

'Goon Squad' To Round Up Final Hit Men

Three offenders who neglected to appear yesterday noon before the "Order of the O" swing session" will receive added penalties when they are rounded up this morning by the "O" "goon squad" for the last hacking session of Homecoming week.

Bill Fugit and Jim Frost, two time losers, and Bill Skibinski, three times a reneger, are slated for rather severe punishment, Jim Rathbun, "O" president said yesterday.

"Right" Angle

Before a blood-thirsty mob on the Fenton hall steps, 20 violators "assumed the angle" and took the heftiest blows the lettermen could muster. More than one sufferer went gingerly down the steps with a "treading on eggs" gait after the blow had been struck.

One paddle was broken, but the maple slab made especially for the Homecoming "hit parades" and future "O" initiations has stood up under the strain without so much as cracking.

Today is the last of the hacking sessions, and this morning Rathbun's "gestapo" is sending out a "goon squad" to make sure that all offenders appear at 12:30 for their punishment.

Busy Frosh Plan to Scrub Oregon Seal

From noon today until Sunday the freshmen really suffer. Or at least that's what they say. For at 12 this noon, armed with toothbrushes and various and sundry other impedimenta they gather in front of Villard hall for the annual washing of the Oregon seal.

The Order of the "O" "Gestapo," Jim Rathbun, fuehrer, will stand, paddles in hand, over the luckless freshmen as they toil at their task of polishing the sacred emblem.

The freshmen will then be transported to Skinner's butte to give the "O" its annual coat of lemon paint. Old brooms, mops, and the seats of freshman pants will be sacrificed to this ritual.

Guard of Honor

From that time until Sunday morning the "O" will be watched except during game time, houses and organizations working in shifts to keep marauders away.

Ted Yaw, in charge of the guards, has announced that the following schedule will be observed in protecting the honor of the "O":

Lost Articles Put on Block

"Sold to the highest bidder," called the two AWS auctioneers, Don Swink and Hank Kemp, yesterday as the largest sale of lost and found articles of the year took place.

Bringing in the smallest amount of money was a book on the speech development of a young child. It sold for one cent. Pens and slide rules led the sale of goods, with prices ranging from 65 cents to $1.

Books brought a greater volume of sale than any other item, 41 being sold. Loose leaf note books were the fastest selling articles on the auction block.

Key cases, purses, umbrellas, overcoats, rulers, pencils and rings were included in the wide variety offered to bidders. Probably the most appreciated was an overcoat which sold for a small amount of money to a student who was suffering from the cold.

The auction is an annual affair sponsored by the Associated Women Students and the money taken in by the sale is given out each year in the form of scholarships to students of the University.

Dr. and Mrs. George F. Guldager, '21, are the parents of a daughter, Karen, born June 30.

Campus Calendar

Oregon Caves crew annual reunion will rock the YWCA house Saturday afternoon immediately after the game. Dancing and refreshments are planned at 25 cents per person.

All Orders meet in Gerlinger hall at 8 p.m. to take part in the rally.
