

UO Women Set For Ohio Meet

Cenevieve Working, junior in sociology, and Abbie Jane White, junior in Romance language, have been selected local YW representatives to attend the national assembly in Oxford, Ohio, December 27, Lois Nordling, YWCA president, announced at the Tuesday cabinet meeting.

Edith Slate, sophomore in social science, will also attend the convention to represent the University of Oregon. Members of the cabinet evaluated contributions of the YW in bettering the life of students.

Plans for the annual freshman Christmas program, December 5 were formulated. The cabinet members decided to hold a Seabeck rally in conjunction with their Tuesday meeting December 2.

The community service group will sponsor the Red Cross drive on the campus. Boxes for money will be placed in all living organizations the first of the week.

Christmas caroling by YMCA-YWCA members will be an event of Sunday, December 7. The group will meet at the YW at 4:30 that day to practice the carols before singing at different organizations.

Circulation Receives Kieran's Sports Book

"The American Sporting Scene," written by John Kieran, sports editor for the New York Times, was received this week by the circulation department of the University library. This book contains Joseph W. Golinkin's 80 illustrations covering various important sport events such as Lou Little's Lions of Columbia in the Rose Bowl, Joe Louis, and Babe Ruth.

The second book received this week for this department is "Tomorrow Will Come," by E. M. Almedingen. This book belongs in the unusual and individual tradition, according to the judges of the sixth Atlantic non-fiction contest, of such previous prize winners as "Old Jules" and "The Land Below the Wind."

Honorary Announces Two New Pledges

At the last meeting of Scabbard and Blade, Bill Regner and Paul Bocci were pledged to the military honorary.

Plans for the Military ball, annual Washington's birthday dance sponsored by Scabbard and Blade, are well under way, Bill Fugit, president, announced.

Hayward Field Set for Game

Hayward field is to be transformed into a colorful setting for the annual Homecoming game Saturday, according to Gertrude Puzzis, chairman of the field decoration committee.

When grads head toward the field they will see a big sign,

All crew and committee members who are working on decorations for the athletic field during Homecoming should report at their stations at 8 a.m. Saturday, November 29.

"Welcome Alums" on the wall of the stadium. On entering they will notice the crepe paper streamers waving from the floodlight poles in their gay orange and black, green and yellow combinations.

An Oregon Duck and an Oregon Beaver will be glaring at each other from the two sets of center floodlight poles.

Miss Puzzis suggests that all students who have cars would add much to the atmosphere if they would all decorate their cars with colored streamers.

Mixer Dance

Assisting the hospitality committee and giving a welcoming smile and "hello" to the alumni will be Hope Hughes, Homecoming hostess. Miss Hughes will attend a luncheon of the Eugene chamber of commerce Saturday.

A meeting of the directors of the alumni association will be held at 2 this afternoon. At 6 p.m. dinners will be given for alums at living organizations.

Sign Winners

Homecoming signs will be judged at 6 this evening and announcement of winners will be made at the Homecoming dance Saturday. Two new cups will be permanently awarded to the winners.

Campus streets will resound to the yells of rallying Webfoots when a snowball pajama-top rally begins tonight at 8. Starting at the ATO house and the Chi Psi lodge the ralliers will meet and proceed to the Igloo where a giant variety show will be presented with Earle Russell, yell king, as master of ceremonies. Andy Landforce, president of the OSC student body, will be present at the show.

At 9 p.m. the variety show will go over the air on KOAC and possibly two other stations. The show will feature the best of campus talent, according to George Arbuckle, co-chairman of the affair.

Immediately following the variety show students will proceed

Co-op Selling Bargain Books

A field day for book lovers and collectors began Tuesday when the biannual sale of the trade book department opened at the Co-op store.

Prices of many regular books of the department have been reduced, Daisy Hamlin, head of the trade book department, has announced, and a number of books that have been in the rental library are on sale, too. Lower prices are available on "close-out" or "remainder" books that publishers have offered at reduced prices.

First beginning as the "High Hat" rental library on the upper floor of the College Side, the book department has now been in existence about fifteen years. After a short time this rental library was taken over by the Co-op and since that time has had extensive growth. The trade book department is now the second largest department in the store, textbooks being the largest and together the two book departments constitute about 60 per cent of the entire business of the Co-op.
