Seniors Slate Dance at Park

Informal Function To Finish Class' College Functions

In form of a graduate celebration and to enable the whole of the class of '41 to gather for a final social function, members of the senior class and their dates are invited to a free dance at Willamette Park Friday, June 6.

The dance will be informal, according to Bill Ehrman, dance chairman. Those planning to attend are asked to get their tickets at the Educational Activities offices any time after June 2.

Art Holman's orchestra will play for the dance, which is scheduled from 9 to 12 p.m. Seniors who have no transportation will meet at the College Side at 8:45 o'clock. Busses will leave for the park from there.

The fact that only graduating members of the class of '41 and their dates may attend was stressed by Ehrman.

Assisting Ehrman with arrangements for the dance, which will be the last social function of this school year, are Virginia James, Bette Norwood, and Lloyd Sullivan.

Spring Term at the U

The staid old Oregonians Have gone into retreat And resorted to munching ice and stuff To ward away the heat.

But the kids from California Run and scamper far and near, And jumping high up in the air Call blithely "Spring is here."

Hess Shocks Nazis, Says French Editor

By JOANNE NICHOLS

Smoking innumerable cigarettes in a long black holder, M. Leon Cotnareaunu, former editor of Le Figaro, replied to questions from faculty members and students of the University at a tea yesterday afternoon in Gerlinger.

"The French press is doomed," M. Cotnareaunu predicted. "No French newspaper may contain more than two pages. It can have no advertising matter. The press is completely dominated and dictated to by the Nazi government."

M. Cotnareaunu does not believe the German government knew before hand of the flight from Germany to Scotland of Rudolph Hess, third in the Nazi hierarchy and just below Herman Goering in the order of succession to chancellorship.

Hess Shocks

"There would be no reasonable object in such a flight," he asserted. "Hess is the incarnation of the Nazi type, and his influence is great. His flight to England has profoundly affected the German people," has amazed and shocked them."

The convoy system should be inaugurated, in the opinion of the French editor. He declared that it is of no use to produce materials if you don't deliver them. American convoys, he said, would not necessarily mean American participation in the war.

England Strong

"Great Britain today is much stronger than it was a year ago," M. Cotnareaunu stated. "Yes, Germany is stronger, too, but Great Britain's strength has grown proportionately. However, I am afraid we are in for an extended war."

America's entrance into the war is not desired by the Allies, he announced. This, he said, is a war of materials and not a war of men.

Our Choices

"I am afraid the democracies must pay for their privileges," the distinguished-looking, grey-haired Frenchman sighed. "They have enjoyed those privileges a good many years, and now it is time to pay."

The United States, in his belief, faces the alternatives of aid to Britain or, in the event of a British defeat, the loss of all her foreign trade and the inevitable lowering of the American standard of living.

Judges Pick Glee Quintet Amid Barks

King of Canines Will Be Selected At Frosh Dance

By HERB PENNY

Picked as the fine finalists to compete in the "Dog Daze" competition to be held at the Frosh Glee are "Duke," "Smoky," "Red Dog," "Sparky," and "Mazie." Judges for the preliminary elimination were Dean Karl W. Onthank and Mary Graham, secretary in the educational activities office.

Judging took place at 4 p.m. Thursday at the Phi Delta Theta house amid barking and canine scrapping. There were 10 houses represented at the judging and one dog was entered by the journalism school. They ranged from a little puppy small enough to fit into one's hand to huge Great Danes.

The "King of Canines" will be elected during intermission at the Glee Saturday night. Ballots will be handed out to the dancers to make the selection, according to Len Barde and Jim Thayer, co-chairmen of the publicity committee for the Glee.

Duke

"Duke" is a sophomore collie affiliated with the Beta house. He is the only entry to boast of papers, not necessarily a pedigree.

Smoky

"King of the Canines" two years ago, "Smoky" is again throwing his collar in the ring for the title. Phi Deltis claim that the police dog has acquired an education because he spends so much time in classes.

Red Dog

A college degree of "Master of Arts and Letters" is claimed by the ATOs for their contestant, "Red Dog." He is an Irish setter, five years old.

Sparky

A king-contender of uncertain antecedents is "Sparky," who is called a "What-is-it" by the Kappa Sigs. His tail has been removed by a truck but this, the

Life Series Show Duck Track Star

Action and stunt photographs of Les Steers, University of Oregon's sensational high jumper, appeared this week in Life magazine as the sports feature of the publication.

Three pictures, which show Steers jumping over the heads of three coeds, practicing warming-up exercises, and dancing at his fraternity, Sigma Chi, were selected from several hundred made here by Hansel Mieth, editorial associate of Life. A series of "magic" eye photos, depicting Steers' jump, were made by J. W. Teter, university photographer.

The story includes a brief sketch of Steer's career as an athlete, and like other publications, hopes that the Oregon jumper, who now holds the world record at 6 feet 10 and 25-32 inches, will hit seven feet this spring.
