

Sophs Foiled In Paint Try

Charles Nelson, Bill Skibinski, and William Macey, sophomores, are free men again after a stay in the Corvallis jail, having been detained by a deputy sheriff patrol when caught remodeling the Oregon State campus with two gallons of yellow paint.

Before being apprehended, the boys had painted lemon "UO's" on the athletic field, the student union building, and other parts of the campus.

"The boys had no business there in the first place," said Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel administration, Friday. "This is just the sort of thing that starts trouble."

After a night in a cell the three boys received suspended 10-day jail sentences and $5 fines, with instructions to see Virgil D. Earl, dean of men, upon their return to Eugene.

"Disciplinary notice of the incident will be taken," said Dean Earl. "I hope that students will not participate in any further demonstrations of this sort of the campus."

According to Nelson, the OSC campus is "too well patrolled," and he wants to "beware!"—"and besides, they've got a stinky jail!"

Pot and Quill Entries Due by November 20

Contribution boxes for entries in the current membership contest sponsored by Pot and Quill, women's creative writing honorary, can be found at the library and in the news room of the Emerald. A $5 first prize is offered as well as additional prizes of membership in the writing organization. Contest deadline is November 20.

Poetry, plays or short stories may be entered. More than one poetry selection should be included in any poetry contributions, to enable the group to judge the quality more fairly.

All entries should be typewritten, if possible. Mrs. Eric W. Allen, Mrs. Alice Henson Ernst, or any member of Pot and Quill will also take contest entries.

Hellyer Visits UO

George Hellyer, area representative of the Union Now movement, will be a visitor on the campus Monday, November 24, according to Dr. Paul Means, member of the Eugene chapter of Union Now, and head of the department of religion.

He will meet with student groups and will discuss the Union Now movement with the Eugene chapter.

Orides Decide Page Increase

Orides, independent Oregon women, will use 45 cents of their $5 deposits to pay for two additional pages in the 1941-42 Oregonian, they decided at a special meeting in Gerlinger hall yesterday. Oregonian pictures of the group will be taken Wednesday and Friday, November 19 and 21, next week, Corrine Nelson, president, announced.

It was determined to abandon the "Coed Capers" costume theme chosen at last Monday's regular meeting and to return to the original theme selected the previous week. Tickets to the frolic will be on sale from 3 to 5 Monday in Gerlinger hall.

Members of Orides will meet at 7 p.m. Monday in Gerlinger to attend the "Coed Capers" celebration.

Eight to Attend Meet At Dayton Labor Camp

Eight representatives from the University of Oregon are leaving this morning to attend the Oregon area conference of the YMCA-YWCA which is being held at the Dayton migratory labor camp today and Sunday.

Dan Bacot, co-chairman of the group in charge of Seabeck plans, will lead a discussion on Seabeck plans during the regional program at 4 today. Elsie Brownell, local YW publicity chairman, will lead a group on publicity, and Dr. Paul B. Means, head of the religion department, will lead a discussion in the evening on Christian attitudes in a conflicting society.

Those who are attending the two-day conference are: Elsie Brownell, Gerd Hain, Sylvia McBride, Betsy Blair, Dan Bacot, Dr. Means, Beauford Clemens, and Newel Comish.

Morse to Hear

While in Washington he saw Miss Perkins, and at her request the University has released him to hear the longshore case. Dean Morse spent this week teaching double classes and will return here for a week after spending a week in San Francisco. He estimates that the case will probably last a month, however, and he will keep up with his law classes by teaching double periods while on the campus.

Dean Morse presented the following letter from Miss Perkins early this week: "I do hope it will be possible for you to proceed with the longshore arbitration immediately since it appears that the situation on the coast requires prompt attention. Thank you so much for your helpfulness and valuable assistance to the government. (Signed) Frances Perkins."

Fire Inspection Delayed Week

Inspection of all campus buildings, living organizations, and private homes housing University students, previously scheduled to begin Monday, has been postponed until the following week, William E. Nusbaum, Eugene fire chief, revealed last night.

The investigation was put off because Jack A. Hayes, deputy state fire marshal, who will conduct the inspection with the assistance of the Eugene fire department, has not yet completed a similar check-up at Oregon State college, Chief Nusbaum said.

The inspection, which will continue for about two weeks, will check fire escapes, exit markings, door widths, wiring overloads, furnace insulation, trash piles, fuel storage, and other possible fire hazards. Recommendations

Shakeup Blasts Pill Emporium

Communique from the infirmary front report a big shakeup. Nurse Florence Schwitzer goes off duty for the last time this noon. Mrs. June McCarthy will take her place. Miss Schwitzer is leaving for California where she will be married November 19.

Stetson Attends Utah Education Conference

F. L. Stetson, professor of education, will participate in the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the northwest association of secondary and higher schools at the University of Utah, Salt Lake City, November 26 to 29.

As a member of the commission of higher institutions, Mr. Stetson will take part in the panel discussions which will have as the theme "American Education Faces a War Emergency." The educators will attempt to analyze the problems of students and the schools in the hope of expanding educational opportunities rather than lessening them in the present national emergency.

Representatives from two territories, Alaska and Hawaii, and seven northwest states are expected to be present at the conference.
