

Child Prodigy to Genius Is Menuhin's Career

By JEAN SPEAROW

Yehudi Menuhin, who appeared as soloist with the San Francisco symphony at the tender age of 7, is now a mature master of the violin. The 23-year-old genius will appear at McArthur court on the Greater Artist series Monday evening, December 1.

Menuhin's Carnegie hall debut found a plump little boy of 11 in knee pants and a loose flowing blouse playing the Beethoven concerto with the New York symphony orchestra under Fritz Busch. Since then he has come back as a mature artist to answer the question in the minds of so many "Will this child prodigy develop into a lasting genius?"

Long Concert Tour

He completed his first round-the-world concert tour in 1935, appearing in 63 cities in 110 engagements.

Exchange tickets for the concert may be obtained by University students upon presentation of activity cards at the educational activity office in McArthur court. Both the exchange ticket and the activity card will be required for admittance to the concert.

Dr. H. R. Taylor, head of the psychology department, received a letter from Stanford university recently asking that he serve as their representative in the administering of aptitude tests for prospective Stanford students. Dance Plans Now Complete

A full intermission program has been arranged for the Homecoming dance Saturday night in McArthur court, according to Marvin Gorrie, co-chairman of the dance.

The living organization taking first place in the sign contest will be announced, and the cup awarded. Another cup will be awarded to the living organization boasting the largest number of registered alums.

Friars to Tap

Friars, senior men's honorary, will tap just after the intermission period, according to Gorrie.

A special portion of the floor will be set aside for patrons and patronesses, and alums may contact former professors there. Punch will be served.

Proper Dress

Proper dress for the dance is short silks for women, and suits for men.

Dancing will start at 9 p.m. and end at midnight. One o'clock permission has been granted for Saturday night.

At Second Glance

man and a canoe is that the canoe occasionally tips . . . like the freshman arising at 6:30 with "when the frost is on the pumpkin" . . . and the fact that most coeds are usually too biased. You know, bias this and bias that.

WE HAVE NO ARGUMENT: We'd like to ask Steve Worth, with no argument intended, about that statement that "the organization was not organized for the best interests of the students at large." After all, most campus organizations are that way, with only a few deriving the benefits of such, even the dorms, co-ops, and fraternities. But then why even bother; it's not that important.

SHORT STORIETTE: They were hidden by sitting in the swing in the moonlight alone. No word broke the stillness for at least half an hour until. . .

"Suppose you had money," she said, "what would you do?"

He threw out his chest in the responding glory of young manhood. "Why, I'd travel!" was the answer.

He felt her warm, young hand slide into his. When he looked up she had gone, but in his hand was a nickel.

NYA Funds Cut For Next Year

In accordance with orders received from NYA headquarters, now new assignments can be made during the current reorganization of the national youth administration and the civilian conservation corps, Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel administration, announced Tuesday.

NYA funds are scheduled for a 50 per cent cut, it was learned last week, but this cut will not affect college funds to the extent that it will curtail the number of hours available to present employees, according to Peggy Jane Peebler, NYA secretary.

The new plans will probably affect high school appropriations and NYA projects primarily, said Dean Onthank.
