Moving Film OfChristPlay Shows Today

Hailed by critics as a moving and inspiring play, "Journey to Jerusalem" by Maxwell Anderson, the story of Christ's early years, has been recorded on film and will be presented in 207 Chapman hall this afternoon and tomorrow under the auspices of the educational activities board.

Performances will be continuous, beginning at 2, 3:30, and 5 this afternoon, and 4, 5:30, and 7 Thursday afternoon. Students will be admitted free to all campus, showings upon presentation of their educational activities cards.

The dramatist and Pulitzer prize winner, Maxwell Anderson, has written a remarkably dramatic and inspiring story of the boy Jesus. Mr. Anderson has chosen a passage from Luke which tells of a Passover pilgrimage to Jerusalem and has built a play around this little-known period of Christ's life.

The original broadway cast of 33 artists portray their same roles in the film. Mr. Anderson is the outstanding contemporary exponent of verse-drama.

The picture will also be shown at the Methodist church Wednesday evening at 7:30. Wesley house will sponsor this presentation and admission will be 55 cents.

Flood Waters Cover Floor In UO Building

Rain poured down all over the campus Tuesday morning, but it seemed to somehow do an extra good job of pouring down on the northwest corner of the architecture building. By 7 o'clock the drain had stopped up and water backed up through the sink in the jewelry room until water was about 11/2 inches deep all over the floor.

The University plumber was called at once and he managed to save the school from its watery grave by digging down to the drain pipe and breaking into it to release the water.

BOY GOD

Sidney Lumet has the difficult role of the boy Jesus in Maxwell Anderson's play, "Journey to Jerusalem," which will be presented at Chapman hall today and tomorrow. The story concerns a passage from Luke which tells of a Passover pilgrimage to Jeru-

They're All Wet . . . . Rain Floods Campus Houses

Oregon Ducks were wishing they really had webbed feet last night after a day's torrential rains and promise of more left basements flooded, sewers overrun, and more than 3,000 decidedly wet Ducks.

Campus living organizations in the millrace area reported the most damage. A member of the Sigma Nu house reported their furnace was nearly flooded and that "We'll be without heat after tonight probably." Members of Sigma Phi Epsilon reported water in their basement also, but indicated the furnace was still in good condition.

If the rain served no other noble purpose it did put some water into the millrace, which has been nearly dry for two weeks. The race was almost completely devoid of water last week after flood waters of two weeks ago broke a retaining wall at the upper end of Oregon's most famous landmark.

Further harm was done in homes of students and professors who live in the Amazon "mud flats," area west of the campus. East Nineteenth avenue was badly flooded between Willamette and Hilyard streets, but most of the high water seemed to be concentrated nearer the downtown district and on the west side of Willamette.

Late last night water was reported over the highway at Judkins point between Eugene and Springfield. This was not caused by high water in the river, however, businessmen in that district reported, but from water draining off the high ground between the highway and the Southern Pacific tracks into the Rene Dussaq, naturalized Ar gentinian, will speak to a University audience in Gerlinger hall at 10 a.m. today. His subject in-"A South American's View of South America."

Charles W. Beeching, executive secretary of the Committee of One Hundred, Miami Beach, Florida, writes, "You may book Rene Dussaq anywhere, present. him before America's most critical audeinces, feeling absolutely. confident that he will exceed the greatest hopes of his auditors . . . after a magnificent address, immediate comment placed him on a plane of full equality with the very best man to whom we have listened."

Third in Series

And this seems to be typical of the printed comments available on Mr. Dussaq, third in a series of noted assembly speakers.

The lecturer has doubled for stars in Hollywood studios; he has "stunted" in cars, planes, parachutes, platform diving, and horseback riding. He is a deep-sea diver who, with Capt. John Craig, has found lost treasure on the ocean bed and photographed deep-sea wonders in the search for the lost jewels of the Empress Carlotta aboard the wrecked "Merida."

Tennis Champ

He is a champion in tennis for two countries, Cuba and Switzerland, and is a star in swimming, holding a 65-foot skin-diving record, and was coxswain of a twice victorious Olympic racing team.

In the last few years he has devoted himself to writing and speaking, after an automobile wreck which broke his spine and prohibited him from serving with the armed forces of the United States. He recently revisted his native country to keep himself up to date on the rapidly changing South American conditions. While there he talked with many, political heads.

The ex-Argentinian spent 10 hours with Haya de la Torre, head of APRA, the largest South American popular political party, the Popular Alliance of American (Please turn to page eight)

Warren Phillips was named senior representative. His name was the only one on the ballot for that position.

Mildred Wilson, junior representative, polled 10 more votes than her nearest rival.

Franky Nelson beat out by 28 votes her closest contender for the sophomore position.

Ralph Johnson was elected to the freshman berth. He gained 23 more tallies than his closest competitor.

Infirmary Stops Visiting Hours

There will be no visiting in the infirmary until further notice, said a statement issued Tuesday by Dr. F. N. Miller, director of the Student Health Service.

"We have at the present time two cases of mumps and six cases of pneumonia, all infectious," said Dr. Miller explaining his action. "However, if students were always cooperative with the rules we would not have a general closing man so soon."

Dr. Miller described general disregard of isolation and no visiting signs. He said that the hospital force was not large enough to permit policing the halls during visiting hours, to see that no visitors entered the isolation

"It is only to the best interest of patients and well people that there be no visiting at the hospital until further notice," Dr. Miller finished.

Sig Eps Pledge

Sigma Phi Epsilon has pledged George Hallock and Donald Asselstine, reported the dean of men's office Tuesday.

Both men are from Kent, Washington.
