

Grace Moore to Open Greater Artists Series

By JEAN SPEAROW

Grace Moore, brilliant and colorful soprano, will open the 1941-42 season of the greater artist series at McArthur court Friday night, October 10. Students are asked to get their exchange tickets for the concert from Ed Walker at the ticket office in the Igloo any time after October 2.

For the convenience of those who are seated upstairs, coke dispensers will be placed on the second floor, eliminating the necessity of running downstairs, waiting in line behind the one or two coke machines, and finally tearing back up to the balcony, only to find that intermission is over and your gurgling coke bottle is frowned upon with disgust by your neighbors.

The educational activities office requests that University women refrain from wearing wooden shoes to the concerts. The noise caused by these clogs is so annoying that frequent complaints from townspeople have reached the office.

Dick Williams, educational activities manager, issues the dire threat of requiring all coeds who show up in these wooden concert-busters to check them at the door. There is no guarantee that they will still be there on the coed's way out, he said.

the classics. The practice was carried to the extreme this summer. The result wasn't bad, though, in many cases.

Jazzy Classics

If you remember the show "The Great Lie," starring Bette Davis, you very likely will also remember the music, which played a prominent part in the plot.

This music was the "Theme" from Tschaikovsky's piano concerto in B-flat minor. Being adaptable, this theme was seized upon by orchestra leaders all over the country, and you will dance to it numerous times this fall. It will probably make the top of the hit parade, which is an honor of

Flatberg, Kahananui Receive Appointments

Lee Flatberg and Johnnie Kahananui, juniors in journalism, have been appointed co-editors of the Oregon Daily Emerald sports pages, Helen Angell, editor, announced Monday. They will perform the duties assigned to Ken Christianson and Tom Wright spring term. Wright is not in school this year, and Christianson is unable to work on the Emerald because of outside employment.

Both Flatberg and Kahananui have had two years experience on the sports staff of the Emerald, and each has assisted the editors in "putting out the page." Both are members of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalistic fraternity, and Kahananui is a member of Ye Tabard Inn of Sigma Upsilon, creative writing honorary.

which Tschaikovsky never dreamed.

The original rhythm of the selection has been quite ruined in its new status; jazz piano players can never do justice to music that was written for master performers, and the hard brasses of dance bands spoil the beauty of the orchestration. Otherwise, it's a good adaptation.

Enrollment Drop Fails to Decrease Sales of Oregana

In spite of a 7 per cent decrease in enrollment, Oregana sales rocketed to a new high with salesmen reporting a 14 per cent increase over last year's sales, or approximately 2,100 copies sold this year against last year's 1850.

Emerson Page, business manager of the Oregana, attributes the tremendous sale to the quality of last year's fine Oregana, which was on display at all registration tables.

Sale of the annual will continue this week at Johnson hall, where late registrants may reserve their copy of the '42 yearbook.

Persons desiring positions on the Oregana staff are invited to attend the staff meeting in the Oregana office this afternoon from 3 to 5.

Barker Honored By Chicago Alums

University Vice-President Burt Brown Barker, A.B., LL.D., was cited by the University of Chicago alumni association for "unselfish and effective services to the alumni, the nation, and humanity" at the university's 50th anniversary celebration Saturday. Dr. Barker was one of 50 Chicago alumni to receive the honor.

Dr. Barker telegraphed the University that he received the citation instead of the "padding" he had expected when called to Chicago. He was one of the founders of Chicago's alumni association and the originator of the constitution and by-laws still governing the group.

The University vice-president will return to Portland sometime this week.

SHORT STORIETTE:

Sammy Sparrow made a date with Susy Sparrow for that night. Highly elated, Sammy arrived at the certain twig to find that Susy wasn't anywhere to be seen. He waited until dark when he saw Susie limping towards him with only two feathers left on each wing. "Where have you been?" Sammy demanded. Susy sighed, "Oh, I thought that I'd go down and see how the mortals were and I got mixed up in the darndest badminton game . . . Or whether Cecil Snyder, UO newshead, asked the girl at the information booth in Johnson whether or not she was Miss Information, "Yes, of course!" was the answer. Snyder snapped back, "Well, don't give out any."

Symposium Tryouts Set for Men October 7

The first tryout for the men's debate symposium will be held Tuesday evening, October 7. All men students including freshmen may try out. The meeting will be held in 107 Friendly at 7:30. Each participant will be asked to give a three-minute speech on any topic of his choice. Topics for the speeches should be current, vital ones.

The symposium of last year debated over the whole state before 108 audiences. Their complete traveling expenses were paid by the educational activities department.
