Bacot Plans Extra Group For New Affairs Forums

THREE BELLS AND ALL'S WELL

All may be well, but it's still plenty cold in the air tower atop the like as the wee small morning hours roll around. Don Ellingson, left, and Clinton Childs are two of many guards who give their time to keep the watch for nearby planes, friend or foe. Their story of the "night watch" as told to Emerald reporters at 3 a.m. yesterday is reported below.

Three Bells and All's . . .

Well, What's Going On

By JACK BILLINGS

"Don't shoot! Our eyes aren't slanted. See?"

There they cowered, close against the outside wall of an elevator shaft, in the glare of a flashlight, the managing editor with a speed graphic grasped in a shaking fist, the reporter with a small notebook clenched between chattering teeth. Each was pointing to his occidentally arched optics.

But that's almost the end of the story. Let's start at the beginning.

BALL HEAD

Emerson Page is newly-appointed chairman of the annual Senior Ball. The ball, scheduled for McArthur court January 31, will be the first all-campus formal of the year. Page was appointed Tuesday by Pat Lawson, senior class president.

Two New Pledges

Gregory Olney was pledged by Phi Sigma Kappa and Robert A. Johnson by Delta Upsilon, reported the dean of men's office.

Adventure Beckons

But of course the photographer and reporter couldn't just walk up and say, "Hold it, boys" and shoot the pictures. That was too easy. They had to do it the hard way. They had to sneak up and "shoot 'em" when they weren't looking.

So, at 2:30 a.m. they kissed the pressman good night and set off through the street-lightless fog to blaze new trails. Two-forty-five found them at the rear of the library, barking shins and things, looking for the fire escape leading to the roof. With the speed graphic loaded, primed and cocked, the photographer led the way up a shaky step ladder which made dubious connection with the fire escape.

Remembering that two hands were better than one the reporter mouted his notebook and asserted

Faculty Men To Augment Discussions

Plans are under way for a series of study groups to supplement the recently announced current affairs forums, Dan Bacot, executive secretary of the forums and of the campus YMCA, revealed last night.

The study groups will meet Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, following the forums. Group members will discuss material offered in the forums, and faculty members will offer additional ideas. Stenographic reports of the forums will be made by Janet Wagstaff and Mary Peck, and study group members will base their discussions on the stenographic reports, Bacot said. Study groups will meet in the YMCA hut.

An experimental forum will take place at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in 207 Chapman. Topic will be "The World We Want Tomorrow."

Petition Date Looms In ASUO Job Offer

Would-be secretaries of the ASUO must have their petitions submitted to the educational activities office in McArthur court before 5 p.m. today, according to Lou Torgeson, ASUO president.

Candidates for the position will be interviewed by the executive committee at 4 p.m. Thursday, Torgeson said.

A vacancy in the committee was created when Bette Morfitt, elected secretary-treasurer last spring, was graduated at the end of fall term.

NAMED BY F.D.R.

President Roosevelt Monday named Dean Wayne L. Morse as a member of a 12-man war labor board to adjust labor disputes for the duration of the war emergency. Dean Morse is now in San Francisco carrying out duties in connection with his position as Pacific coast maritime labor mediator.

Dean Morse Gains Post

Wayne L. Morse, dean of the law school, was yesterday appointed to a 12-man war labor board empowered with the authority to impose final arbitration upon disputants in any labor-management controversies that might interfere with continuous production of war materials.

The defense mediation board, of which Dean Morse was a member, was displaced by executive order creating the new board. It will absorb all the functions of the old board and most of its members.

Makes Own Rules

If necessary, the board may use mediation, voluntary arbitration, or arbitration under its own rules to effect a settlement. However, the executive order provided a procedure for settling disputes that might interrupt vital war industry work.

1. The parties at issue shall resort first to "direct negotiations or to the procedures provided in a collective bargaining agreement."

2. Failing to achieve settlement

Campus Split Into Eight Raid Areas

Plans for defense of the University of Oregon campus have now been nearly completed, according to Dr. Earl M. Pallett, executive secretary.

Dr. Pallett, who was recently appointed air raid warden for the campus by the Lane county defense council, reported Monday that the campus had been divided into eight defense districts. Two assistant air raid wardens have been appointed to be responsible for each district in time of air raid.

District A, which includes the University press, health service, pool, heating plant, and extension building, will be under the direction of Robert C. Hall, associate professor of journalism and supervisor of the press, and Harry T. Shea, supervisor of the men's swimming pool.

Districts Listed

District B, including the art and architecture building, McClure, journalism, Friendly, Villard and Deady, will be handled by Dr. Charles Secoy, instructor in chemistry, and Dr. Henry W. Schoenborn, instructor in zoology.

District C, which will include Fenton, commerce, Oregon, the YMCA and the YWCA buildings, is under the supervision of Dr. Daniel Gage, associate professor of business administration, and Dr. Waldo Schumacher, professor of political science.

District D, taking in the area from Condon and Chapman to the art museum and library, is to be directed by Willis Warren, executive assistant to the librarian, and James C. Stovall, instructor in geology.

Cleric Becomes Warden

District E, to be captained by Dr. Paul B. Means, head of the department of religion, and Clifford Stalsberg, University cashier, will include Johnson, the faculty club, the drama studio, Hendricks and Mary Spiller hall, Susan Campbell, and Gerlinger.

District F, covering the men's dormitory, the news bureau, several small buildings and the tennis courts, will be supervised by Dr. Kenneth S. Ghent, assistant professor of mathematics and Lawrence E. Hartwig, assistant professor of law.

District G, which includes the Navy Clarifies Officer Training Plans

Clarification of the requirements for students at the University who wish to enlist in the naval reserve has been received here by Dr. Howard R. Taylor, head of the psychology department.

In order to qualify for enlistment, students must be native-born, unmarried citizens of the United States and not under 19 or over 28 years of age on the date of enlistment. They must also meet the physical requirements set up by the navy for all classes of the rank of ensign.

Upperclassmen Privileged

College juniors and seniors regularly enrolled may be enlisted prior to graduation provided they submit a certificate from the registrar of the school attended that upon graduation they will have the educational qualifications required.

Enlisted students will then be continued on inactive duty until they have completed the work for their college degree. The educational qualifications required by the navy are that students upon graduation have one of the following degrees: bachelor of arts, science, education, philosophy, business administration, commercial science, journalism, laws, or any engineering degree. They must also submit a certified transcript of their college record which must include at least two one-semes-
