

Morse Return Speeds Work About Fenton

The return last Saturday of Wayne L. Morse, dean of the law school, from the hearings on the longshoremen's dispute in San Francisco has greatly increased the activities at Fenton hall this week. All first year law classes have been turned over to the dean and he is doing five weeks of advance work on his own classes before leaving for Washington, D. C., next Sunday evening to attend a meeting of the war labor board.

Although Dean Morse will finish his winter term work at the school of law there is a possibility that he may take a leave of absence spring term, depending upon the program of the war labor board.

West Coast Work

It is also possible, said the dean, that much of his work with the board will be here on the west coast. At the time of his appointment the understanding between him and Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, was that he was at all times to be available for arbitration of longshoremen's disputes.

"No, this is not a job with a salary," the dean said. "It is a war appointment, but we are paid for the days that we're handling a case."

Briefs and records on the case of the Crown flour mills vs. the cereal workers' union involving a question on the vacation clause of their contract were studied last Sunday by Dean Morse, at which time he handed down a decision on the case.

Longshore Arbitration

As the arbitrator for the present San Francisco Longshoremen's wage dispute he is now preparing a report on that case, the longest hearing in his experience. Evidence in the case consists of 2300 pages of transcripts, 250 exhibits, and several briefs, he said.

O. J. Hollis, professor of law, who has been the acting dean during Dean Morse's absence, will be recommended to fill that position again if the work of the labor board should necessitate a leave of absence, said Dr. Morse.

In answer to questions about the near future the dean was not certain, but he did know that, "I will always make Oregon my home and Eugene my permanent residence." He fully intends to continue his thirteen years of work at the University law school.

Free Food to Lure Scribes to Dinners

All Emerald workers of the business, editorial, news, and sports staffs who have signed the "intention-to-come" paper posted in the journalism "shack" will attend a free luncheon or banquet tomorrow.

Luncheon for the editorial, news, and sports staffs at 12 o'clock in the Anchorage will be seasoned with talks by Dean Eric W. Allen, dean of the school of journalism, and George Turnbull, professor of journalism.

Business staff members will dine at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening in Seymour's cafe, said Fred O. May, business manager. Students who have worked on the staff either this term or last are eligible to attend.

Prospective students are eligible for scholarship at Princeton, and several at the University of Pennsylvania, if their father worked on the Pennsylvania railway.

Legs Look Smooth Even in Plaster

Jean Spearow, ASUO vice-president, was confined to a bed in the infirmary Tuesday, pending the drying of a cast on her leg.

Though she will be confined, for a time, among the first words uttered by Miss Spearow were: "Tell them they'd better put somebody on my news beat tomorrow, but don't let them give it away. I want it."

"That cast is simply beautiful," commented Dr. Marian G. Hayes, assistant University physician, on the work of a colleague. "Very, very smooth," she added, taking in the lovely appendages.

Ad Honorary Initiates Seven

Initiation of seven new members of Alpha Delta Sigma, national advertising honorary, took place in Gerlinger hall yesterday, followed by a banquet at the College Side, according to James Thayer, vice-president of the group.

Mr. Frank Short, instructor in journalism, gave a speech at the banquet on "The Principles of Ads," and plans were discussed for the Krazy Kopy Krawl which is scheduled for early spring term. Members made plans for an extensive program to be carried out this term.

The new members are Allen Hunt, Pat Cloud, David Holmes, Wilbur Linde, Charles Haener, David Stone, and Warren Roper.

Mr. Ed Turnbull, Mr. M. McClain, and Mr. R. C. Hall, honorary members of the organization were present.

Seniors Pick Band for Ball

Art Holman's orchestra has been signed to play for the annual senior ball January 31, Pat Lawson, senior class president, revealed last night in announcing plans for the all-campus formal.

The point was stressed that this might be "the last formal of the year, in light of the student affairs committee's policy of 'small informal dances'."

Committee members, already at work on plans for the ball, as announced by Miss Lawson, follow:

Publicity: Jack Saltzman, chairman; Jean Spearow, Buck Buchwach, Ken Christianson; orchestra, Geraldine Walker, chairman, Ted Harmon, Maxine Hanson, Billie Christenson.

nation the fund is attempting to raise $100,000. With the United States actively in the war, the situation is changing rapidly, the chairman declared. The World Student Service fund follows the situation closely, they said, and expands its program as new needs arise.

Colony Expert Speaks at 8 p.m. On Dutch Policy

Herman Devries, custodian of the library map room, and formerly assistant provincial governor in the Dutch East Indies will speak at the first open meeting of Condon club, geography, geology, and anthropology honorary, at 8 p.m. tonight in the men's lounge, Gerlinger.

Mr. Devries will discuss the political situation, history, and government of the islands.

He will put special emphasis on the contrast between the Dutch colonial policy and the American policy in the Philippines. Mr. Devries has been in the United States for 18 years, but has maintained close contact with the Indies through relatives and newspapers. Refreshments will be served, and the public is invited.

Worship Meet.

At 4 p.m. Wednesday a worship study will meet at Westminister house to study the technique of leading public worship services and to prepare the Sunday services at Westminister. Work on radio worship and the speaking voice, and two services at local churches constitute the program for the winter term.

Upped Demand Causes Rise in Oregon Price

Price of the 1942 Oregonas goes up to $5.50 today, according to Emerson Page, business manager. The price had been $5 until today. The increase is a regular feature of the yearbook sale and is caused by the growing demand for annuals later in the year.

Pledges Need Uniform Rules

The junior Panhellenic council met last week to discuss the possibility of uniform pledge rules for all pledges on the campus. This would go into effect next year if passed, according to June Tyler, vice-president of Panhellenic and adviser of Junior Panhellenic.

The plan would include exchange dinners or teas for pledges with other pledges of other houses in order to get them better acquainted. Junior Panhellenic, newly organized this year, is composed of pledge presidents from all sorority houses on the campus. Further meetings to discuss these plans will be held during the winter term, the first scheduled for Thursday of this week.

President's Ball Calls Webfoots

University students as well as townspeople are invited to participate in the amateur show on the program of the President's ball to be held January 31, Adam Lefor, dance chairman, announced.

Prizes of $15, $10, and $5 will be given for the three most outstanding performances in the amateur show, Mr. Lefor said. He stated that an audition will be held soon, to determine the most desirable numbers for the program. Date for the audition will be announced soon, Mr. Lefor said.

The dance, an annual celebration in honor of the President's birthday, is a benefit affair with the proceeds going to the national infantile paralysis fund. Decorations will be on a patriotic theme with a large picture of the president as a center.

Music will be supplied by Carl Roosen's orchestra and the admission will be $1 per couple.

Fansett Tours State

Elmer C. Fansett, alumni secretary left today to make a short trip over the state to contact county alumni directors. He is expected back at the end of the week.
