

The record book is straight now. Turner has taken care of that. No more do the sports writers need to argue whether the Northern Division scoring record is 187 as set by Wally Palmberg or 191 as disputedly set by Laddie Gale. All this is cleared up now.

And while all the spectators filed out of McArthur court Tuesday night, muttering about the tall, gangling Vandal left-hander who rang up 13 points, and about the broken glasses incident which came near to ruining his chances; jubilation reigned in the Idaho locker room.

Hero-Worshippers Grab Autographs

A crowd of hero-worshipping high school and grand school lads were crowding around the very popular Turner thrusting pencils and scraps of paper into his hands asking for autographs. Turner was tired—not just from the game but also from the emotional load that had been removed from his shoulders.

With a flock of questions being hurled his way Turner had one of his own to ask too: "How many points did I get anyway?" When told it was 13 and that he had a total of 192 he just shrugged his shoulders, and scrawled out another lefthanded signature for some bright-eyed admirer.

Gale came down in the locker room and flash bulbs flared as camera men grabbed pictures of the two. Turner still had the number 15 jersey on but changed it for pictures to the usual number 14 that was still flecked with blood.

He and Gale Talk Trade

He and Gale talked over the feelings felt by a player when the chance of breaking a record are in store. Turner said, "After the very first basket I felt like I'd do it. But those baskets were hard to get." Gale had a "I know how you felt" to add to that.

Somewhere over in a corner one of the players yelled to Turner, "I think I'll start shooting lefthanded. Turner didn't have much to say about breaking the record or records. When asked how he felt about it he said, "I don't feel much different—I'm glad it's over."

Guy Wicks, stolid Idaho coach, came into the dressing room late. He walked over and warmly congratulated Turner and then started muttering about the refereeing which, though many might have missed it in their anxiety over Turner's breaking the record, was somewhat rank.

Wicks Wasn't Happy

Wicks had expressed his feelings on the record business Monday night after Idaho dropped the first game to Oregon. "It's ruined the ball club," he said. "We haven't been able to play basketball in the last four games." He pointed out that the fault didn't lay with the players. Turner tried to play his usual game and the players tried not to feed him any more than usual but crowds egged both Turner and mates on.

Later when talking with Hobson Wicks admitted that it was tough to try to coach a team with a potential record breaker on it—which Hobby could take with a sly grin.

Hobby had the same thing for four years in a row; two years with Gale, then John Dick and last year Vic Townsend.

Nor was the record breaking epic without its laughs. Up in the sports writers' row a bit of comedy passed unnoticed by many. It dated back to the fact that Dick Strite has accepted Laddie Gale's total of 191, scored in a 20-game schedule but tabulated on but 16 of the games, discounting the four Montana games, as the record. Gregory has maintained Palmberg's total games, as the record. Gregory has maintained Palmberg's was the only record.

On the Lighter Side

When Turner damped in the record breaker and Bruce Hamby announced over the PA system that Wally Palmberg had sent congratulations for "breaking his record" Strite sat with a deep scowl on his face. To even things up Hamby added, "Gale has also sent his congratulations." They can forget their feud now. They've only got one record to talk about now.

It was obvious in the warmup session that Turner had a much better chance to turn the trick than he had the previous night. He had loosened up. He didn't tie up on his shots and after the game started and he had got his first points, the crowd could feel that the mark was going to tumble.

Another humorous angle lay in a remark jokingly made by Hobson Monday night. After a conversation with Mr. Gregory Hobby laughingly said, "I think we'll plan on letting Turner have about 11 points Tuesday, just enough to break Palmberg's record, and then hold him so he can't break Gale's." What happened, Hobby?

Frosh Cagers Complete Good Season

University of Oregon's freshman basketball team completed its hoop campaign in successful fashion last weekend with two victories over The Dalles and Baker high schools. The Ducklings defeated The Dalles by a score of 47 to 40, and downed Baker by a 40 to 30 count. Both games were on the losers' floors.

12 Wins, 3 Losses

The Frosh record for the season stands at 12 games won and 3 lost. Coach John Warren's hoopsters triumphed in their annual "little civil war" series with the Oregon State Rooks. After losing the first game by a score of 38-30 at Corvallis, the Frosh came back to win three straight, 44-35 at Eugene, 64-45 at Eugene, and 66-55 at Corvallis.

The other two defeats included a 72-52 trouncing at the hands of McKee's Bakers, state AAU "B" champs, and a 43-40 loss to Salem high. The other victories were over leading prep teams in the state, and include Tillamook, Rainier, Astoria, Springfield, and a win over Salem. The Ducklings also defeated the strong Springfield CIO team and the Vancouver, Wash., high school quintet.

Leading scorer for the freshman team was sharpshooting Sammy Crowell, guard from North Bend. Crowell netted the hemp for 173 points for an average slightly better than 11 points a game. In second place was the other guard, hard-driving Al Popick, who hails from Lincoln high in Portland. Popick scored 125 points for an average of over 8 points a game. Roy Seeborg, forward from Astoria, also cracked the 100 mark, tallying 109 points, despite the fact that he was out of a couple of games because of illness. The frosh hit for a total of 686 points during the season.

Good Material

Members of this year's Frosh team, considered one of the best in many years, are expected to hold down varsity positions next year. Considered potential varsity calibre are Crowell, Popick,

Swim Teams Clash by Wire

Universities all over the country will take part in the telegraphic swimming meet being held this afternoon and Monday at 5.

The individual schools telegraphs their times to a central point which is Los Angeles this year. Last year the Oregon team placed fourth nationally, breaking several national records.

The team is composed of: Marnie Foster, 100-yard crawl, 60-yard medley relay, and 100-yard backstroke; Pat Lynch, 40-yard breaststroke and 100-yard breaststroke; Margaret Leshner, 40-yard backstroke, 100-yard backstroke, 40-yard breaststroke; 60-yard medley, and 80-yard relay; Helen Gilson, 60-yard medley, 40-yard backstroke, 40-yard breaststroke, and 80-yard relay; Jeanette Neilson, 40-yard crawl; Pat Carson, 40-yard crawl, 60-yard medley, and 80-yard relay; Nancy Lewis, 40-yard crawl, 100-yard crawl, and 80-yard relay; June Hitchcock, 40-yard crawl; Jean Quinn, 40-yard breaststroke, 40-yard crawl; Neva Haight, 40-yard crawl; Janet Farnum, 100-yard crawl; and Adele Canada, 100-yard back.

Seeborg, Bob Erlandson, and Jack Hannam, who round out the first team, and Bill Bloomquist, Don Asselstine, Paul Floquet, Leonard Popick, Royal Denton, and a host of others.

Dr. Wood to Travel

Dr. Hugh B. Wood, professor of education, plans to go to Cottage Grove Tuesday, March 10, meeting with school teachers there. He will discuss their curriculum program with the teachers and give them suggestions for improving it.

Intercollegiate athletic competition has been abandoned by Bard college.

Coed All-Stars Picked for Fray

Outstanding players in girls' intramural basketball have been chosen for two all-star teams which will play the final game of the season Tuesday at 4:45.

On team one are forwards Hazel Oldfield, captain, Pat Howard, Margaret Shieler, Ethel Dixon, Jean Morrison; guards Shirley Wiggins, Ann Craven, Dorothy Gustafson, Dorothy Richards.

Forwards on team two are Pat Carson, Elaine Dahl, Nancy Lewis, Mildred Thomas, guards Mary Alderson, Betty Workman, Aileen Eccles, captain, Mary Louise Vincent, and Marianne Blenkinsop.

Hayward Issues Call

In the high hurdles, Hayward has Kramer, Bob Simpson, Zenas Butler, Dunc Wimpres, and Rolph Fuhrman. Fuhrman has yet to recover from his basketball bruises before he can be useful on the hurdles.

Zenas Butler, a senior, ran the low hurdles last year, but may be converted to the high rails. Bob Simpson, sophomore, is playing spring football and may have to recover from his bruises before he comes around.
