

HELLO DADS

OREGON Daily EMERALD

VOLUME XLIII NUMBER 75
UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, EUGENE, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1942

Camp Cancelled For Junior ROTC, Army Order States

THE FIGHTING MEN

Aide Reveals Further News Due to Follow

A radio bulletin received by President Donald M. Erb early this week from the ninth corps area army headquarters suspended summer training camps for juniors in advanced ROTC courses.

Major C. E. Knickerbocker, member of the military science department who accompanied the juniors last year during their six weeks' training at Fort Lewis, stated that no further orders have been received. The radiogram said that further instructions would follow soon.

Business as Usual

The military department will proceed according to plan until an official communication from the war department, Major Knickerbocker said. No reasons for the suspensions were given in the information received by President Erb and no substitute has as yet been proposed.

The need for officers with troops on active duty may possibly account for the order. Col. (Please turn to page three)

Above are Col. R. M. Lyon, left, head of the military science department, and Col. Charles L. Sampson, newly arrived instructor in military science. Colonel Lyon received word yesterday of the cancellation of summer camp for present juniors in ROTC.

Pre-Med Grads Hit All-Time High As 25 Advance to Portland Post

More University of Oregon pre-med students will enter medical schools this season than ever before in the history of the department, according to Clinton S. McGill, vice-president of the Asklepiad society, pre-med honorary.

Twenty-five students will enter the University medical school in Portland, one will enter Washington university in St. Louis, Missouri, and one will enter George Washington university in Washington, D. C.

Average number of pre-med students entering medical schools is about 15. The University school is accepting about 75 students this year, of which the University of Oregon will furnish one-third.

Honorary 100 Per Cent

The Asklepiad society has again gone 100 per cent in enrollment at medical schools, as it has in several years past. Of the 14 members of the society all but one will attend the University medical school; he will go to Washington university in St. Louis.

McGill pointed to the unusually large number of students from the University pre-med department who will be enrolled in the University school as being particularly notable because of the large field from which the University school draws. As the only medical school in the Northwest, he said, the school attracts students from Oregon State, Washington, Washington State, University of Montana, British Columbia, and Alaska, besides the University, not counting the dozens of smaller denominational and private schools such as Linfield and Reed.

May Go East

There are still possibilities that eastern schools will accept petitions of Oregon students, McGill said, since there enrollment peaks have not all been reached.

The following students were listed as "known to have gained admission to medical schools:"

(Please turn to page three)

Data for the Dads . . .

Registration in Johnson hall on Friday from 1:30 to 5 p.m. and on Saturday from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Deadline for registration for the house cups is 11 a.m. Saturday.

Friday, February 13

8 p.m. — Executive committee meeting. Office of President Erb, Johnson hall.

Saturday, February 14

10 a.m. — Annual business meeting of Oregon Dads, Guild theater, Johnson hall. (All dads are members).

12:20 p.m. — Oregon Dads' luncheon. John Straub Memorial hall.

3 p.m. — University of Oregon-University of Washington swimming meet. Men's pool.

2:15-5 p.m. — Open house on the campus.

3 p.m. — Program of music by the school of music. Music auditorium.

4 p.m. — Open house at Alumni hall, Gerlinger.

6 p.m. — Dinner with sons and daughters at living organizations.

8 p.m. — Oregon-Oregon State basketball game. McArthur court.

After the game dads will be guests of sons and daughters at living organizations.

JACK LANSING

(Courtesy of the Oregonian)

Filial Ducks Extend Glad Hand to Dads

Extending a filial hand, the students of Oregon will welcome today an influx of fathers to the campus for the annual Dads' day celebration. Jack Lansing, chairman, has been planning for the affair with his committee for the past several weeks and this weekend will see the culmination of his plans.

Unusual aspect of the festivity is the faculty-student-dads open house to be held Saturday at 4 in the Alumni room of Gerlinger. Students wishing to introduce their fathers to any faculty members should make appointments with them beforehand for the open house.

Dad's day signs must be displayed by campus living organizations by 11 a.m. today, Al Hunt, sign chairman, announced Thursday.

An executive committee meeting will be the only event scheduled for today. This will be held at 8 this evening.

Glamour

A note of glamour will be added to this year's program by the presiding presence of Dorothy Walthers, Valentine girl and official Dads' day hostess. Miss Walthers will be presented at the luncheon Saturday in John Straub Memorial hall.

Speaker at the luncheon will be Edgar Smith, member of the state board of higher education. Joe Riesch, head of the Oregon Dads, will be toastmaster.

Miss Walthers will also be present at the open house in Gerlinger and will meet all incoming trains containing dads. She will be at the Oregon-Oregon State basketball game that even-

(Please turn to page seven)

BOARD MAN VISITS

To enliven Saturday's luncheon for Oregon Dads Edgar Smith of the state board of higher education will address the gathering in John Straub Memorial hall. Joe Riesch, head of the Oregon Dads, will be toastmaster for the annual luncheon.

Dads' Day

The dads that come tomorrow will prove themselves full loyal squires.

They're making quite a sacrifice considering the price of tires.

—J.W.S.