

Junior Canoe Fete Scuttled As Plans Call for Rerouting

Ruined Wall Empties Race Till Summer

By JOHN MATHEWS
There can be no Canoe Fete this spring because of plans calling for rerouting of the historic millrace.

Owing to uncertain floor conditions on the Willamette, construction work on the new water course will not begin before summer unless present plans are radically changed, according to a statement made last night by C. H. Koppe, of the Eugene Woolen mill, which, together with the Eugene Excelsior mill, controls the race.

High water recently tore out a retaining wall near the source of the millrace, permitting water to pour back into the river shortly after it enters the flume. Should the wall be rebuilt now, the race would have to be drained later before construction work could begin, so the bed will remain dry until projected work is completed.

Ground Breaking
"Ground breaking should start by July 1," said Mr. Koppe.

Present schedules call for completion of principal work before beginning of fall term.

Junior Weekend festivities will proceed in traditional manner despite absence of the fete, Pat Cloud, junior class president, announced last night. Unless the army or other authorities forbid the affair because of the large crowds it would draw, the spring celebration will take place as usual, simply substituting some other main attraction for the famed Canoe Fete. Cloud said that the substitute would not be revealed until some time next month.

Slim Possibility
The rerouting of the millrace is part of an extensive plan for future campus development. Also scheduled in connection with the race work are relocation of the

What's the 'Use'?

Use Stamp Payments Due

All student car owners have been urged by O. L. Rhinesmith, automobile enforcement officer, to purchase their federal "use" stamps before February 2 to avoid the $25 penalty provided by the revenue act. These stamps can be bought at the downtown postoffice for $2.00. They will be good until June 30, 1942.

The small federal sticker must be prominently displayed on all autos. Owners of cars without stamps will be penalized an additional $25 for permitting other people to use a vehicle for which the tax has not been paid, said Mr. Rhinesmith.

Letter Drive Ends Tuesday

The deadline for the Dads' day letter contest will close Tuesday, Nancy Reisch, letter chairman emphasized Friday. Prizes yet undisclosed will be awarded to the top man and woman to write the best letters for the annual contest.

The winning letter will be sent to dads by large numbers of Oregon students as they invite them to attend the festivities February 13, 14, and 15. The campus living organization registering the largest number of dads will receive cups.

Highlight of the weekend will be the Oregon-Oregon State basketball game in McArthur court. The Oregon-Washington swimming meet will take place during that afternoon.

As hostess during the celebration Dorothy Walthers has been named to act as official Valentine girl. Miss Walthers will take a definite part in welcoming the dads and will be introduced at the luncheon at John Straub Memorial hall.

Jack Lansing, Dads' day chairman, has seen the selection this week of a Valentine girl, Dorothy Walthers, to be an official hostess for the annual Dads' festivities. A letter contest sponsored by the Dads' day committee will close next Tuesday.

Vespers Start In Music Hall

The first University vesper service since 1931 will be held in the music school auditorium this Sunday at 5 p.m.

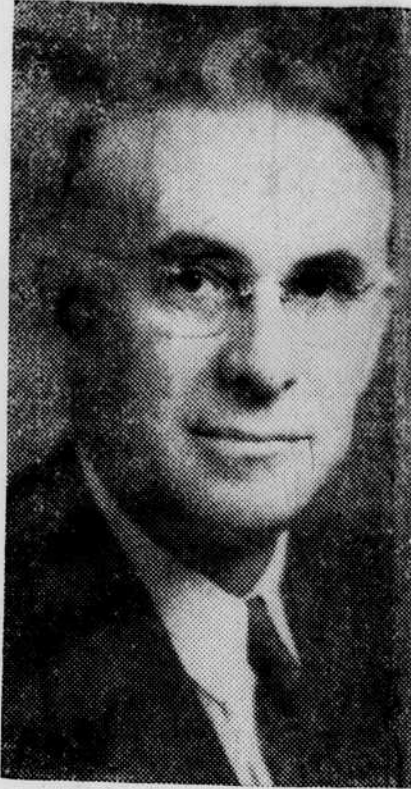

It is sponsored by Dean Theodore Kraft of the school of music, in cooperation with representatives of the various voluntary religious organizations on the campus. Dr. Quirinus Breen, assistant professor of history and social science will conduct the meditative part of the service, said Dr. Paul B. Means, professor of religion.

Future Plans
If this service is well attended the committee has planned to hold a similar service the first Sunday of each month for the remainder of the school year.

In 1931 John Stark Evans conducted a similar series. "The hall was always packed," said Dr.

Dorm Committee Reports Results

By EDITH NEWTON

Food, diet, finances, and bond retirement were discussed yesterday when the dormitory food committee met with President Donald M. Erb to discover what can be done to improve the conditions they believe to be undesirable.

President Erb told the group, "Mrs. Turnpseed and Miss Goodenow have agreed to cooperate and consult with the committee whenever they wish to meet at regular stated meetings."

Mrs. Genevieve Turnpseed is director of the dormitories, and Miss Helen Goodenow, is the dietitian for the dormitories.

No Change
President Erb expressed the opinion that there can be no change in the present budget to allocate more money for food. He invited any of the members of the committee to examine the entire books of the financial condition of the dorms.

Within three weeks President Erb wishes to meet again with the committee. In the meantime he will keep in touch with them.

Following the meeting in President Erb's office, the dorm group went to Hendricks hall and elected Charles Lundquist, senior in business administration, to serve as president of the group; Dan Mercer, senior in architecture, was elected to act as substitute president, and Lulu Pali, senior in music, was asked to act as secretary.

New Committees
Several new committees were named by the president. Dick Bennett was appointed chairman of a group to interview J. O. Lindstrom, University business manager, and to present him with a list of questions from the committee concerning the finances of the dorms.

Mercer was asked to head another committee to carry on and complete the investigation he has already started in regards to bonds and finances of the dorms.

It was decided to ask waiters

Stamps Admit To Senior Hop

When Art Holman begins to lead his orchestra tonight, it will mark the end of two months' work by a level-headed, active Senior ball committee.

Slated to begin at 9 this evening, the annual dance is the first of its kind to be held in the United States. Admission will be granted persons purchasing $1 worth of defense savings stamps at the door.

"Financially, the senior class does not expect profits from the dance. It is our effort to further the cause of national defense," Earl Holmer, financial chairman, said last night.

Programs
Don Swink, program chairman, emphasized that the programs include a defense stamp book, that can be later filled at the purchaser's will.

"Special musical arrangements and specialty numbers have been worked out with Art Holman," Geraldine Walker, in charge of orchestra, said last night. "Included among regular dance numbers will be several new innovations from the band."

Decorations
McArthur court will be decorated in a formal dress, stressing the simplicity in tone with national defense. A large replica of the Statue of Liberty will rise above the orchestra's platform.

Arrangements for the vocal soloist, Robert Johnson.

Spring Term Gun Sounds March 20

Spring term will start March 20 this year, the day students would ordinarily be leaving for spring vacations, according to information received Friday from the office of C. L. Constance, assistant registrar.

Schedule changes were worked out this week by University authorities, following a decision of the state board of higher education to speed up graduation by eliminating spring vacations and telescoping exam weeks.

Wednesday, March 18, the day after exams, will be a holiday. Spring registration will be Thursday, March 19, and classes will begin Friday, March 20.

This saving of time will bring classes far enough ahead to allow commencement day, originally planned for June 14, to be held May 31, a Sunday. There will be a regular exam week at the end of spring term.

Ball Stamps On But Not Pat

The president of the senior class will not be among those present tonight when University lads and lassies dance for defense in McArthur court at the first formal dance of the year, the annual Senior ball.

Pat Lawson, petite prexy of the senior class, went to the infirmary yesterday afternoon with influenza.

Although reported as "doing as well as can be expected," by nurses at the health service, Miss Lawson's condition will probably prevent her attendance at the ball, it was said.

THAT'S NOT BARBERSHOP

THE FATE OF THE FETE

There will be no canoe fete in the millrace, shown above, because of plans calling for re-routing of the race. Construction work on the new water course will not begin before summer unless present plans are changed. The construction would be necessitated because of a high water flood which tore out part of the retaining wall.
