

Oregon Athletes Grab Sigma Delta Psi Crown

Steers Tops In National Competition

University of Oregon for the third consecutive year grabbed the National Sigma Delta Psi championship, according to reports received by the Oregon PE department following complete tabulation of results turned in last spring by colleges all over the nation.

Led by Les Steers, Ray Dickson, and Warren Finke who wound up one, two, and three among the thousands of athletes competing throughout the country, the 10-man Webfoot team garnered 6,523.30 points to win going away from Springfield college with 5,834.70.

Les Steers, former Oregon student and world champion high jumper, was top Sigma Delta Psi athlete in the nation, according to results received by the PE department.

Hobson's Hoopsters 'Homestate' Lads

It's a definitely "Oregon" basketball team that cavorts daily under the tutelage of Howard Hobson. For of the thirteen varsity players doing duty for the Webfoots, twelve of them are from Oregon towns, a fact to which Hobson proudly points.

Only "alien" to crash the homestate ranks of the Ducks is George "Porky" Andrews, two-year veteran. Captain "Porky" commutes a long distance to school from his home in Victoria, British Columbia. All others are strictly from the Webfoot state.

Eugene, Portland, and Astoria all have contributed two of the Webfoot hoopsters, while the rest come from towns scattered throughout the state.

Archie Marshik, veteran center, and Paul Jackson, formerly from California, both now reside in Eugene. Don Kirsch, who prepped at Jefferson high, and Bob Wren, former Washington high star, hail from Portland. Astoria, hotbed for such other Oregon basketball aces as Wally Johansen, Earl Sandness, Ted Sarpola, and Bobby Anet, send down John Erickson and Cliff Anet, Bob-Boe, Jerry Battles, and Francis Tuckwiler, 100-yard dash, :10.0 seconds, three-fifths of a five-way tie for second place.

Members of Oregon's 10-man team and the points they scored were: Steers, 839.30; Dickson, 770.10; Finke, 705.90; Mecham, 700.90; Dollarhide, 623.70; Marnie, 622.30; Philip Jackson, 590.90; Stan Ray, 585.60; Bob Newland, 574.10; and Cam Collier, 510.60.

Ned Johns, frosh track coach and director of the Sigma Delta Psi program last spring, was praised by Russ Cutler, who usually directed the procedure, but who was at the University of Washington last year.

"Ned did a wonderful job last spring," said Cutler, "and the school should be proud of his efforts and of the team that beat every other one in the United States."

by's brother, to carry on for the Ducks.

Bob Newland, stellar sophomore guard, received his high school training at Medford and Warren Taylor, 6 foot five inch forward, comes from Banks. Lloyd Jackson, lanky center, calls Dallas home; while another sophomore, Warren Christiansen, went to Tillamook high. Letterman Rolph Fuhrman lives at Sixes and Willson Maynard, remaining squad member, comes from the Oregon capital city of Salem.

Rubes Scrimmaged

Intrasquad scrimmages continued to be nightly affairs at the Igloo. Tonight, a slight variation will be provided, when the Oregon varsity tangles with Rubenstein's Oregonians in another of their informal practice scrimmages. December 3, the Ducks will meet the Rubes again, in all seriousness, though, in a regularly scheduled tilt.

Defense Stressed

Defensive weaknesses which became apparent against Signal Oil last Friday were being ironed out this week. Offensive drill was concerned mostly with keeping possession of the ball. Kicking away the ball was one of the most glaring faults which plagued the Ducks despite their victory.

A cheery note was sounded by Mentor Hobson this week when he said that the team "looked quite a bit better than they did at this time last year."

City Shows Signs

Street banners portraying the Homecoming spirit on Willamette and other main Eugene streets will be displayed Friday, November 28, according to Russ Hudson, general chairman. These banners will be put up by the city of Eugene. Windows of local merchants will be decorated by Friday also. Homecoming stencils will be displayed on merchants' windows today.

the javelin toss. The world high jump champion leaped 6 feet 9 inches in his Sigma Delta Psi effort and hurled the spear 205 feet.

Dickson skipped over the 120-yard low hurdle course in :13.1 seconds to edge out Dick Findlay of Oregon State college, who turned in a time of :13.2, for first in the nation. Dickson also leaped 22 feet 10 inches in the broadjump to finish second in the nation, nine inches behind the same Findlay's first-place jump.

Curt Mecham, All-American grid candidate from Oregon, booted the football 216 feet (72 yards) to register the longest punt in the country. Wes Dollarhide of the Webfoot team finished third in the country with a 22-foot-8-inch leap.

Steers Again

Steers came in for additional honors in the shot put and the baseball throw, shoving the iron 44 feet 7 inches for second place, 1 1/2 inches shorter than Oregon State's Stevens' first place put, and flinging the horsehide 343 feet for third place.

Art Borten of Oregon State won the bar vault with a 7-foot, 1-inch effort, while Steers, Finke, Mecham, and Jim Marnie furnished a four-way deadlock for second place one inch behind.

Other Duck Winners

Other Webfoots who placed first, second, or third in individual events throughout the country but who weren't included in the Duck 10-man team were Bill Regner, baseball throw, 344 feet for second place; Gerald Huestis, 100-yard freestyle swim, :57 seconds for third spot; Bill Beifuss, high jump, 6 feet, 2 inches for third place; "Inky" Boe, rope climb, :5.8 seconds for first place;

Fijis, Canard Clubbers Register IM 'A' Wins

By TOM HUEBNER

Mathematical-minded sports fans who have a mania for jotting down high and low scores, brushed off their dusty old ledgers yesterday to record the 15 to 0-12 to 2 victory of a brawny Fiji club over Zeta hall in Wednesday's "A" league volleyball action. Although the independents fought a terrific battle they were unable to withstand the husky advances of the Fijis and the final outcome represents an all-time low score for this year's tilts.

Canard club, represented by an exceptionally determined ball club, trounced a persevering Omega hall aggregation, 16 to 14 and 15 to 5 in two out of three tilts to take win honors. The first tilt showed Omega hall to be almost comparable to Canard as far as power was concerned.

But in the second bout, despite the powerful serving couplet composed of Dale "Fireball" McMullin and Allan Hirschfeld the Omega boys slowed down to a walk and were forced to take a terrible beating at the hands of the merciless Canard group.

Phi Delts Win

A plucky Phi Delt team added another game to their credit when they defeated Sigma Nu, 15 to 5 and 15 to 10 in two rough-and-tumble contests that really kept the onlooker interested.

The only other "A" league game was forfeited to Theta Chi by SAM, who failed to show at the appointed time.

"B" league action featured only two games, both of which were defaulted. One by Sigma hall, in favor of the Fijis and the other by SAM in favor of the Yeomen.
