The Valentine Girl will be introduced during the luncheon at John Straub Memorial hall Saturday. She will also be present at

Gleemen Sing
In McArthur
Next Monday

Another in the long list of annual winter concerts by the Eugene Gleemen is slated for Monday night, February 2, in McArthur court, it was announced last night.

The Gleemen's concert will be substantially the same as the program they presented January 22 at Silverton. The chorus is composed of businessmen and local townspeople under the direction of John Stark Evans, professor of music at the University. Several years ago they appeared by special request at the San Francisco World's fair, and have received wide acclaim among concert goers.

Nine University students will give featured performances with the Gleemen. The quartet for special numbers includes Fred Beardsley, Willis Johnson, Laurie Pratt, and Laurence Celsi.

Verne Sellin, violinist, will play a concerto and certain obligato arrangements. Baritone soloist in the selection, "Bendemeer's Stream" will be Robert Johnson.

The University school of music brass quartet composed of Bob Carlson, Ben Bates, Phil Hunt, and Vern Spough will be featured in "Onward Ye People," by Sibelius and in the finale number.

All students will be admitted upon presentation of their educational activities cards.

Igloo Assemblies

The Igloo assemblies will be quite a bore, Their changing from Gerlinger sure made me sore. I'm put in the seats without backs, never fail, And I can't hang my feet o'er the balcony rail. —J.W.S.

Beaux Arts
Dance Brings
Nightmares

Nightmares, sweet dreams, or anything else art students can dream up are likely to appear at tonight's Beaux Arts ball that is scheduled to start at 9 o'clock at the Anchorage, according to Glenn Westfall, chairman of the dance.

Two prizes will be awarded by the Co-op store and the art school faculty for the best costumes. What the prizes will be has not yet been revealed.

Decorations

Decorations have been made by Phil Gilmore, Fred Gong, and Bert Nicoll and will be installed at the Anchorage this afternoon.

Only couples wearing costumes will be admitted to the dance, as that is part of the tradition of the affair. There is no definite theme from which costumes are to be picked leaving it to the art students' own imagination as to the type of costume in which they wish to appear.

Tickets

Tickets are on sale for 50 cents a couple at the art school co-op and can also be bought from Glenn Westfall, Terry Cox, and all other members of the dance committee. All art students and their friends are invited to attend.

The University of Oregon chapter of the National Collegiate Players, drama society, will inaugurate an Experimental Playhouse in about two weeks, after several years of inactivity.

This playhouse will present to students, faculty, and friends of the University plays of experimental nature: Russian, early American, old English melodramas, or works of the Orson Wells type. It will stage original masterpieces submitted by students or faculty members, and start a "play parade" featuring scenes from contemporary plays, for the most part comedy and farce.

"Also, to any student or faculty member who had, has, or will have even the slightest desire to trod the boards and yell a few lines, pound nails, guild sets, or pull the light switch or the curtain, the Experimental Theatre offers every opportunity to do so," said Jerry Lakefish, president.

THEY LICK THE STAMPS

A plan to put over the sale of defense stamps on the campus is being developed by the senior class at their annual ball. Stamps instead of tickets are admission to the dance, which is being financed through the senior class treasury. Shown mulling over the plans for the ball are Bill Rickman, Earl Holmer, Betty Shown, and Geraldine Walker.

Russ Hudson is working with Lou Torgeson and Earl Maynard in selling bonds at campus living organizations this evening. The drive is a part of the nation-wide college sale of bonds proposed in a plan designed by Phil Lowry and Don Walker, law school students.

Bond Pledges
Sought From Living Groups

Pledges to buy United States defense bonds will be sought from every living organization on the campus tonight by Lou Torgeson, Russ Hudson, or Earl Maynard of the student defense committee. Several living groups have already been contacted, but those which have not should be prepared for the committee's representative when he calls today.

The bonds belong to series "F" and are to be purchased out of current income rather than savings. Mr. Mervin Vater of the Bresee-Warner system told the committee at its Tuesday meeting that funds to be invested should be pared from non-essential spending such as might otherwise be made on social functions.

Denominations as low as $18.50 with a maturity value of $25 may be secured.

The University is serving as a testing ground for the bond sale (Please turn to page three)

Frosh Glee
Petitions Due

First call for petitions of persons interested in chairmanship of the annual Frosh Glee was sounded last night by officers of the freshman class. The Glee is scheduled for April 25.

Persons interested must be "willing to spend time," "be interested in activities," and be able to meet scholastic eligibility requirements, class officers said.

UO Disowns Japanese Flyers

Opinions tending to discredit an International News service dispatch in a Eugene paper Thursday which reported that Jap flyers shot down over Hawaii were wearing "University of Oregon rings," were rife on the campus yesterday.

The news dispatch quoted Senator Guy M. Gillette (D. Ia.) as saying, "I have a translation of a story in a Pacific coast newspaper which says that some dead Japanese aviators wore either Honolulu high school or University of Oregon rings."

University students pointed out that University of Oregon rings are decidedly not common. Most students denied having seen them at all, although some said they had seen them on alums, who were graduated several years ago.

Others pointed to the Japanese source of the information as evidence of its questionable nature. Others reported having read in newspapers several weeks ago that Jap flyers were found wearing Oregon State rings.
