

Scholarship Applications Deadline Set

Applications for the State Board of Higher Education scholarships for 1942-43 are due in the president's office by April 1. Blanks may be secured from Miss Helen Tillman, secretary, president's office, first floor Johnson hall.

Approximately 85 scholarships will be awarded to both graduate and undergraduate students desiring to attend the University during the academic year 1942-43. They carry a value of $66 applying toward annual charges totaling $103.50. For out-of-state students value of the scholarships amounts to $216.

Grade Point

To be eligible, a student now attending the University of Oregon must have a cumulative grade point average of 2.50 and must be in need of financial assistance. Approximately one-half of the scholarships are awarded to high school students desiring to attend the University.

Applications will first be considered by a local committee composed of: Dr. Earl M. Pallett, chairman; Dean Virgil D. Earl; Dr. C. L. Huffaker; Dr. Waldo Schumacher; and Miss Janet Smith.

Editor Seeks Scripts

Mr. Charles D. Anderson of New York, associate editor of the college book department of Macmillan company called on Dr. Calvin C. Crumbaker, professor of economics, Monday. Mr. Anderson was checking on MacMillan books in use here and was looking for new manuscripts.

Skits from the variety show will be presented at the ASUO assembly Thursday. Jim Bronson, script writer, and Jerry Lakefish, director, have gathered campus singers, comics, and "characters" for a fast-moving show Friday night.

Defense Funds

Proceeds from the dance will be used by SDX for the purchase of civilian defense equipment. Mayor Elisha Large of Eugene has proclaimed Friday "MacArthur Day" for the city.

The chamber of commerce has approved the celebration and has invited Palmer Hoyt, publisher of the Portland Oregonian, to speak to a chamber forum Friday noon. Business houses and all citizens are asked to display flags Friday.

Big Events

At the ISA meeting Monday several questions of importance were brought up. These will be discussed at the meeting this afternoon.

Members of the University's Women's Athletic association planning to attend the annual All-College Sports Day, to be held on the Oregon State college campus on April 25, are asked to sign the list on the Gerlinger hall bulletin board before 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Heads of Houses announced yesterday that due to rushing, all desserts have been cancelled for this week.

More Positions Open For Future Teachers

There are more teaching vacancies and fewer instructors to fill them now than at any time during the last 15 years, according to Dr. Carl L. Huffaker, professor of education. Teachers' salaries have been boosted approximately 10 to 17½ per cent, he said. The teacher placement season is a month early this year.

It is, therefore, reported that there is need for a considerable number of students to prepare for teaching at the present time, particularly those prepared combinations involving three subjects. Openings are now available for those who have had a minor of 24 hours in physical education and health, a minor in home economics, or training comparable to a minor in music.

The placement bureau also reports a lesser demand for teachers, preferably in English or social science, who have taken from 6 to 12 hours in library science and practice.

Orides' Officers

Jeanne Smith was officially installed president of Orides, independent Oregon coeds, Monday at formal ceremonies in the alumni room of Gerlinger hall. Scholarships were awarded Velita Estey and Alice Bailey at a formal dinner for officers, members, and special guests after the installation.

Other newly installed officers are Joanne Nichols, vice-president; Betty Jean Walker, secretary; Jean Mellies, treasurer, and Lorraine Mason, sergeant-at-arms.

First Aid Added

Through cooperative arrangement with Dean Ralph W. Leighton of the School of Physical Education and the American Red Cross, the general extension division plans to offer a number of additional first-aid courses throughout the state in the future. One such class is now established at Condon, Oregon, under the instruction of Dr. George G. Gaunt, medical doctor in that community.

The class began last term and is expected to last through spring term. Carrying three hours of university credit, the class leads to Red Cross standard and advanced first-aid certificates.

"That interminable waiting is what gets you," he says. His advice is: "to have a book to read, one that may be fairly hard but which will do you some good if you master it, and to have a little hobby, perhaps."

Ensign to Talk On Naval V-7

Ensign Frederick J. Whittlesey, Jr., of the Portland navy recruiting station, will speak to persons interested in class V-7 of the naval reserve in 103 Deady at 7:30 tonight. His topic will be "The Training Program After Graduation." Plans will be made at the meeting for a course in navigation to be given this term to senior students.

A graduate from the University in 1937, Ensign Whittlesey was a major in business administration. He will be on the campus March 25 and 26 with the naval examining board.

Open to juniors and seniors, class V-7 provides for completion of a training program to commission students as ensign in the U. S. naval reserves, designated as deck and engineer officers. Those enlisting in the classification will be deferred until graduation.

Dr. Smith Receives Fossil Specimens

Dr. Warren D. Smith received four specimens of fossil horse skulls from Dr. Chester Stock of California Institute of Technology recently. Dr. Smith worked with Dr. Stock while on leave of absence last term. Dr. Stock has done research in paleontology in many parts of Oregon.

The skulls received were casts of Eohippus, Meshippus and Miohippus and the actual skull of Poebrotherium, a primitive camel once inhabiting Oregon.

The skulls will become parts of an eventual collection in the Natural History Museum showing evolution of horses and like species.

Defense Assembly Set

(Continued from page one) charging of first aid supplies, securing kits for each house, preparing these materials, and buying supplies wholesale. Morrie Stein will represent this group. Alpha Delta Sigma, led by Jim Frost, is to design and distribute informative posters for general display on the campus.

Every student defense worker's name and function will be filed in which will also construct a mass duplicate through the Druids, ter organization chart. This chart is to be displayed in the lobby of Johnson hall to acquaint the average student with defense committee arrangements. Ray Packouz is to be Druid spokesman at today's meeting.

Rescue Work

Rescue work will be assigned to Sigma Delta Psi, represented by Ray Dickson. This group will also register personnel and contact them for the faculty section. Eleanor Engdahl is to represent heads of houses at the assembly. This group, taking charge of emergency food service, will establish uniform distribution points on the campus should an emergency arise.

Three Red Cross organizations, under the direction of Marge Dibble and Ann Reynolds will be: (1) Kwamas, knitting—Rhoda Harkson; (2) Phi Theta Upsilon, sewing—Corrine Nelson; (3) filter and supply center—Caroline Holmes. These divisions will receive expense slips and personnel blanks, then adjourn to a separate room to complete organization.

It is necessary and extremely important that all air raid wardens be present at today's meeting. For a complete list of wardens, see page 3 of Tuesday's Emerald.

4. The German navy might dash boldly into the Atlantic seelanes; an attack on Iceland could occur at any embarrassing moment.

5. A combined drive between the Germans and the Japanese towards a conjunction of their forces at India would be curtains for Asia and the isolation of Russia.

6. The Japanese have a wide range of action: Alaska, India, Australia, or Vladivostok.

What's in the Wind?

Against these terrible possibilities there were straws in the wind that the United Nations had something up their sleeves besides cloth. Yankees arrived in Ireland; in Australia; in unannounced ports of the world. Chief of Staff Marshall announced the beginning of offensive thinking—defensive thinking has failed England was stirring with plans for offensive action against western Europe; John Bull was through with the worn-out soporific, "the aft-laid plans of mice and men gang a gley. . . ." Instead, there was a feeling of boldness, of impatience, of challenge: Norway or Brittany must be under consideration—the Commandos had felt the regions out, British troops were being supplanted by Yankee in Ireland.

Everything speaks eloquently for a holding action in the Pacific, and a bold thrust at Germany's western flank . . . 1942 is the deciding year.
