

Streit Discusses World Union Need

Speaking for the second time at Oregon, with an interval of 26 years between, Clarence Streit, author of the "Union Now" movement, spoke to the assembled student body on Monday, October 13, in Gerlinger.

"If we come out of this war with no better government than when it began," claimed the author, "we will have a depression that will make 1932 look like a Sunday-school picnic."

The ex-correspondent's organization, Federal Union, Inc., has several million members in the United States alone and issues charters to new chapters all over the world each month. This group maintains headquarters in Washington, D.C., from which it distributes literature and a monthly bulletin on union principles.

Mr. Streit's first visit to the University occurred in 1915, when he appeared with his college debate team.

Speaking on the subject, "The Democracies' Answer to Hitler," Mr. Streit recalled that upon publication of his first book, "Union Now," people looked on the idea as a dream, "as if a dream were more impractical than a nightmare," referring to the current world situation.

President Donald M. Erb introduced the speaker after a flute solo written by Frank Keller and played by Charlotte Allen. Accompanist was Marjolaine Le Beck.

Propeller Club Plots Year's Course

The student "port" of the Propeller club met Monday to organize plans for the current year. The club, composed of shipping men in the various shipping ports of the country and interested students of all universities, has as its aim promotion of interest in the American merchant marine.

Each university group is known as a "student port," and is sponsored by the business men of some nearby shipping point. The University of Oregon port is sponsored by the Portland group which invites the student port to banquets and informative discussions at the Portland meetings.

LOST: Twenty-one Theta Chi nuggets; last seen heading in the direction of the western front. Forty-five members have ants in their panzers, anxiously awaiting further developments. Look for general wetness behind ears, shabby appearance, and one picture of Nelda Rohrback, inscribed "To my blond Hercules."

To whom it may concern, these refugees are promised to see plenty of action along the ox front and maybe a little behind. Please phone 1920 if found.

P.S. Heaven can wait, fellows!

C. Streit Grad Of Montana U

Clarence K. Streit, who spoke at an assembly Monday, is a graduate of the University of Montana, a Rhodes scholar, and an ex-intelligence officer of the A.E.F. He was editor of his college paper. While at Oxford and later, he worked as a foreign correspondent for several large American newspapers and evolved his idea of Democratic Union while engaged in this work.

His plan includes the political, military, commercial, financial, and cultural unity of free nations. These "free" countries originally meant: the Pan-American Union, the British Commonwealth of Nations, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Switzerland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, and Finland.

In his latest book, however, "Union Now With Britain," he mentions only England and America, although any other nation could join the Union upon accepting the Bill of Rights into their form of government. All of these countries would then be bound together by common citizenship, defense, economy, finance, and communication.

Receptionists Hear Woes at Infirmary

"What can I do for you?" quoth she.

"Well, it's like this. Last night I got a pain in my neck. It started working both ways, up and down, you know; wow, it was terrific! My temperature ran over 105 degrees, too. Yeh, and by this morning I had a pain over both eyes and one for each vertebrae, too." The aching individual breathed deep preparing for further discourse, but the patient receptionist hastened to tell him that he'd better wait and tell it to the doctor.

And that sort of thing goes on every day at the health service. Skeezeix' girl, Nina Clock, has never heard any more detailed descriptions since she became a steno than the receptionists at the pill palace hear in one lone day.

The "tell-it-to-the-doctor" group listed in the wards today includes: Grace Henry, Bette Reames, Arliss Boone, Virginia Tyrell, Jean Dutton, Bill Maltman, and Ray L. Smith.

More than 3,500 intercollegiate football games are played at colleges and universities in the United States each year.

Military Lists New Extension Course

A special short course in military organization and national defense is being offered by the state system of higher education extension division in room 101 physical education building.

The first meeting will be Thursday night, October 16, from 7:15 to 9:15. Colonel R. M. Lyon, head of the University military department will lecture on "military education," discussing education at West Point and in universities.

Anyone may enroll in the course of eight lectures at the general extension division on University street north of Thirteenth or at the first meeting in 101 PE. There will be a fee of $3 to cover the series. Single admission will be 75 cents.

Lectures will include talks by Colonel Lyon and Captain B. F. Davis and Captain Harvey Blythe of the University military department. In addition, Major H. J. Hoefler, engineer corps, Colonel J. L. Stromme, air corps, Lieutenant Ray F. Siegenthaler, air corps, Major Merle Hotchkiss, cavalry, and Lt. Col. A. M. Sheets, field artillery, will speak on their branches of the service.

There will be an optional lab in rifle marksmanship and firing practice under the direction of Captains Blythe and Davis.

Second in Film Series Shown

The second of the "Memorable American Films" series, "The Film and Contemporary Life," will be shown Wednesday afternoon in Chapman hall starting at 2:10 and running through four consecutive showings.

"March of Time No. 2" and Frank Lloyd's great picture "Cavalcade," filmed in 1933, will compose the program. Students will be admitted upon presentation of their educational activities cards. Faculty members may purchase "memberships" into the University Film society for $1.65, including tax.

Methodist Students Meet at Wesley House

The northwest regional conference of Methodist students will be held Friday, Saturday, and Sunday in Salem, the Rev. Charles Funk of Wesley house announced Monday.

All University and Eugene students may attend the conference and can obtain further particulars by calling Wesley house, 3887.

Genevieve Working is in charge of the banquet Saturday evening and Adrian Flurry and Fred Erickson are also helping.
