

OREGON Daily EMERALD

VOLUME XLIII

NUMBER 83

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, EUGENE, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1942

Miss Jepson To Talk Here At Silver Tea

Miss Helen Jepson, singer, concert soloist, and star of the Metropolitan opera, will speak at a silver tea in behalf of "Bundles for America" at the alumni room, Gerlinger, Thursday at 4:15.

Miss Jepson, who was here several years ago under the concert series, is making "Bundles for America" her main interest, according to Mrs. Mary E. Brockelbank, chairman of the tea. Proceeds from the tea will go to the local chapter of Bundles for America.

Singing at a concert at Corvallis tonight, Miss Jepson will be in Eugene Thursday, then on to Salem, where she will sing Friday.

While here, she will be the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Robert D. Horn.

Dr. Erb Hears Dorm Group

Members of the dormitory food investigation committee met Monday and Tuesday afternoons with President Donald M. Erb to discuss ways of conserving food costs in their living organization. Charles Lundquist, senior in business administration, Hall Simmons, sophomore in business administration, and Dick Elenett, sophomore in business administration met with President Erb on Monday. Dan Mercer, senior in architecture, met with the group also at their Tuesday parley.

The student group will meet with Mrs. Genevieve Turnipseed, director of the dormitories, and Miss Helen Goodenow, dietitian for the dorms, at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon to discuss further improvements in dorm conditions which have been suggested by students living in the dorms.

Old Stuff

We would liked to have wrote on the snow.
'Twould have made a good pome as you know,
But the Ninth Army area
Would have had mass hysteria,
So we just had to let the thing go.
—J.W.S.

NEW RESERVES FOR THE CROW'S NEST . . .
... Bob Hasson, left, relieves Harry Glickman, center, and Al Popick at the air raid tower atop the libe.

Ethereal Gazers Spy More Than Cute Gals

Taking sunbaths in spring-like weather, huddling around a couple of heaters that don't work in cold weather, or whistling at coeds and playing cards in any kind of weather isn't the only thing that inhabitants of the observation post find to do, in spite of indications to the contrary at times.

Vitally important since the recent bomb-scare, the observation post has direct connection with the Eugene filter center in the armory, where reports of planes are sent.

Six men's living organizations, Chi Psi, Beta Theta Pi, Phi Kappa Psi, Theta Chi, Sigma Alpha Mu, and Kirkwood Co-op are now taking over the 24-hour shifts, each house supplying two-man crews.

Last Month

Living organizations running up and down the ladders last month were Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Chi, Sigma Nu, Alpha Tau Omega, Kappa Sigma, and Phi Delta Theta.

In charge of the observation post, under Dr. Luther S. Cressman, head of the anthropology department, is Bruce Hamby, John Warren, and Lou Torgeson.

Only staff members are allowed to brave the hazards of ladder climbing, and no one else is allowed on the roof of the library, according to Dr. Cressman.

Possible

Even an air attack seems possible after Monday's coast shelling and the observers are always on the look out for such a possibility.

Since no civilian planes have been allowed in the air, excepting regularly scheduled transports and mail planes, it is a near certainty that the drone of a powerful engine through the night sky means a war plane in deadly seriousness.

Whenever a plane is heard, or seen in the daytime, a small report blank, supplied especially for the purpose, is filled out and the information phoned in on the post's special wire to the filter

(Please turn to page eight)

Woman's World . . .

Coeds to Elect Chiefs Thursday

Three elections under one gavel will be held Thursday at 11 a.m. in Gerlinger hall when officers for the AWS, WAA, and YWCA will be nominated and elected by the assembled coed population of the campus, according to Elizabeth Steed, president of the associated women students.

Nominations for the AWS election will be presented by the senior members of the AWS cabinet, following a rule inaugurated last year. Other nominations may be made from the floor, say election officials.

Eligibility

Grade eligibility is to be checked by phone as soon as floor nominations are made. Kwamas, sophomore women's service honorary, will be on hand to pass out ballots at the door.

Positions open are president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, sergeant-at-arms, and reporter. WAA and YWCA elections will be held after the AWS balloting.

Officers of the AWS for this year are Elizabeth Steed, president; Maxine Hansen, vice-president; Marge Dibble, secretary; Nancy Riesch, treasurer; Marge Curtis, sergeant-at-arms; and Barbara Lamb, reporter.

WAA

WAA officers are Hope Hughes, president; Gertrude Puziss, vice-president; Mary Anderson, secretary; Virginia Bubb, treasurer.

YWCA officers whose offices expire at the end of the year are Lois Nordling, president; Abbie Jane White, secretary, and Betty Pratt, treasurer.

Summer Plan Shows Gain

"Nearly every department of the University will offer courses during the summer sessions; the principal exception is the law school," Dr. Dan E. Clark, director of summer sessions, said Tuesday. In past summer sessions law had been offered but this year it is eliminated because of a lack of demand for law courses.

The summer sessions catalog will be ready for distribution about March 25 when interested persons may obtain copies.

Med School

Students desiring to enter medical school or nursing will find that numerous preparatory courses are obtainable. Mathematics will interest those who wish training for the army and navy. A full schedule of social science courses will be offered including economics, geography, history, political science, psychology, and sociology.

Arts, Letters

In arts and letters courses in English, French, Spanish, and German will be offered as in regular sessions. The art school will offer a variety of courses. The physical education department will offer an unusually large range of courses for summer sessions.

The school of education will be busy with a large number of teachers. Many teachers will be working for their high school teacher's certificates.

Expectations

Former summer sessions have numbered as many as 900 students. Last summer's sessions enrolled 713 in the first and 323 in the second session. More campus students than usual are expected this year, but there may possibly be a decrease in out-of-state students.

Dr. Clark stated that it is impossible to estimate the numbers at this time since no one knows how war conditions will affect education.

During summer sessions school will start at 7:30 a.m. with full hour classes and 10 minute inter-

(Please turn to page eight)

Silent Film Almost Talks

A silent film that almost talks, today's educational activities movie, "The Passion of Joan of Arc," is a culmination of many silent techniques, a portent of the talking picture.

The film is largely made up of enormous pictures of faces, separated by dialogue titles. It is in reality a gallery of living portraits which drew forth tremendous acclaim and was hailed as a "work of art" on its release in 1928.

Casting

The casting of the picture is remarkable, especially for the time the movie was filmed. Each player was chosen and presented as an individual in the real world instead of as a famous and highly paid favorite charmingly inter-

(Please turn to page eight)

Needs More Than a Collar . . .

Cruelty Takes Subtle Form In 'Victory'

By RUTH JORDAN

Cruelty in its most subtle form will be the high point of the characters the Reverend and Mrs. Phineas McQuestion, played by Adrian Martin and Pat Lawson in the romantic drama, "The Wingless Victory."

Heads of a plotting ring to rid Salem of Oparre, Nathaniel McQuestion's bride, they display the type of cruelty that was typical of the old Salem days of the 19th century.

Phineas

The Reverend Phineas McQuestion is one of the town leaders. He shows clearly his hatred of Oparre, and he tries through the most subtle methods to make Oparre, a stranger in a strange land, unhappy.

Mrs. McQuestion is a typical wife of the puritanical era. Obed-

The date of "The Wingless Victory" has been changed from March 4 to March 5 because of the all-star basketball game being played in McArthur court that night.

ient, acquiescent, complacent, and good natured, she is willing to believe that men are superior to women.

There is a display of East Indian curios in the circulation section of the library. They were loaned to the drama division by Mrs. Paul Means and by Dr. Weatherby.

Tickets

All those desiring tickets, please call at the ticket office in Johnson hall sometime before Friday as the tickets are selling fast.

Salem, Massachusetts, the setting for the play, was originally named Schemeceta, and later changed to Scholem, or with the English spelling Salem.

JEAN PERSON . . .

. . . Wingless Victory's Mrs. McQuestion

ADRIAN MARTIN . . .

. . . for three days, a Maxwell Anderson character.