

Science Club Will Show Film

The behavior and intelligence of the golden-mantled ground squirrel will be the topic of a lecture and motion pictures to be presented by Dr. Lester F. Beck, associate professor of psychology. He will give his lecture at an open meeting of Sigma Xi, science honorary, at 8 p.m. Tuesday evening in 207 Chapman hall.

Dr. Beck will discuss adaptations which the squirrels have made to their natural environment, attributes of behavior which make them desirable animals for experimental purposes, and will tell of experiments which have been made with the squirrels.

Two reels of colored motion pictures will be shown illustrating the behavior of the animals, and experiments made with them. Squirrels used in the pictures were trained by Monroe Shelley, graduate assistant in psychology. The squirrels were captured at Crater lake, where they are prevalent.

The general public is invited to attend. A business meeting of Sigma Xi will be held at 7:30, preceding the lecture. Dr. Kenneth S. Ghent, assistant professor of mathematics, is president of the organization.

were Hilaires and the Chicken Coop.

But the game! There were the usual "glammer goil" Californians being radical with dark glasses in spite of the downpour of rain, like Alphapi Norma Thervarrow and Gerry Stowell... the suntan complexions of other Californians began to wash away, leaving white skin... Figuratively, Hitler was being sat on by Oregon coeds as they sought protection from the damp seats with newspapers... The man selling chrysanthemums outside the stadium. Seeing a group of already mumbedecked coeds coming towards him, called out, "Here you are, chrysanthemums; one for each shoulder"... The freckled and very wet newsboy selling damp newspapers to keep yourself dry... the fading of several of the oil-skin head scarfs... Bunny Potts and Bud Putnam keep dry with Fred Meyer's 98-cent special umbrella while another soul struggled to keep a placard above him, which read: "Montgomery Ward is unfair to CIO"... Delt pledge Lyle Nelson tried to buy cigarettes at a popular restaurant when a stranger stopped him. "Who do you think you are?" Lyle asked. "The law!" was the answer as the policeman pulled out his badge, saying, "wait until you're twenty-one."

Mutterings at Midnight: Like Marilyn Marshall who stayed at a sister ADPI's house... while waiting for her date to show up, she sat on the davenport and watched a flame burst into a small fire and consume the window awnings. Suddenly it dawned on her that the house she was in was on fire; but not for long, for her date arrived on the scene and squelched the blaze... Bob Bryant didn't go to the game, but in the opposite direction; Medford, his home. Anyway, on his return to the campus, he brought back his 1916 Ford, resplendent with a brass radiator. The entire trip, from Medford to Eugene, took exactly 12 hours... and, finally, Leone LaDuke proving herself an adequate hostess by giving thirty-five girl friends a party.

Which all proves that it takes all kinds to keep up the spirits of Oregon.

Dads' Day February 14

Roses are red, violets are blue—and Dads' day comes on Valentine's, too.

It looks as though the Oregon Dads are just sentimentalists after all. At a meeting held Friday, October 17, they set February 14 as the date for Dads' day.

Actually the reason advanced for selecting this date was the basketball game between Oregon and Oregon State scheduled for that evening. To make it possible for Dads to see the game the annual dinner is changed to a luncheon. This should also enable them to meet more faculty members at a special banquet later, later.

A gain in statewide enrollment was announced by State President Joseph F. Riesch, who presided at the meeting.

College Adventurers

Getting lost in a subway is nothing out of the ordinary, but to find 7,000,000 people speaking a strange language seemed out of the ordinary to us and as a result we spent three hours getting out. We met, at the American embassy, a former University of Washington girl and a former University of Texas boy who delighted in showing us the town. They fed us Manchurian food, got us dates with two Japanese girls and arranged for our meeting Joseph Grew, U.S. ambassador to Japan.

On the fifth day we returned south to Kobe only to discover our ship, instead of going to South America, was called into government service. To save face at the American consulate we left on the last ship to leave Japan for a foreign port and ten days later arrived in Hong Kong on our way to Singapore.

Seeing South America was out of the question, we decided to try and obtain work on the Burma road; however, as it proved later, one day and one night in Hong Kong was hardly time enough to make the proper connections. We did though, meet Colonel William Mayer, U.S. military attaché to Chungking and to our surprise he was not concerned the least over the fact we were not registered in the draft. In fact he all but gave one of us a job as his personal secretary. That night we dined with Royal Leonard in his modern apartment in Kowloon just across the bay from Hong Kong. He is chief pilot for C.N.A.C. and as John Gunther states in Inside Asia, "He is the young man responsible for Chiang Kai-shek's departure from Sian after the kidnapping."

Favorite Orks?

Since this column's beginning there haven't been thousands of letters pouring in every day asking for me to pick my favorite bands, therefore, in response to this complete lack of reader reaction, I shall now do my damndest to list my five fav groups. I just remembered though, I haven't got room. Maybe next time shall we say. Read Thursday and find out if Sandy found Annie; if Squire Slagg is really the old—that Proctor & Gamble would have him be; if Glenn Miller is really the band that Chesterfield would have him be. I'm bored.

UO Class Card Poll Conducted

Just exactly how do University students stand on the subject of class cards?

With the freshman class vitally interested, and with the rest of the school watching to see what this year's class will do with the recurring issue, the senior editing class in journalism conducted an opinion poll which covered 300 students. The poll was designed, scientifically, to reach independents and Greeks, co-ops and dorms, in the proper percentage according to the number from each organization enrolled in school.

The findings have been divided and tabulated according to classes in school and living organizations.

One of the most interesting results of the poll is the fact that Greek freshmen show a heavier majority in favor of the paid class card than any other class in the Greek category. In fact, the Greek freshmen are the only classification which indicated favor of the paid class card.

Independents favor the free class card, 115 to 13. Six per cent more than half of the Greek freshmen went on record as favoring the paid class card and the sophomore and junior classes favored a free class card by a 61 per cent majority. Senior Greek men and women eked out a margin of one in favor of the free class card.

Local Drama Honorary Elects Jerry Lakefish

"Mask and Buskin," local chapter of the National Collegiate Players, elected Jerry Lakefish as its president at a recent meeting.

Jeanette Harbert and Jerry Lakefish were admitted to membership and plans were begun for the year.

Any student interested in admission to the honorary is invited to contact the drama department.

Andrews, Hunt UO Delegates

George "Porky" Andrews, president of the Interfraternity council, and Al Hunt, secretary, will be official delegates from Oregon to the Western Divisional interfraternity conference October 30 to November 2 at Stanford university.

The conference takes on new significance this year because of the new fraternity problems created by the national emergency. Most high in fraternity circles will introduce six critical topics after which discussions led by undergraduate leaders will be held.
