

Try Some of These for Your Choosey Friends

By MARY ANN CAMPBELL

You may be feeling opulent as a Rockefeller or poverty-stricken as the well-known church mouse (and that DOES describe most of us, doesn't it?) but, no matter what the state of your pocket-book, you still have a Christmas list to rattle with, despite exams and other unfortunate bits of dreariness to occupy your time. For your difficult-to-please feminine friends, your gay acquaintances, or even for yourself, if you should happen to feel especially benevolent, take a look at the costume jewelry so amply displayed in the various stores around town. If you can't find something that will be just THE thing, you're impossibly hard to please.

In the grand manner are pins made in flower design, some with real zircons or cultured pearls, others with imitation sapphires, which glitter elegantly. Stones and imitation rubies or yellow diamonds (also not real) which are a wee mite expensive, but certainly worth the shekels you have to lay out for them.

Locket Bracelet

One especially nice bit is a gold bracelet that expands to fit your wrist, decorated with an inky black heart. It is accompanied by a locket, also heart-shaped and also in black and gold. There are other lockets, too, notably some enameled ones, in delicate colors, both heart-shaped and round.

Anyone who collects wristfuls of thin silver bracelets will appreciate a few more of them; or, for variety, you might try a bracelet made of gold links, with a little gold book dangling off it, made for the exclusive purpose of keeping telephone numbers. It's alphabetically arranged, too, so you can't get muddled and call the wrong person.

Hummel Pins

Hummel pins, quite large and made of silver, would be nice for devotees and collectors of Hummel prints. Powder-blend pearls, which come in necklaces of one, two, and three strands, in three shades (not all on one string, of course) very long chain necklaces, jet jewelry, pottery heads, wooden gadgets such as hearts pierced by an arrow (these are pins), carved flowers with a very Graustark air, or long necklaces of wooden beads, painted or brown, are other ideas you might find worthy of notice.

Take a look at the tiny gold, white, or black pill boxes, which have painted designs or jewels on top. They are just about the right size for keeping pledge pins.

You might consider presenting some lucky friend with an initialed lapel pin. These are ob-

Dean Morse Defers Return to University

Acting Dean Orlando J. Hollis, of the law school, received a call December 3 from Dean Wayne L. Morse, who is in Washington, D. C., at the request of President Roosevelt for the reconvening of the emergency board to help settle the railroad strike.

Dean Morse said he would not return till next week on account of additional duties in clearing up details of the strike. He will probably have to go to San Francisco as soon as he returns, to finish arbitration on the long-shore wage case.

long or squares of a transparent composition, which are initialed to order with one, two, or three initials, and are tied with a matching or contrasting leather thong. They come in all pastel colors, and are like small mirrors, very modern-looking.
