

First Co-ed of the Week Is Bothered by Blushing

By MARJORIE MAJOR

First coed of the week this year is blond, blue-eyed and petite Billy Christensen, president of Mortar Board. She possesses the indisputable advantages of a pretty terrific GPA plus a charming smile and a glint of red in her hair.

She confesses that she has a penchant for blushing, and loves to collect books. "I can't seem to stop blushing," she remarks mournfully, "and am incurable where beautifully printed books are concerned." Her collection so far totals nearly thirty volumes.

Proving herself in reality the typical coed, she loves new clothes, sports clothes in particular—and would rather dance to sweet swing than do almost anything else.

World Series Worries

Right now Billy is worried about the outcome of the world series, but doesn't like to make any predictions. Her favorite sport is golf with "a little bit of everything else, too."

During her past years here at Oregon she has been a member of Kwama, Phi Theta, Mortar Board and secretary-treasurer of Pi Delta Phi, French honorary. She plans to graduate from the school of education this spring.

Blushes Again

Rumor indicates interest in the pre-med department of Notre-Dame. When questioned she wrinkles up a nose lightly brushed with freckles and blushes.

But Billy is very forthright in her liking for Oregon. "I'm crazy about the people here and their friendly attitude," she smiles.

FIRST LADY

Miss Billy Christensen, this year's Mortar Board president, has been selected as the first coed of the week.

clothes, occasionally including a bright felt hat for a dash of color—but leaving fur coats and heels for the Portland games.

According to official word the Bunion Derby will be strictly sport with skirts and sweaters, saddles or moccasins, and corresponding ankle socks appearing as correct dancing garb.

Sweaters Invade Campus in Bright Colors; New Styles

V-necked sweaters, V-necked sweaters and more of same have invaded the Oregon campus like the proverbial "Men from Mars."

Winifred Wallace, Tri Delt pledge, wears her brown one with a smooth henna rust skirt . . . Norma Trevarro, Alpha Chi pledge, makes Oregon history when she wears multi-strand shell-pearl leis . . . Betty Stockwell, Theta, seen in survey class wearing a white sweater with a blue outlined V-neck—smooth, too. . . . Julia Glasby, Pi Phi, has a red sweater that looks mannish enough to be seen in any ROTC rifle class . . . Camel hair coats seem to be in the lightest natural shade this season . . . Meri Huber, Tri Delt, is one bright pledge in her pastel blue raincoat . . . Nancy Riesch's plaid suit is plenty OK . . . Night shirts are news to college-wise girls at Oregon . . . Peggy Kemp, DG, is wearing a smooth hair style . . . Vivacious Ginny Vassar, Gamma Phi, says plaid jackets are for her . . . Dottie Havens, Kappa, registered in a salmon-colored sweater and skirt . . . Long strand pearls still hold the spotlight for date clothes . . . Eleanor Ingdahl, Gamma Phi, sports a deep moss green herringbone topcoat . . . Phil Collier, Kappa pledge, goes military in her soldier blue longer jacket . . . Rubber boots are headed for the campus hit parade. Swell for those occasional Oregon rains. Pick yours in some bright shade . . . Lora Case, Pi Phi, goes to marketing class in a plaid topcoat of blue, rust, white . . . Chi Omega pledge, Carolyn Martin, studies in a wintergreen wool dress with fireman red peasant trim . . . Peggy Wright, Pi Phi, is seen in a longer sweater of brown, blue, and beige plaid.

Sports Clothes Set Pace in Weekend Problems of Dress

A full social calendar, such as faces the Oregon coed this weekend, immediately gives rise to the question, "What in the world should I wear?"

Firm believers in comfort, campus lassies turn out for the home football games in sports

Jersey Casual
by MULLEN

Tailored the trim cleancut way of men's fine shirts, but with that comfortable becoming softness that makes for easy wearing—this pastel all worsted jersey frock is already a campus favorite. Semi-dirndl lines, wonderful shirt sleeves—typical Fall look.
