

Harvard Man Will Present Third Lecture

Howard E. Wilson, associate professor of education at Harvard university, will present the third University lecture of this term at 7:30 Friday, according to Dr. R. H. Ernst, who is in charge of the series. Dr. Wilson's topic will be "What Does Education Face in the Future?"

The lecture, to be given in the faculty room of Friendly hall, promises to be interesting to faculty members and especially to students, said Dr. Ernst. Mr. Wilson has taught in Wisconsin and at Chicago, and is now engaged at Harvard in training teachers for the social studies.

Among his publications are "Mary McDowell, Neighbor" (a biographical study of one of Chicago's best-known social workers), "The Fusion of Social Studies in Junior High Schools" and "Education for Citizenship," a recently published report of the social-studies section of the Regent's Inquiry into the Character and Cost of Public Education in New York State.

Mr. Wilson is co-author of a textbook in United States history and of a series of social-studies readers for the elementary grades. In addition, he has contributed widely to periodicals of both general and educational natures.

At present, Mr. Wilson is participating in the Community-Study Project now being carried on by the Progressive Education association.

Marine Corps Visitors To Show Flickers Here

Applicants to the marines will be reviewed and accepted during the visit of the two officers.

Seniors accepted will be ordered to training in May. Juniors and sophomores will remain in inactive service until graduation.

Max Brown, sophomore in social science, now holds the position of basketball manager of the Westminster team. Wendell Jensen formerly held that position but since he enlisted in the army it has been vacant.

Dr. Didrik Arup Seip, former rector of the University of Oslo and visiting professor of Norwegian at the University of Minnesota, is reported to be a prisoner in a Nazi concentration camp.

Catalog Issued For Mail Study

The correspondence study catalog for the school year 1942-43 is now ready for publication, according to Miss Mozelle Hair, head of the correspondence division. The catalog will include descriptions of courses for entrance credit and college credit.

Also to be included in the catalog are: directions for registration, expense, hours of credit that may be secured, and a list of faculty members connected with correspondence work. An application blank is provided in the back of the catalog.

Miss Hair reports that the booklet will be of interest to students in every county in Oregon, also in other states. Last year 27 states and Washington, D.C., were represented in University correspondence study outside of Oregon, as were Alaska, Canada, Hawaii, and Japan.

It is expected that the catalog will be ready for distribution in a few weeks.
