

Not All Broken Bones Occur on Playing Field

Furniture smashing is fun! The Health Service reports that it has received more serious injuries resulting from "horseplay" than from intramural, varsity, and physical education activities altogether.

For gory detail, there were: a jaw, broken in two places, a compound fracture of the nose, two fractured ankles, one coupled with a dislocation, and a serious concussion.

Dr. F. N. Miller, head of the health service, while acknowledging that a certain amount of "rough-housing" seemed to go with college life, said, "In industrial plants, army camps, and places where a large group of men and lovnig and working together and where accidents cost a great deal in lost time, precautions are taken to prevent injuries from impromptu rough-and-tumbling."

Not a Gym

He explained that athletic activities are organized and held in proper settings. "In a gymnasium there aren't pieces of furniture to fall on.

"Some of the cases we have had this year have caused a great loss of time from school, and also added expense."

Foot baths, throat swabbings, ear blowings, dinner trays, and all the customary activities continue at the Panacea Place. Benches in the downstairs dispensary hold full waiting lines, and wards in the upstairs infirmary are busy.

Holding down the fort in hospital wards Monday were: Mary Robertson, Bernice Granquist, Marian Lockman, Robert Moore, Peggy Doxsee, Helen Crites, Eleanor B. Siewert, Shirley Burberick, Jim Ricksecker, Allen Foster, Stanley Hager, Richard Rule, William Wilson, John Williams, Le Roy Weinstein, and David Cosey.

Axis Morale

(Continued from page two) ed, humiliated, in terrible economic straits, yet her morale presumably has not cracked—whatever that phrase means anyway.

Cry of "Wolf"

It gets to be a standing joke; every week or so some authority states gravely that Germany, or Italy, or Japan, can't possibly stand it much longer. The probability is that the Germans especially will continue to stand hardship and want of all kinds, barring mass starvation, just so long as her armies keep on winning. However, we heard a certain professor whose opinion we respect declare that if the pinch really did come, the German people would be among the first to go to pieces, just as they did in 1918. It seems certain, nevertheless, that the only dependable morale-cracker for the Axis is going to be victory by the democracies.

Cider, Doughnuts Form Lab Props

The unmistakable aroma of hot spiced cider drifted through the halls of the education building Monday afternoon. An open door disclosed a table piled high with big doughnuts and in the middle sat a steaming kettle filled with—yes, hot spiced cider! Sitting around the table, their eyes never wavering from that tempting array, were the principals and teachers of the Eugene schools.

But the occasion was not a party. It was the weekly meeting of the curriculum laboratory, conducted by Dr. Hugh B. Wood, professor of education.

Aviation Board Begins Exams

The northern traveling aviation cadet examining board began its three-day examination Monday of students wishing to qualify for training in the U.S. army air corps. The board will be in session today and Wednesday downstairs in McArthur court from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

List Coming

To date the results of the examination are not available but a complete list of qualified students will be released on completion of the examinations, Lieut. M. A. Bywater, public relations officer for the board, announced.

Principal requirements for acceptance as an aviation cadet are: applicants must be from 20 to 26 years of age, unmarried, with excellent health and character, and must have at least two years of college by January 1942, or pass a written examination covering academic subjects.

Navigation

In the field of aerial navigation the applicant can be accepted if his eyes test 20-40 and can be corrected to 20-20 by glasses. A minimum of college algebra and trigonometry are required as basic mathematics training.

Students wishing to take the examinations are requested to do so immediately so that required documents and credits may be met.

'Snap' Judgement

By DON DILL

With the introduction of the "Brownie" to the photographic world snapshotters have increased steadily so that today a camera of some sort is included in the student's list of "musts" for school along with dirty saddle shoes and tennis racquet.

Believing that this statement is more or less correct, this column will be devoted to shutterbugs, their antics-and-stuff. Beginning with the pictures so nicely enlarged and mounted over in the photo shop of the Co-op—betcha didn't know that they were taken by students—possibly the one next to you. Pictures are funny that way; give them an enlargement and a frame and they look professional.

Gordon Read did the football montage on a double exposure he didn't know about, but there was no accident in pix of the spaniel which is also exhibited. Just shows to go you what can happen when you click the shutter. Try it sometime, overexpose, the background scene then make another exposure on the same negative but this time slightly underexposed. The results will probably amaze you. Me too.

The other bit of photographic art was done by Noreen Wettstein and was taken from Susan Campbell hall which gives the Libe a new and interesting angle.

By the way, any shutter clickers who like to see their work "hung" will be happy to know that the Co-op is going to select a print from the pictures processed by them each week and will enlarge, mount, and display it at their photo section for a week. After that the enlarged print will be given the deserving photographer. The pix are to show some phase of campus life—you know, rallies, exchange deserts, and the like—or campus scenes, such as the old Pioneer, the buildings, or still life in the cemetery.
