

Champagne Waltz . . . It's Their Turn Now; Men To Get Flowers

By JANET WAGSTAFF

Corsages will be boutonnières at the Champagne waltz, annual reverse dance, in Gerlinger hall tomorrow night, from 9 to 12 p.m.

In line with the rules for the girl-date-boy affair, flowers will be for the male contingent. Their girl escorts will not wear corsages.

Art Holman's orchestra will make music for the event sponsored by Gamma Alpha Chi, national women's advertising honorary. Intermission will feature a spring fashion show.

Mary-Ellen Smith, chairman, has named ten girls to assist in arrangements. They are: Kathleen Brady, head of ticket sales; Bette Workman and Maxine Cuning, decorations; Barbarajean Tuttle, publicity; Pat Wright, patrons; Emily Tyree, program; Anita Simons, orchestra; Betty Mae Lind, clean up; and Marilyn Marshall and Jeanne Routt, fashion show.

Tickets will be $1 a couple, and are now on sale at all women's living organizations. Free tickets will be awarded to the two who sell the most tickets.

Judges Guard Cover Secret

Who is the "Emerald Cover Girl?"

Who is the girl whose full-page photograph will appear on page 1 of the largest Emerald ever published March 5?

The business staff and judges are guarding the secret closely as they schedule picture appointments for the cover girl and the 13 finalists with downtown Eugene department stores.

No Vacation

Absence of spring vacation this year means that University students will do more shopping in Eugene, Fred O. May, business manager, said. With this in mind department stores are stocking heavily in the "latest fashions."

Approximately 10 pages will be composed of fashion shots of these latest fashions plus features and a section devoted to men.

Publication Date

Coinciding with the publication date of the special issue will be the unveiling of store windows at 7:30 p.m. For the first time since blackout restrictions street lights will be turned on.

"Local advertising staffs are doing marvelous work," May reports. Working directly under Betty Jane Biggs, advertising manager, are 10 departmental managers.

Managers

The managers are Jeanne Routt, Russell Snelser, Walt Thurston, John Jensen, Leith Brown, Lee Earlow, Margaret Deane, Barbara Thompson, Anita Simons, and Marilyn Marshall.

Elizabeth Edmunds is in charge of national advertising. Special layout work is being done by Professor Frank Short's retail advertising staff.

The library display department has arranged a special display case dealing with the spring opening under the direction of Peggy Magill.

WAA Banquet

WAA officers nominated and elected in the Thursday coed assembly will be introduced and installed in their new positions.

Committees in charge of the banquet are as follows: Program—Gertrude Puziss, chairman, Margaret DeCou, and Babs Du Puy; Flowers—Maribeth Rodway, chairman, Lucille Yungen, and Evelyn Collins.

More Chairmen

Invitations—Florence Cooley, chairman, Kay Thompson, and Dorothy Horn; Finance—Elise Older, chairman, Kathryn Brady, and Alice Trullinger; Decorations—Edith Onthank, chairman, Helen Barklow, Mary Louise Vincent, and Elsie Brownell.

Publicity—Rylla Hattan, chairman, Bea Schum, and Helen Coothorides; Arrangements—Grace Williams, chairman, Susan Hufaker, and Pauline Smith.

Eleven Patients Held In Campus Hospital

Down to just two lonely cases of measles, German measles and the three-day kind, things are in such a sad state in the infirmary, that there's nothing left to featurize.

The solitary eleven in the infirmary are: Helen Luvaas, Maxine Cuning, Betty Stockwell, John McKinney, Hal C. Fredericks, Sidney Nicholson, Harvey Fielder, George Mengelcock, Robert Rowan, John Hediger, and Jean Thomsen.

Kerr to Give Second Talk

Commander R. E. Kerr, United States navy, retired, who spoke to University naval reservists last Tuesday night, will present a second talk tonight dealing, as before, with naval customs, etiquette, and traditions. His address will begin at 7:15 and will be a continuation of Tuesday's talk.

Commander Kerr will be glad to answer all questions after the formal talk which is again to be held in the faculty room of Friendly hall.

A large turnout of naval reservists and those preparing to enlist in the naval reserve is expected as well as representatives of the University faculty.

Next Wednesday Night...

Game Ticket Sales Boom For Star-Studded Tilt

By JOE MILLER

The all-star ticket sale has gotten off to a fast start with several living organizations going 100 per cent short hours after the sale began Tuesday morning. The first men's organization and the first women's organization to go all out in the drive to fill the coffers of the student defense fund chest, will be awarded cups and announced at the game next Wednesday, Harry Prongas, co-chairman reported.

A special prize for the organization having the most members at the game will be given, it was decided. Stubs will be counted at the gate and the award will be made between games. Also receiving their cups will be the Sigma Nus, IM "A" league champions, and the Sigma Chis, "B" league title holders. Betty Kincaid will present the Sigma Nus their cup and Jane Williams, SX sweetheart, will present the Sigma Chis theirs.

More sparkling entertainment has been added to the between games show. The AOPI, Pi Phi trios, and two men's choruses are going to sing "As I Sit and Dream at Evening" and "Blues in the Night." "Hotlick" Hallock has arranged some "strictly uptown stuff" in conjunction with Bob McFadden and his orchestra, while Earle Russell has a new and hotter version of the famous "Oregon swing yell." Victor records will be there to record it for the Album of College Medleys.

Ticket distribution for the affair has been in the hands of district chairmen, Marge Dibble, Elizabeth Steed, Jean Spearow, Bud Vandenynde, Bob Cherney, Pat Cloud, Emerson Page, Stan Hager, Maury Salomon, and Ken Bowes. Any people living out may get their tickets by contacting these people, or buying them from the Kwama booth in front of the Side the mornings of March 3 and 4. Tickets are selling at 15 cents. Rusk Hudson, director, revealed. (For story see shrdlu aoacmfwao (For story of teams see sports page.)

'Wingless Victory' Sails Stormy Seas Of Prejudice, Hate

By RUTH JORDAN

"The Wingless Victory," to be presented Friday, Saturday, and the following Wednesday in the University Guild hall, is named for Nathaniel McQueston's sailing ship.

The Salem captain comes home from the Celebes in the South Seas with a royal Malaya bride, Oparre. The finger of fate is against her, however, and the small town will not receive her.

Ultimately, the force of opinion of bigoted plotting comes between the eastern princess and her western husband. The conflict builds to a thrilling climax through which the strength of the love between Nathaniel and Oparre is tested.

Adventure Lover

Nathaniel McQueston, played by Dick Turner, is a lover of adventure. But, tired of the life of a sailor, he comes home to Salem with a newly-acquired fortune and a bride.

Instead of finding the peace and quiet that he expects, he finds a town unwilling to accept his strange bride. A romantic character, Nathaniel has always enjoyed the spice of adventure on the seas.

Oparre, played by Dorothy Durkee, is the proud daughter of a sultan. She has every attribute of a civilized woman. She reads and speaks English beautifully.

Mrs. McQueston, played by Jean Person, does not welcome Nathaniel's wife. She is a great woman, cool and dominating, and because of her domination, she is the head of her house.

She takes in Nathaniel and his bride, but only because there is so little money that it is necessary. Phineas and Mrs. McQueston plot the exile of Oparre.

The Other Woman

Faith, played by Patricia Howard, is the other woman, but she lacks all characteristics of jealousy. She is gracious and cautious, lends sympathy to Oparre, and knows how to mind her own business.

Ruel, played by Chuck Boice, is the only sincere friend that Oparre has. He is a charming good-for-nothing, and coming from a wealthy family, is pleasure loving. The loss of wealth by the family does not mar his personality.

The Rev. Phineas McQueston, played by Adrian Martin, is one of the town's leaders. Although he lacks the coolness and dominating qualities of his mother, he is one of the ringleaders who plot against Oparre.

Venture, wife of Phineas, played by Pat Lawson, is a typical wife of the tight-lipped Salem days. Obedient, acquiescent, good-natured, she is willing to accept the fact that men are superior to women.

Happy Penny, played by Alan Foster, is jovial, gay, and sympathetic. He discovers the plot to get rid of Oparre. He is especially sympathetic to Oparre.

Toala, a slave, played by Loraine Long, is a Malayan girl whose mind is filled with only one thing—the well-being of her mistress.

She wins a test of endurance when in rehearsal she assumes a crouched posture with knees slightly bent and head bowed over a period of four consecutive minutes. A Malayan servant in the presence of royalty, she is expected to sustain this obeisance without quivering an eyelash or trembling a knee.

Others in the cast are: Jared Mungo, Jim Bronson; Winston Uquhart, Bob Farrow; Letty Magdalina Mola; Durian, Charlotte Louise Means; Harry, Frank Loomis; Van Zandt, Frank Loomis; a girl, Kathleen Daugherty.

The production dates of the play are February 27, 28, and March 5. The last date is changed from March 4 to 5 because of an all-star basketball game being played in McArthur that night.

Jerry Lakefish and Aldine Gates will broadcast over KORE this afternoon at 4:30 to publicize "Wingless Victory."
