

Defense Force Need Takes CAA Fliers

Mobilization of 20,000 private planes and pilots in a "second line" defense air force to be directed by America's flying aces of World War days was disclosed tonight in government aviation circles.

General membership of the squadrons will be recruited primarily from the files of the CAA.

Formal announcement of the plan is expected to be made soon by the office of civilian defense, headed by Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York who served with the army air corps during the last war.

Private Pilots

Composed of private pilots and utilizing small commercial, pleasure, and racing planes, the force will be associated with various military agencies in domestic defense operations. Its duties will include:

1. Coastal patrol for detection of enemy submarines and aircraft.
2. Anti-sabotage operations.
3. Liaison work for various civilian defense organizations.
4. General assistance to the army, navy, and coast guard.

Wing Commands

Regional wing commands are to be created in every state. The civil aeronautics authority has already asked that suggestions of names for potential commanders for the force be made by field inspectors. Test units have already been started in Pennsylvania according to the Aeronautic association.

Effects of Erosion Shown in Display

An interesting addition to the geology department this week was the erosion table set up by Warren Lomax, assistant in the department. The table demonstrates the work of erosion by running water, showing the disastrous effects of removing timber and vegetation from land.

The erosion table is for the observation of general geology students, in connection with lectures on the same topic. Pictures of the demonstration have been taken by students.

For the benefit of people interested in the display, it will be in operation every morning next week in the geography laboratory room in Condon hall.

Four Students Discuss National Defense Bonds

Four students from the speech division will speak tonight over KORE from 6:15 to 6:30, according to announcement made by Dr. C. V. Boyer, dean of the college of arts and letters and chairman of the education committee of the Lane county defense bond sales.

The speakers will assist in answering questions and explaining points concerning United States National Defense Bonds by presenting a series of three-minute talks on the savings plan.

Menuhin Plays On Series Soon

Yehudi Menuhin, violinist, will be the second artist to appear in the University Greater Artist series when he plays before University students in McArthur court December 1.

Because of his superb violin playing, Menuhin has been called, "The prodigy of yesterday, genius of today, immortal of tomorrow."

Menuhin will be followed January 7, 1942 by Josef Hofman, pianist, who will come to Oregon again because of popular demand.

The Seattle symphony, conducted by Sir Thomas Beecham, will appear here February 23 as part of Beecham's first professional tour of the United States.

Returning to Eugene after a successful program here a few years ago is Nino Martini, star of concert and opera, who will appear here April 8. The handsome tenor will be the last of the group to appear this year.

Grace Moore, golden-voiced, golden-haired soprano, appeared October 10 as the first of the artists. Students are admitted to the concerts upon presentation of their educational activities cards. The educational activities board brings the artists here.

Miss Alice Lenore Hinshaw, '33, was married to Theodore J. Raisi June 14.

Westminster Changes Plan

The technique of worship and the musical talent groups will not meet Tuesday afternoon as they regularly do because of the Armistice holiday. Mrs. J. D. Bryant, hostess director of Westminster house, announced.

The fireside sing will be held as usual Wednesday evening from 9:30 to 10:10. Everyone is welcome to take part in the group singing, Kay Daugherty, president, declared.

Potluck dinner will be held Thursday evening and is open to anyone bringing a food dish. The dramatic club will meet Thursday afternoon at 4 to practice parts and discuss possible programs.

Morris Talks Today

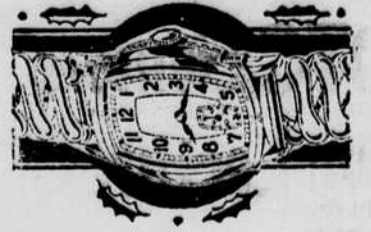

Dr. Victor P. Morris, dean of the school of business administration, will deliver two lectures to civic groups in Klamath Falls today. At 2 p.m. he will address the Klamath Falls Women's Library society on "America's Place in World Affairs." This evening he will give an address at the annual dinner of the credit bureau on "Economic Impacts of the War."

Announcement was made recently of the admission to partnership of Harry C. Visse, '33, in the firm of Whitfield and Stratford.

Art School Displays Robinson Collection

On display in the little art gallery of the art school for the next two weeks will be the Dorland Robinson art collection and several new prints from the Carnegie Corporation gift.

The Dorland Robinson collection was given to the University in 1922 by Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Robinson after their daughter's death as a permanent memorial collection of her work.

FOR THE GENTLEMAN WITH GOOD TASTE

THIS is the twenty-third Armistice Day to follow World War I. Hardly a time for rejoicing, because look what's happening in the greater part of the world! But it certainly is a time to renew hope, and faith in the peace that will follow the war engulfing so many countries now. We hate war. We do love peace. And we're all realists enough to know that a just peace never was easily won. America stands ready to defend that democracy without which no peace can be just!
