Honor Roll of Service Lists 500 UO Alumni

Over 500 names comprise the University's honor roll of service—Oregon alumni who are in action with the nation's armed forces.

The listing, released by the Oregon Alumni association, credits the army with the majority, nearly four times as many as the navy. The navy claims twice as many as the marines.

Emerald Errs In ROTC Tale

An incorrect statement quoting a "semi-official" source appeared in yesterday's Emerald with the erroneous information that junior ROTC students would be commissioned 15 months later than previously believed.

"This is absolutely incorrect," declared Col. R. M. Lyon, head of the military department.

The results of the war department's order suspending the summer training camp between first and second year advanced ROTC training are:

1. Summer training will be postponed, not "cancelled" until after academic graduation. Juniors will thus be able to work this summer if they wish and can take their field work after their senior year.
2. The officers used in the summer ROTC training will be free for duty with troops.
3. After completion of University work, cadets will go to a training center, probably Fort Benning, Georgia, where they will receive 90 days intensive training required for their graduation from the military department.
4. Commissions will be given in the late summer of 1943, present plans indicate, not 15 months from then as yesterday's story might lead one to believe.
5. No changes in orders have been received concerning the commissions of this year's seniors, Colonel Lyon said. They will be commissioned in June.

Military Hop Sounds Off Igloo Pomp

University students will celebrate George Washington's two hundred tenth birthday with pomp and circumstance as they laugh and dance at the Military ball in the Igloo tonight. Highlights of the evening will be the announcement of the Little Colonel and her court, the grand march, and Scabbard and Blade pledging of between 30 and 35 military students.

One o'clock permission has been granted for the ball, which was made a major campus dance last fall.

Scabbard and Blade members will meet in the Igloo at 2 p.m. today to practice for the grand march. Salesmen should turn in military ball tickets at the ROTC building by noon today.

At 9:30 the ball will go on the air over KOAC in the first broadcast of a campus dance. Announcement of the Little Colonel, and the two Little Majors and Little Captains, description of the grand march and Scabbard and Blade pledging, and half an hour of Art Holman's dance music will be broadcast.

New 'V' Campaign Soars

By RUTH JORDAN

"The Wingless Victory" by Maxwell Anderson, a romantic drama of old Salem and the South Seas, will be presented by the University theater, Friday, Saturday, and Wednesday, February 27, 28, and March 4.

The play concerns a Salem captain who comes home from his voyage with a royal Malayan bride. Through the plotting of the small town, a conflict arises which serves to test their love. Ruel McQuestion, played by Chuck Boice, is the no-good son of a Puritan family. In the play,

Music Master...

Maestro Schedules 'Balanced Program'

By MARJORIE MAJOR

Two famous, colorful Britishers, Sir Thomas Beecham, conductor, and Miss Betty Humby, pianist, will appear with the Seattle Symphony orchestra in concert Monday evening at 8:15.

Third in the Greater Artists concert series, Sir Thomas will direct a balanced program of classic and modern music taken from Mozart, Berlioz, Delius, and Chabrier.

In celebration of the Pacific Coast Mozart festival, Sir Thomas has dedicated the first portion of the concert to his works.

Miss Humby

Miss Betty Humby will appear as guest soloist with the orchestra in the Mozart concerto No. 17 in G major for piano and orchestra.

The Seattle symphony has as concert master the famous Hungarian violinist, Francis Aranyi, who has been widely recognized as an artist in Europe.

Continuing the Mozart portion of the program, the orchestra will play the overture from the "Magic Flute" and the Prague symphony No. 38 in D major.

Berlioz

After the intermission, Sir Thomas will conduct the "Chasse Royale ac Orage" by Berlioz. "The Royal Hunt and Storm" is an orchestral intermezzo from the grand opera "The Trojans" which was built by the composer on the tragic story of Dido and Aeneas.

One of the six operas written by Delius, "A Village Romeo and Juliet," contains a symphonic interlude called "A Walk in the Paradise Garden." It describes the country lovers, Sali and Vrenchen, walking in the twilight. Delius is one of the modernists whom Sir Thomas has featured continually in the past few years.

The final melodic climax will be an orchestral rhapsody, "España," by Chabrier. In this rhapsody Chabrier combined vivacious, fiery Jota tunes and langorous Malaguena melodies in triple measure.

Students will be admitted with their educational activities cards.

Draftees Get Course Credit

Things began to look a little more hopeful for men to be drafted before the end of the term from the ranks of Oregon students Friday as word came from Clifford L. Constance, assistant registrar, that these men would get credit for courses they are now taking or receive a refund on their registration fees.

According to Mr. Constance, potential draftees need not worry.

Defense Bond Drive Begins

Representatives from campus living organizations will begin boosting defense bonds and stamps in their respective houses today at noon, according to Harry Prongas, chairman of the individual pledging campaign. The drive will end Sunday, Prongas said.

Houses achieving 100 per cent first will be prominently cited on a sign to be displayed in the Co-op store window, announced Prongas Friday night.
