

3500 Expected at Registration

Draft Takes 10 Percent Webfoot Toll

Expansion of the United States defense program during the coming year will cause less than a 10 percent decrease in fall term registration at the University of Oregon, Registrar E. M. Pallett forecast this week.

Coed enrollment is expected to remain approximately the same as that of last year's September count. Because of army service for many young men of college age, a slight drop is expected in male enrollment.

The largest decrease suggested by Dr. Pallett is that of advanced undergraduates transferring from other schools.

Echoing Dr. Pallett's optimism was Assistant Registrar C. L. Constance. Basing his estimates on day to day letters from prospective enrollees, Constance is confident that at least 3500 will register for fall term classes.

Harry Prongas Sets Registration Opener For Athletic Drive

The Webfoot campus will divide itself into five sales districts for the annual athletic ticket drive at school's beginning, Card Drive Chairman Harry Prongas announced this week.

Building his sales campaign on complete coverage of all campus groups backed by personal contact with off-campus students, Prongas has appointed a special manager to head each of the five districts.

Offerings on the athletic slate for the coming year, all included in the $9.00 full-year card, include five regular conference football games, one frosh tilt, and discount on the Washington game in Seattle, at least 12 basketball games, swimming meets, baseball games, tennis matches, and track meets. Actual gate prices for these events, Prongas says, will

DON SWINK and CULLEN MURPHY arise with the bugle at 5:45. Of course, CARL LITTLE, PAUL BOCCI, ED WHEELER, DAN MERCER, JIM CURRY, BILL MacGIBBON, KEN BOWES, BILL REGNER, BILL FUGIT, GENE DIDAK, JIMMIE DURKHEIMER and Emerald sports editor KEN CHRISTIANSON hear the same bugle, too.

WE-CAN'T-BE-QUOTED DEPARTMENT: That along with the increased size of next year's Pigger's Guide, Oregon editor WILLIE BISHOP is planning a still larger Oregon, which brings it into the class of the "world's largest yearbook." Nearest competitor in size is that of Annapolis. The College Side will reopen per schedule, not damaged to speak of by the recent fire. Painters are hard at work retouching the walls and booths. There'll be new cards, too!

See you at the Jantzen picnic. . . .

Portland Ducks On Their Own

City Federation Propagandizes On Campus Life

Headed by Co-chairmen Nancy Riesch and Don Walker, the newly-organized Portland branch of the U. of O. Federation this summer canvassed the city for prospective students. Dividing Portland into 9 high school districts with Oregon student representatives to each school the group contacted graduates who are interested in attending the University in the fall.

Individual visits to homes of the students have been made and mailing lists compiled so that information concerning phases of University life can be sent to the future Oregon underclassmen. Working with John Cavanaugh, state federation director, the Portland branch scheduled a series of motion pictures of the campus.

Central meeting point for the 21 Oregon students and hundreds of high school graduates is the Portland Federation office in the Oregon building, Fifth and Oak streets, Portland. The office issues information regarding any student activity at the University and calls are usually followed by individual contacts with parents and students.
