

THE RAMPARTS WE WATCH

Seven Added To Education Faculty Staff

So that Oregon-trained teachers, irrespective of department, will comply to a uniform standard of excellence, the school of education has enlarged its faculty to include representatives from seven additional fields, Dean J. R. Jewell announced Tuesday. New faculty members represent all the schools or colleges in the University system now teaching future instructors.

List

The next University catalog will list the following teachers under the augmented school of education faculty:

Ernest G. Moll, of the college of arts and letters; Dean Victor P. Morris, school of business administration; Dr. Paul B. Means, college of social science; Dr. Charles H. Secoy, natural science department; Miss Maude Kerns, school of architecture and allied arts; Miss Maude Garnett, school of music; and Miss Janet Woodruff, school of physical education.

Unification

This move was made by the school of education to insure that all other schools, colleges, and departments which cooperate in teacher preparation will have a unified purpose—to make sure that the University as an institution organizes upon one basis its procedures in education of those planning to teach.

Formerly, the education faculty was made up of persons teaching only education courses, but the list now includes in addition:

(1) Instructors actually offering courses which grant credit in education.

(2) Those who regularly supervise student teachers, and

(3) Others appointed by the dean of the school of education after consultation with other deans to insure that at all times there shall be representation from the seven teaching fields mentioned above.

Improvement

For more than 20 years, the University had a committee on teacher placement. Since that group did not meet the problem of teacher preparation successfully, two years ago the faculty asked that the committee be abolished and an interdepartmental committee on teacher education be substituted. Now, it is felt that if the school of education has, instead of a separate committee, a revised and enlarged faculty, its purposes will be better accomplished.

Hope Hughes Names WAA Banquet Heads

Polly Ewan and Dorothy Gustavson have been appointed co-chairmen of the annual WAA awards banquet to be held sometime this month, by Hope Hughes, WAA president. Awards will be given to all outstanding girls in University athletics at that time.

At the last council meeting Elizabeth Hecht was named treasurer to take the place of Virginia Bubb who was declared ineligible. Rylla Hattan was appointed reporter when Jo Ann Supple failed to return to school winter term.

Initiation for new members will be held tonight at 7:45 in the social room at Gerlinger. All those accepting invitations to join should bring the dollar initiation fee.

Seven students comprised the first class that met at University of Michigan in 1841.

The U. S. coast guardsman in training will be shown in motion pictures today depicting opportunities with this branch of the service. Shown above are coast guardsmen marching and, left above, part of the training boats. An exam will be given for this work on May 13.

Cut Cancelled By NYA Office

Announcement made yesterday of a ten per cent cut in NYA assignments was cancelled today after the University NYA office received notification of an extra allotment for the present period, January 15 to February 15.

The office said that beside retaining present hour assignments for this period it will probably be possible to make some additional assignments.

Schedler Resigns Post On Campus Defense

Resignation of Martin Schedler as chairman of the student defense committee was announced last night by Lou Torgeson, ASUO president. Torgeson will take over Schedler's work for the time being, he said.

Schedler, Torgeson explained, resigned because of a heavy load of studies and outside work which would not permit him to give the attention to the defense committee he felt it deserved.

Two Five-Week Sessions

(Continued from page one) student "poll" which would endeavor to determine the courses most students would desire for summer sessions, and to ascertain how many students could be expected to attend. The curriculum, then, would be built on the basis of results of this poll.

Dr. Pallett said, however, that the poll probably would not be begun until a system of "education" had been carried out to inform the students in various fields of the advantages of summer school.

In last week's interview Dr. Pallett admitted that the prospect of summer school was not a pleasant one to most students, but said he felt they would rather attend summer school and graduate before they were called into armed service.

This optional summer school program is the substitute plan the state board of higher education proposed at its Portland meeting a week ago to be put into effect instead of the full "four-term school year." The University medical and nursing schools in Portland, however, have adopted the straight four-term year plan.

Help, Police!-- Girl in Chains Tells Her Story

Some people seem to always be losing their jewelry, but not Peggy Kemp, freshman in architecture and allied arts, in fact, she has not even taken some of her jewelry off for more than eight months.

Brunette Miss Kemp wears on her left arm eight silver bracelets that she put on the first week in June, 1941, and has not had off since. Two of the bracelets are made from a necklace her mother was given when she was engaged. A necklace that was a family heirloom has been made into two more of the silver bangles. One slave bracelet and three chains bring the total wrist ornaments the freshman girl wears to the total of eight.

"When I go swimming people are always reminding me that I haven't taken my bracelets off yet, but I never go without them, and I hope to keep them on for a year," Miss Kemp explained.

"Some people think that the weight of them has made my left arm longer, and I think maybe it has a little bit," she said as she held her arms out to compare their length.

The board indicated that it might institute the four-term year in 1943 if summer session enrollments this year seem to warrant such action.

Houses Asked For Soldier Aid

Recreational equipment for soldiers stationed in the Eugene area will be solicited from campus organizations this week by heads of houses, according to Winnie Green, president.

Solicitors are especially anxious to obtain cards, card tables, books, magazines, and phonograph records, Miss Green said. The USO does not provide for soldiers near Eugene, because there are fewer than 5,000 here, she explained, so the heads of houses will do the work.

A canvass of men's and women's houses will be begun in the next few days, she said, with an eye to "getting each organization to do all it can."

The drive will last as long as necessary to collect sufficient material for the projects. Solicitors follow:

June Tyler, Sally Murrow, Marion Gehring, and Florence Cooley.

Dr. F. Alton Wade of Miami university was chief scientist of the recently returned Byrd Antarctic expedition.

Pilot Trainees Get 4 PM Call

Spring term ground school for civilian pilot training is already underway, J. C. Stovall, coordinator, announced yesterday. All spring trainees, both primary and secondary, have been requested to attend a special meeting which has been called for 4 o'clock this afternoon in room 101 Condon hall basement.

Coordinator Stovall revealed that the entire ground school course will be completed here and that students will then be transferred east of the Cascades to a spot not yet designated, to engage in actual flight training.

Army Orders

This, Mr. Stovall explained, is in compliance with the army's request that no private or civilian pilot training planes fly in the region west of the Cascades since it has been declared a combat zone.

Subsistence of trainees will be paid by the flight operator during the time they are away from Eugene for flight training, Mr. Stovall revealed.

A new feature of the program is the fact that the age brackets for participants is now 18 to 26 years. Sophomore standing is still a requisite, however.

Quiz Session

Questions concerning plans of the course will be answered by Mr. Stovall during the meeting this afternoon.

It has been requested that the following men also attend the meeting, and see Mr. Stovall immediately: Francis Jordan, Bob LaFon, Hal Baker, Gregory Olney, Joseph Miller, William Matzler, Tom McKelvie, John Lansing, Roger Jayne, Robert Ballard, Charles Nelson, Bob Beckner, Robert Deverell, Eldon Lee, John Kramer, Carroll E. Samuel, and Edward Schiess.

McKinley Flies

Maynard McKinley, '41, is now at the Tex Rankin school in Tulare, California, where he is undergoing primary flight training for the U.S. army air corps.

The University of North Carolina, although an institution of the state, did not receive state appropriations for nearly 100 years after its founding.
