

Bureau Head Voted Member

Dr. Leona Tyler, head of the bureau of personnel research and instructor in psychology, was elected a member of the board of director of the Northwest College Personnel association at Reed college in Portland Friday and Saturday.

The association includes people who deal with personnel problems in colleges and universities. About 10 delegates from various schools in the west attended the meeting.

One of the highlights of the meeting was an address by General Winsor, northwest representative of the office of production management. He stressed the coming importance of personnel work in industry, and problems in personnel work of the future.

Attending from the University were Dr. Tyler, Dr. Hazel P. Schwering, dean of women; Mrs. Alice Macduff, assistant dean of women; Karl Onthank, dean of personnel; Dr. Howard R. Taylor, head of the psychology department; and William West, graduate assistant in psychology.

US War Part

(Continued from page two) count—it was not considered by Petain—we can conclude with reasonable assurance that the French are with De Gaulle in their hearts and as far as possible in public.

Of course, even if Petain is the proverbial doddering old fool he seems to be, he is still the hero of Verdun. Perhaps at his death issues will be clearer.

At any rate, General De Gaulle and the Free French, not the jackals and guttersnipes of Vichy, embody our hope for France to come. These men are reviled as traitors in their homeland, and not even England, with whose soldiers they have fought in Africa and Syria, recognizes their government as the true one. The United States might well be the first nation to recognize officially France's expatriate patriots as the real France.

Jam for Breakfast

At Second Glance

(Continued from page two) It was apparent that something was wrong. Torgeson could sense that. Especially after Bob Whiteley and Sue Sawyer, while canoeing on the mill race, thought they saw a periscope rise out of the water. Quoth Whiteley: "I could sorta sense something, but I just laughed, dipped my hands into the water and scratched my head with the paddle. Der Fuehrer the better, you know!"

Immediately there was a general alarm and the campus was slow to recognize the ominous meaning of these events. Quite candidly, we don't recognize them, either. But that's another tale, until Thursday.

EDITOR'S NOTE. This startling expose of invasion on the University of Oregon campus will reach a blood-curdling, chilling climax Thursday. As secret operative told the editorial staff late last night, "You know, I ain't been asked to Mortar Board yet."

CAA student pilot registration at University of Minnesota this fall is 40, ten more than last year.

Anthropology Head

Dr. L. S. Cressman, head of the University anthropology department, is shown here in a photograph made several years ago in the entrance to a little-known cave of the Fort Rock country in Lake county that, he hopes, will throw new light on the geological and historical background of Oregon. Dr. Cressman will soon release a survey of his findings while on a leave of absence from the University last year working on a Guggenheim fellowship.

Moore Goes To Berkeley

Dr. A. R. Moore, research professor of general physiology, will leave for Berkeley, California, Wednesday to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the Pacific coast branch of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Dr. Moore was appointed to the executive committee of the Pacific branch last year.

The meeting in Berkeley is for the purpose of formulating a program for the convention of the group next June in Salt Lake City.

Personnel Bureau Will Conduct Tests

Freshman music students will be given three tests for musical talent Saturday morning by the personnel research bureau of psychology department, under the supervision of Dr. Leona Tyler, head of the bureau.

The psychology department, according to Dr. Tyler, is interested in getting information on the value of the three widely known tests for musical talent. Results will be available for use by the music department.

Testing will be done Saturday morning at 9 in 301 Condon.

Don't buy this It's NOT advertised

It's a doubtful product. It bears no trade name. It might be any one of the many things you buy or use every day. A refrigerator, perhaps . . . or a radio . . . nail polish . . . chewing gum . . . kitchen soap . . . a correspondence course.

But the promoter knows its claims couldn't stand the intense scrutiny of the American buying public. And so he prefers to dispose of it as an unbranded article. That's why you won't find his advertisement here.

How different from the other advertisers in this newspaper! Proudly they tell you of their latest product or service. Eagerly they announce special values, improvements, new features.

These manufacturers and merchants have confidence in what they offer. They realize that while advertising may make the first sale—it's the quality and value of the product that makes the second, third and fourth. And that's what they're after!

It's worth while, reading the advertisements! You can believe in them!
