

Lasses May Enter Test For "The Perfect Type"

Do you know a gal who has been queen of anything from the Rose Festival to the Smith street school? If so, she's eligible, pal. Don't hesitate; we need her.

With a cup for her permanent possession and a chance to rate as a national figure as inducements, any lass who has reigned over a bona fide fete, show, festival, or parade is asked—nay, urged—to enter Sigma Delta Chi's contest for "The Perfect Type."

Oregon's chapter of SDX, national professional journalistic fraternity, has surveyed the campus and found it not wanting in beautiful peaches. For example: Betty Jean Harding, queen of the Portland Rose festival; Mary Mercier, queen of the Sun Valley rodeo; Annabelle Dow, Junior Weekend queen; Betty Jane Biggs, "Ideal Sophomore Girl."

Automatically entered are all those listed above and any others now at large on the campus. SDX plans to select a "Perfect Type" and submit her name and photographs to the fraternity's national convention in New Orleans this winter, to start the ball rolling on a similar contest in all colleges now containing chapters of the society.

The contest is underway as of right now. Deadline is midnight, October 9, one day after National Newspaper week closes. Submit your nomination to Ray Schrick, Emerald managing editor, or Buck Buchwach, SDX president.

Members of the fraternity will act as judges, with the winner to be announced at the SDX-sponsored banquet for European correspondent Jay Allen and professional pledges October 10.

Bureau Open Tuesday For Picture Makeups

The University photographic bureau, room 2, Johnson hall, will be open for the convenience of entering students who have not yet had their pictures taken, from 1 to 5 p.m., Tuesday, October 7.

According to Dean Karl Onthank's office, the student's picture is a very essential part of his registration material and many new enrollees have not been photographed. For any further information about this service—students may call Dean Onthank's office.

Oregana sales representatives in living organizations will meet at 4 p.m. today in the College Side for an important business meeting. Attendance is required of all representatives.

Eugene to See Volunteers Act In Maneuvers

Yesterday the advanced military classes heard Second Lieutenant Ray F. Siegenthaler of the second interceptor command describe plans for an extensive four-day maneuver centering about the Eugene armory during the last week of October. The plans for the maneuvers call for the training of civilian volunteers for work in detecting and reporting the presence of enemy aircraft in the event of a raid. This type of work has been tried with great success in Britain and the U. S. army claims it increases the effectiveness of fighter planes by 20 times, Lieutenant Siegenthaler said.

Filter Posts

Officers will be stationed in Eugene, Roseburg, and Portland to filter the information sent in from detection centers and transmit it to the operations headquarters in Portland. From Portland orders will be phoned to airdromes and combat planes will take off to engage hostile aircraft.

Lieutenant Siegenthaler asked for 30 advanced ROTC students to take the nine-hour training course and help during the all night sessions of the maneuvers.

According to present plans there will be 75 observation posts in Lane county and about 200 in the Eugene filter area. Each post will be located within 15 seconds of a telephone, Lieutenant Siegenthaler stated.

During the demonstrations planes will fly over this area and the observers will phone information to Eugene where it will be sorted out and forwarded to Portland.

The actual maneuvers will take place October 28, 29, 30, and 31. A staff of six enlisted men will help Lieutenant Siegenthaler.

Spanish Classes Show Increase

Increased interest in Pan-American relations was indicated at the University last week when a large number of students enrolled in Spanish courses. Ten students have registered in a Portuguese class initiated this year. The original six sections of Spanish scheduled for this fall have been increased to eight. Each section averages a membership of 35.
