feet. He doesn't remember what each drop of water looked like; all he knows is that an awful lot of water has poured over him and he comes up sputtering.

That's what happened to me. I came up sputtering, muttering, grasping at straws, trying to confine the discussion to some one of his debatable points instead of dealing with the conclusion as a whole.

Perhaps He Was Right

Afterwards, however, to myself, I had to admit that my business friend may be correct in his first assertion. It does look like private enterprise is sliding into its last long twilight. Certainly there have been numerous restrictions clamped on the entrepreneurs in the nine years of Roosevelt's administration, and certainly the activities of the bureaucrats are becoming more and more far-flung, stretching more and more tentacles into the private lives of citizens.

The objective, concern with bettering the lot of the "one-third of the nation" that is ill-fed, ill-clothed, ill-housed, is admirable, but the end result may see us with a Roosevelt bureaucracy as strongly entrenched and as merciless to its opponents as is the Stalin bureaucracy in Russia.

Senator Gerald P. Nye made a startling statement in his Denver speech the other night. Nye claimed he had received confidential information that the Roosevelt administration is planning to declare a "complete emergency" under which "the president will have power to censor every public word—including every word spoken over the radio."

He Is a Fighter

The senator from North Dakota is an honest and worthy man and he is fighting a brave fight to preserve peace in America; but like any fighter his words must be examined carefully, for in the heat of debate a man often says more than he means. Nye may be correctly informed, and then again he may not be, but such a step as he forecasts is in line with the administration's steady drive toward war.

Now here's the odd thing about my business friend's point of view. He thinks I am wrong in calling for non-involvement in Europe's war because, he says, American commercial enterprise is dependent for its life upon preserving U.S. foreign trade and the only way we are going to keep it is to go out and fight for it.

But fighting in a modern war means the ham-stringing of private enterprise. It means the mobilization of the nation's resources toward destroying the enemy—it means more taxes, more bureaucrats, more rigid control, more regimentation.

In the final analysis, wars today are fought by fascist states. If the United States goes in it is probable that we will progress closer and closer to fascism. It will be only for the "duration," say the hopefuls, but who can tell? Five years of war, five years of privation, sorrow and suffering may well end the twilight of private enterprise and ring down the curtain of night.

Emerald Staff Plans Banquet

Annual Gathering Slated Wednesday In Eugene Hotel

The Oregon Daily Emerald will hold its annual banquet Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock at the Eugene hotel and honor awards for the year will be presented.

The Turnbull-Hall trophy will be awarded to the outstanding Emerald senior, and the Emerald "O" certificates also are to be given out at that time.

Lyle Nelson, editor, will give his farewell "three words"; and the new Emerald editor and business manager, Helen Angell and Fred May, will announce next year's staff. Dean Eric W. Allen will act as toastmaster.

The banquet is held for the combined staffs: the news, the editorial, sports, and business staffs. Those who plan to attend must sign both name and initials on bulletin board before next Tuesday night.

Theses Due

Deadline for turning in graduate theses has been set ahead to Monday, May 19.

Shopping the Town

By MARY KAY RIORDAN

Shoppin' Around

At Ruth Wheeler's gift shop there is an unusual display of unique stationery for the important graduation gift. There are attractive green, blue and beige sheets and envelopes trimmed with white. There are all sizes including the little thank-you notes. The prices are 50c to $1.25.

Summer Time

All the coeds are raving about three piece dresses. Russell's the new Tom Boy playsuits and is now showing these playsuits in red and with a fine white Belford Cord stripe. A saddle leather belt lends a tailored touch. The three piece dress sets are in the smart "sailing blue" with a powder blue stripe. They could be worn down town on summer days or without the skirts on a picnic.

Spring Time

The new shipment of slack suits have just arrived at Montgomery Wards. They are stylish and can be purchased in Koolana cloth, Poplin and Shark-skin. The colors rose, blue, white, green are gay and colorful. These suits also come in stripes and summery prints. There is a wide variety of sizes and the prices are $1.98 to $7.98.

They're Nifty

The bathing-suit bags are just the thing for you to take your bathing suits and accessories in. These new bags which may be had at the Broadway are large and colorful. They are rubber lined and have two strong cord handles which work in with the patriotic red, white and blue colors. Why don't you come in now and get one of these bags for 98c. You will use it all summer long.

Bags of All Kinds

They just came over from the old country, beautifully beaded evening purses. And they are the last of the hand made merchandise from Belgium we are likely to see for awhile. They have delicate, pastel beading on a background of crystal white, for only 2.95 at Beard's. Also white, silver, and gold mesh bags by Whiting and Davis; and for smaller budgets, smaller bags, elaborately beaded, zippered top, leather lined, complete with maribou powder puff for only 1.00.

Catalina Bound

For the remainder of spring term the Catalina Crepe washable dresses are just the thing. They come in pastel colors, floral prints, polka-dots and tailored stripes. These dresses have big, roomy pockets. The Catalinas are not only attractive to look at but also have the attractive price of $3.98 at J. C. Penney's.

For the Graduate

Here is something beautiful for the college graduate. It is a stunning, new compact which would fulfill the desire of any girl. These compacts have beautiful jeweled floral patterns and come in gold, white, blue, and red. One of these lovely compacts can be had at Tiffany and Davis for only $2.50 and $3.00.

Yellow . . . !

This year you'll want to brighten things up a bit by wearing yellow on the beach, and at Hadley's you'll find something new and different in yellow. It's a two-piece bathing suit of the new Matletex weave and a short yellow hula skirt snaps around the waist. The hula skirt is water proof and can be worn in the water or taken off . . . 7.95.

Let's Peek at Pique

The talk at Kaufman Bros. is all about the new pique formal for some lucky girl to wear to Mortar Board. It is really lovely, for pique is so pretty and stiff. The dress is white with a floral print three-fourths down. The bodice is of the print and very brief; over this is a tight fitting little jacket of the print with a pique yoke and lapels . . . 10.95.
