UCLA NEXT!

Donut Football Roaring Home

Seven teams lead the pack as the six intramural football leagues roar down the stretch for the 1941 playoffs.

Kappa Sigma cinched the crown in League V last night when they dumped the Sherry Ross hall team, 12 to 7.

Phi Delta Theta leads in League I with a clean slate and three victories. A win over the Sigma Chi Friday afternoon will put the title on ice.

Powerful Sigma Nu has run up over 90 points in three games to lead League II. Victory in the game against the Phi Psi next Monday will cinch a spot in the playoffs for the high scoring juggernaut.

A two-way dog-fight for the title is going on in League III between the Theta Chi and the ATOs. Tomorrow's game will decide the title holder in this division.

Betas Win

The Betas are the second team to win their spot in the quarter finals by a victory yesterday. A 21-to-7 win over Sigma hall ended their schedule for the regular season without a setback. They will represent League IV in the playoffs.

A win today by the SAEs over Gamma hall will decide the race in League VI. This is the only hurdle that faces the SAE pennant hopes.

The six winners will play three quarter-final games and the three survivors will play in the semi-finals. One team will have a bye in the semi-finals.

Ducks Get Glance at QT; Sophs Shine In Workout

By WALLY HUNTER
The intricacies of Babe Horrell's QT formation got an airing on Hayward field last night and Oregon's Webfoots found the UCLA offense confusing no end. The words of head man Tex Oliver at the end of the practice best summed up the Duck situation: "We need a lot of work on it."

The QT formation—which at the outset of the season was considered a first line opposition befuddler—works somewhat on the order of the T formation. The quarterback handles the ball on nearly every play, and the right half is in motion to the right or left. The left half and full form the cross bar of the T. The QT is different in that it operates from a single wing back.

John Warren's Goslings were the test squad for the varsity and according to Oliver did right well with the Bruin offense. The freshmen were recruited for the scrimmage because the small Duck squad hasn't enough men for an all-around workout without the help of the first year men.

Vernier Shines

Sophomore sub right end, Don Vernier, was the outstanding Duck in yesterday's practice. Vernier was recently shifted to end and showed plenty on both offense and defense. Halfback Jim Newquist also received the plaudits of Oliver for his sparkling defensive and offensive work. "Another boy who showed lots of promise was Bob Simpson," said Oliver. Simpson has made the switch from end to halfback to make up for Oregon's lack of available backs.

One major switch in Oregon's offensive plans has breakaway specialist Tommy Roblin filling in at the fullback post. On regular plays from scrimmage Roblin is scheduled to operate from the tailback position but will resume his duties at safety on defense.

Although sitting on the top rung of the coast conference win ladder Coaches Oliver, Vezie, and Corley aren't wasting their time on daydreams. They are plentifully supplied with worry over this game. This game is a key tilt because one more conference loss would send the Webfoots into the league gutter—probably for the remainder of the season.

Mermen Face Grueling Trial

"Keep 'em swimming" is Mike Hoyman's watchword when he sets out to train a winning swimming aggregation. In fact, he has kept his swimmers so busy that he figures by next week they will be over the hump—that is, they will be in such good shape that swimming will cease to be a drudgery and will become constantly easier. Not that the boys don't like swimming, but it's just that those first few weeks of training are pretty painful until the muscles get used to the long workouts.

This week Hoyman is going to give his supermen a double dose of time trials. On Thursday he plans to hold, for the first time, speed trials of 200 yards in the freestyle and 150 yards in the backstroke. This will be an opportunity for the sprint men to turn the heat on the distance aces.

Saturday brings the big test.

Duckling Gridders Prime For Husky Babe Invasion

Victorious in their opening game with the Oregon State Rooks, Oregon's Duckling football squad is preparing this week for the invasion of the Babes from University of Washington Friday, October 24.

The squad was split up Monday with part of the Frosh using UCLA plays in drilling the varsity, as they will continue to do for the rest of the week.

Dummy Scrimmage Held

The remainder engaged in a light dummy scrimmage, in an effort to work out the kinks of Friday night's game.

The freshmen came out of the Rook game practically unscathed, although a few minor injuries were sustained.

Bob Reynolds, the dusky speedster from Portland, who set up the lone score with his 45-yard gallop, received a bruised leg and was taking it easy Monday. LeRoy Erikson, the boy who sparked the Duckling attack and tossed the touch down pass, was also on the sick list with a badly bruised thigh.

The big forward wall, that looked so good in their initial encounter, survived the clash with but the usual minor bruises and aches.

Each man will paddle 1320 yards in the most gruelling trial yet run. If they get by this one, and Hoyman knows they will, then the ceiling will be the limit.

Latest University of Iowa student to enter movies is 23-year-old Jean Fitzgerald, who passed her screen test while recovering from a broken back suffered in a fall off a cliff.
