

Smiling Phi Theta Prexy Active in Campus Affairs

By PEGGY WRIGHT

Seen dashing about the campus, with a smile for everyone, is blond, vivacious Nancy Riesch, president of Phi Theta Upsilon, junior women's service honorary.

Outstanding in activities, Nancy was a member of Kwama, sophomore women's service honorary, last year, and now is treasurer of AWS, besides being active in her sorority, Pi Beta Phi.

A junior in business administration Nancy's home town is Portland, and a job in merchandising or personnel is her ambition after she graduates in '43.

Footprints in Concrete

The movie stars who have their hand prints in the concrete at Grauman's Chinese theater have nothing on this caper-cutting coed, as she recalls having accidentally stepped in the fresh cement near Chapman hall. While cameras and newsmen were lacking, the helpless contractor viewed the incident with dismay.

Characteristic of Nancy is her ability to do a lot of things at the same time and do her jobs well. Her time last summer was divided between working for an insurance agency where she wrote policies and working on the Oregon Federation program and Jantzen beach picnic.

Likes to Dance

Nancy flashed her charming smile when asked about her favorite hobby. "I like all sports and of course I like to play bridge," she replied, "but playing pranks on freshman pledges is a lot of fun, too."

far as the Phi Theta prexy is concerned, and according to her, attending a school with a small enrollment gives the students a chance to become better acquainted and thus creates a more friendly atmosphere.

It would be a lot easier to start something like this if we could remember a funny joke—then lead into the sermon part quick like a rabbit—so no one would know they were being preached at until it was too late. But since we just can't think of anything humorous it's going to have to be unadulterated.

We're going to talk about manners—more specifically, courtesy in the classroom. For instance—do you come clomping into class approximately 10 minutes late every day? Are you one of those who insist on zipping open a bulging notebook or purse and letting the contents crash out onto the floor—just when the class is getting to sleep? And how about catching up on the latest gossip over a coke instead of during your 8 o'clock?

For further sour grapes we might mention the cuties with nervous fidgets who insist on tapping out V's for victory with their pencil—or practicing a tap routine on the back of the chair in front of them. As far as that goes no one especially appreciates a song recital in monotone hummed in their ear.

Now the kind of girl we like goes to class every single day, keeps copious notes, copies down all the assignments, wears a luscious perfume for us to smell, and keeps her elbows in the general radius of her own chair.

The note part is especially important. We have to borrow them.

Shopping the Town

By LEITH BROWN

You'll Be Out of This World ...

In the white-wool jersey date dress in Russell's window. Amazingly plain in design, it has that "above the crowd" look. A small round neck is highlighted by a gold chain necklace and the three-quarter length sleeves have plain gold buttons on the cuffs. A full skirt gathers on to the hip length waist. You'll be both pleased and surprised to find pockets along the side seams of the skirt. Another touch of gold on the belt buckle and tiny round buttons part way down the back. It will be value received at $19.95.

Red Revolution ...

You have nothing like this red crepe date dress in your wardrobe. Black braid is used for trim around the neck and cuffs, of the bracelet length sleeves. A large flounce around the hips gives a tunic effect to the skirt. Six bands of the braid are featured on the flounce—the red showing between the black bands. See it at Kaufmans.

Golf Get-Up Going to Class ...

The familiar plaid of father's golf Sox has been adopted for daughter's sweaters. Miller's are showing a long, v-neck style at $3.50. The large plaid stands out on a background of brown or beige. They are made by Tish-U-Knit and featured in Vogue and Harper's Bazaar.

Royal and Regal ...

A blue velveteen dinner dress that is really swank and swish. The blouse is made outstanding by the use of tiny gold, coral, and blue nailheads. It has a sweetheart neckline and the short puff sleeves have scalloped edges. A short peplum adds grace to the full skirt. A narrow belt and flat buckle give the finishing touches. Ask to see it at Beard's.

Quick Change ...

Lucien Le Long's new gadget for face fixing can also be used to brighten up your suit lapel or belt. It's a steal from the bus man's change maker and holds three tubes of lipstick, each a new attention-getting shade. "Nicole Pink," for formal flings, "Robinhood Red" for that eight o'clock class, and "Indiscrete" for date duds (clothes, we mean). It's at Tiffany-Davis for $1.00 and $1.25 with the attachment clip.

Slips Do Count ...

And all for the good if they are Mary Baron slips. These slips maintain their proper position regardless of your posture. They won't pull, won't twist, and won't ride up... they are planned for action. Look on the first floor at Penney's... They sell for $1.98.

Double Talk

Twin sweater sets, made from Shetland yarns, come all wrapped up in cellophane bags at the Broadway. The bag is to help you keep your sweaters neatly tucked away and fits in your drawer. The shoulders on both sweaters are made in a pearl stitch which gives a distinctive design. Two for the price of $5.95.

Mary Muffet's

Brings you these super crepe "date" dresses, just as you've seen them in Mademoiselle.

"FIESTA" (above)
Adorable dirndl-type in black or brown with angelic pale blue accents.
