'Bums' Bump Yanks, 3 to 2; Series Evened

Brooklyn's beloved Dodgers, behind the clutch pitching of Whit Wyatt, roared back into contention yesterday with a 3 to 2 win over the supposedly invincible New York Yankees. It was the first defeat for the Yanks in their last ten world series games.

Yesterday:

* Home run in the first game.
** Four doubles plays.

Wyatt, after being in trouble constantly for the first four innings, settled down to pitch airtight ball in the late innings. The Yanks pounded his offerings for two runs and seven hits in the first four innings but the Dodger defense cut down several promising Yankee rallies.

After Rolfe had singled infield and Henrich had walked, the mighty Joe DiMaggio grounded sharply into a double play, Reese to Herman to Camilli, to end the inning. Again in the second the Yanks were on the way when Gordon was cut down at the plate trying to score on an infield hit by Chandler, cutting the rally short with only one run.

The Yanks tallied their last run in the third on Henrich's double and DiMaggio's walk followed by a sharp single by Keller. Two more Yank hits in the fourth wasted when Chandler was thrown out by Reiser at third.

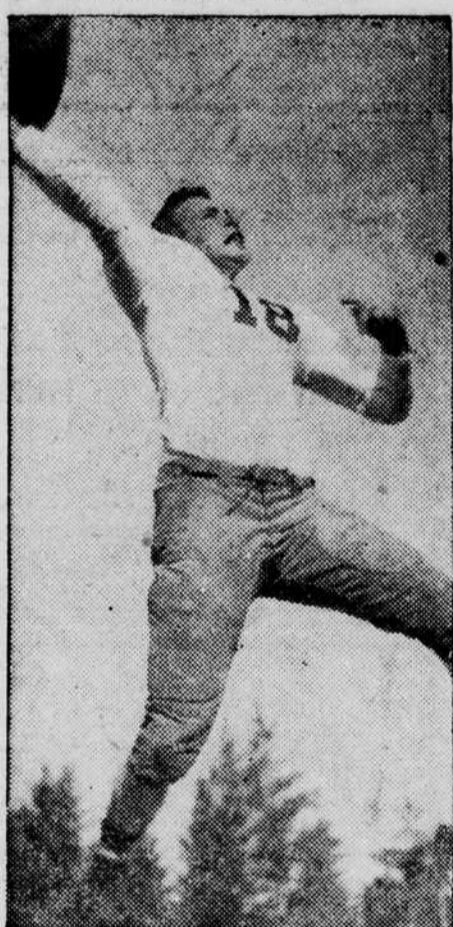

Trailing by two runs going into the fifth, the Dodgers combined two hits and a pair of walks to tie the score. Camilli walked and went to third on Medwick's double to left. Lavagetto drew a walk to fill the

'Oliver Twist' vs. 'Razz' ma' Dazz' In Season's First Scrap at Home; Webfoots Hold Dress Rehearsal

By WALLY HUNTER

Football at its glittering best makes its debut tonight on Hayward field, as Francis Schmidt brings his Idaho razz' ma' dazz boys to grips with a once plucked Oregon Duck, at 8 o'clock.

Clear snappy weather has left Hayward field in perfect condition for the type of ball that both teams play. Both Oliver and Schmidt field teams that play ball the boogie-woogie way, and nothing short of a miracle can slow down the hipper-dipper Vandals or put a crimp in Oregon's hocus-pocus plans.

Vandal Attack Varies
Idaho casts off from three basic formations — single wingback, double wingback, and short punt formation. From these three an amazing amount of spinners, reverses, and criss crosses develop. In the one game that the Idaho lads have played the real potency of their attack wasn't shown. They were so busy trying to fathom the intricacies of Utah's T formation that they forgot the important part of the game—the offense.

A PAIR OF RAMS
Left: Bill Micklich, 194 pounds of brawn from Moscow, who'll open at fullback for Idaho. Bottom: Jimm Newquist, Duck fullback, whom Oliver may inject as a "clutch" runner.

While Schmidt has a rattling good offense, Tex Oliver hasn't been asleep at the switch. A bucketful of Duck drill time has been spent with the line. The guards, Ray Segale and Floyd Rhea, have received special attention and seemed to learn quickly. Tackles, Dick Ashcom and Chuck Elliot (Eugene's own) have also been receiving the full attention of the head man.

Flabby Physiques Remodeled For Credit..6 Painful Lessons

By DUNCAN WIMPRESS

"Hey, Joe! Come on, hurry up! We're goin' to be late to class! What are ya' limpin' for?" A familiar cry, this, around the University of Oregon campus since the extensive Webfoot physical education program got under way this week. Many a muscle has been forced into unaccustomed action and many a bruise has been acquired from the conditioning exercises with which most of the physical education profs are torturing their classes three times a week.

Basketball players are barely able to raise their tired arms to take those important notes in the class following their P.E. period. Boxers check in, their Grecian features battered into what sometimes amounts to the well-known pulp. Fencers stagger to and fro, wondering what ever possessed them to sign up for a sport that does such things to their legs.

Only adding insult to injury are the instructors' kindly words about how "it will only last for a little while; you'll feel swell after you just get limbered up a bit." But in the meantime, take it from any boy in a physical education class, it's no bed of roses. So next time you start to holler for Joe to hurry up, just stop and think a minute. Brother, he's really suffering!

Alumni Mag Due To Come Out Soon

Old Oregon, University alumni magazine, went to press Wednesday and will be ready for distribution presently. Keynote of this year's edition is football. Ray Schrick has written an article on Oregon's 1916 "Wonder Team" and what has happened to it. Included is a commentary on the future of Webfoot football by Bruce Hamby and Football Historian C. E. Wagner tells of football teams of the past.

Bob Frazier contributed a sketch biography of the life of Dean Orin F. Stafford, late humanitarian and teacher. Ted Harmon has drawn the cover design and the publication is chock full of information about Oregon's alums, according to Lyle Nelson, editor.

UO Law Students Shine in Bar Exam

For the second consecutive year the law school has had a 100 per cent rating in the number of seniors passing the bar exam. This year out of the 100 in the state of Oregon that took the exam 61 per cent passed, 15 of which were UO law students. The fifteen who took the exam are: Jack H. Dunn, F. Brock Miller, Robert L. Recken, Donald S. Richardson, William J. Robert, Elmo Vickers, Wendall Wyatt, Robert Havens, all of Portland.

Richard Bryson, Morris Carter, Floyd Hamilton, Eugene; Clyde Angerman, Freewater; John R. Hay, Lakeview; Hugh B. Collins, Medford; David Rementeria, Ontario.

The average of students taking and passing the bar exam in the last ten years is 92 per cent.

Class Charged

Problems of War and Peace, listed in the University "White Book" as meeting at 4 p.m. Thursday, will meet at 11 a.m. Tuesday. Dean Victor P. Morris is the instructor.
