

Soldier Boys Hold Ducklings To Scoreless Tie in Grid Fray

Slippery Turf Keeps Offensive Efforts Muzzled

By A. L. GOULD

The Frosh didn't win a game last Saturday night in Astoria, but they didn't have a loss tacked on their record sheet either, as their game with the soldiers from Fort Stevens ended in a scoreless tie.

Frosh victory number three was very nearly tied down by the Duckling gridders in the closing seconds, in fact on the last play of the game. The near-score came as a result of the Duckling's patented long passing combination, Glasgow to Lopaz.

For on the game's last play, Glasgow faded back to his 38 and tossed a pass to Lopaz who had slipped behind the soldiers' secondary on the five yard line. Lopaz took the ball and started for the end zone. He slipped to one knee on the two-yard line, and slid over the goal line. However, the official ruled that he had been down on the two, and as the timer's gun had sounded while the play was in motion, the ball game was over.

Frosh Threaten

Another serious scoring drive by the yearlings came in the first five minutes of the game, when they took the ball on the soldiers' 35, where a short punt had bounced out of bounds. A pass to Torchia, and run by Glasgow moved the ball to the 12, and another run by Glasgow advanced to the five. There the frosh attacked bogged down and the soldiers took over the ball.

Fort Stevens had its turn, when Newman, 215-pound tackle, picked up a Duckling fumble in mid-air on his 35, and raced 48 yards to the Oregon 17, where, with a clear field in front of him, he stumbled and fell. After the frosh line stiffened and held for no gain, Steve Fowler, a boy who performed with the frosh in 1938, attempted a field goal from the 22, but it was blocked by end Pattison.

All through the game, the Ducklings broke loose for long gains, but just couldn't keep clicking when they were in scoring territory. LeRoy Erikson returned a punt from his 12, back to the 35, but a fumble on the next play nullified his run, as was the case all night.

The frosh had it all to themselves on the statistical side, finishing the game 193 yards net from scrimmage, and a total of nine first downs, as compared to the soldiers' 51 yards from scrimmage plays and four first downs.

Steve Fowler played a great game for the soldiers, but the Duckling's Erickson was the outstanding back on the field.

The yearlings will end their regular schedule for 1941, when they meet the Rooks from OSC Friday night, November 7, in Corvallis.

One of the four desperate passes hurled by the Webfoots in Saturday's game as the last 27 seconds of the first half were ticking away. The Oregon team has the ball on the WSC 8-yard line but a series of four passes failed to push it across. ## Duck Hoopmen Add Two Tilts To Schedule

Two more warm-up games have been slated for McArthur court by the Oregon basketball quintet before their annual trans-continental tour gets under way December 6. These new additions now give the Ducks a total of 27 tilts for the season, sixteen northern division contests and eleven nonconference games.

Signal Oil's crack outfit opens the Webfoot season at home November 21. The Oiler team is composed entirely of former college aces and last year pulled down a close 45 to 41 victory over the Ducks, thanks to some "superman" tactics by Dusky Chuck Patterson, ex-Oregon star. Patterson tossed in some 21 points to single-handedly pull the "coup de'etat."

Rubenstein's Slated

The other encounter is for December 3 against Rubenstein's Oregonians. Last year the Webfoot varsity took the count from the Rubenstein's by a 47 to 40 score. A star-studded lineup is being rounded up for the current Oregonians. Among the luminaries are Urgel (Slim) Wintermute, Laddie Gale, Earl Sandness, Jack Butterworth, and Ted Sarpola, all of whom served under Hobby Hobson.

A third game is on the Oregon schedule before they turn eastward. That is against the Oregon State A.A.U. champions, the Bradford Clothiers, December 6 at Portland.

Ducks Fast Break

In workouts Monday night, the Ducks resorted to the traditional galloping tactics, working the fast break from backboard recoveries. The combinations of Don Kirsch and Bob Newland, and Porky Andrews and Paul Jackson showed up well in the race-horse down-floor rush.

Another informal intrasquad scrimmage was held last night with Warren Taylor, 6-foot 5-inch junior being the outstanding man on the floor. The big forward dropped in baskets from all over

Sigma Chis, SAEs Shine In IM Volleyball Openers

With touch football a thing of the past, intramural volleyball rolled into a conspicuous niche in the shelf of campus sports yesterday, and featured six well-groomed teams itching to show their stuff in intramural competition. Both of the large basketball courts were in use and judging by the enthusiasm shown by both spectators and the players the tourney will furnish some lively battles as it moves along. The tilts this year are being run so that each team is compelled to play three games with their opposition and judged on the basis of the best two out of three.

Sigma Chis Boom

A rugged Sigma Chi sextet trampled the none-too-lucky Gamma hall outfit, 17 to 3 in one tilt, 17 to 8 in the other to win the first two games, and consequently, the series. This victory can, at least in part, be attributed to the deceptive serves dished out by Sigma Chi's Evan Morin, and the sterling line backing of Don Morin and Dick Clark.

The SAEs, despite the sturdy resistance handed them by a persevering Pi Kap aggregation, swamped them 15 to 10 and 15 to 17, respectively, to take home the victory-bacon. The long, looping serves of Ozzie Redfield, which swooped into the back reaches of the the floor and looked very good in under-the-basket mixups.

Sphomere Bob Wren was another who showed up well on offense, as did Lloyd Jackson, towering center. Bob Newland was "leech" on Captain Porky Andrews, checking the fiery Duck captain with unerring canniness.

court were just too much for the Pi Kaps, who were unable to retrieve them.

Taking two out of three games to win the series, a victorious Phi Psi club defeated Kappa Sigma to the tune of 15 to 3 and 15 to 13.

The Yeomen lost by default to Alpha hall.

Eugene Gets Classics Meet

The Classical Association of Pacific States will hold its annual meeting at Eugene this year during the Christmas holidays, according to Dr. Edna Landros, acting head of classic department, and president of the association.

The association includes college and high school teachers of classics in California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, and British Columbia.

There will be one joint meeting with the American Historical society which will probably be a banquet with a speaker to represent both groups.
