

Col. Crissy Visits Here

Col. John W. Crissy, former assistant professor of military science and tactics here, visited the ROTC barracks Monday to carry on a routine administrative inspection as ROTC officer for the ninth corps area.

Colonel Crissy was with the military department here until orders came last winter sending him to Fort Lewis for active duty with troops.

Since leaving Oregon, Colonel Crissy has been appointed ROTC officer for the western reserve area with headquarters in Fort Ogden, Utah.

On this tour he will visit colleges and universities in Pacific coast and mountain states.

He observed that the department here was functioning efficiently and spent the afternoon visiting his officer friends in the barracks.

He dived out of an open window, raced to a waiting car driven by Bobbie, his moll, and escaped. But finally justice took its course at a dessert with the Fees and Arthur was plunked into the stocks. All that night Neu labored to get him out. . . .

Jam for Breakfast

Marvelous to think that Ellington has four men who have been with him twenty years as of March of this year. To think that one man could have had the guts to defy the American public for two decades, and played as he liked to, eventually to find the patronage of a select few who wanted the truth in music, is indeed inspiring.

In the 60-yard medley Stanbery proved his superiority over Conyne by reversing positions to triumph in 41.6. Walt Kresse grabbed the one-point place for the Phi Deltis. But the Sig Eps came right back to submerge the Phi Deltis in the 120-yard medley relay and cinch the meet. Harris, Conyne, and Van Lydegraf were the winning SPE trio in fast time, 1:16.4. # Justice Moves In Odd Ways

Justice moved in a contradictory pattern Saturday as two different verdicts were handed down in the trice-tried moot trial put on for the benefit of visiting 4-H club members, by third-year law students.

The same set of facts, wherein Ed Luckey accused Frank E. Day of negligently flinging a baseball bat and thereby injuring him, were presented to two sets of 4-H club jurors. The first time the plaintiff was awarded $168.60 and in the next trial put on at 2 o'clock the defendant came out on top. Two trials were necessary to accommodate the large numbers of visitors interested in the legal procedure.

Orlando J. Hollis, acting dean on the law school, presided as judge. Defending Day were John L. Luvaas and Irvin L. Mann while the plaintiff's case was pressed by Charles A. Phipps and Mary Jane Wormser.

Witness for the defendant was Hull Phillips and Cecil Wright testified for Luckey. Leon F. Olmstead acted as bailiff of the court with Jeanette Hafner acting as clerk for the proceedings.

Other new officers are Kenneth Griffith, outgoing president, now vice-president; Florence shumaker, secretary, Eyley Brown, treasurer. Mrs. Parker, Mrs. Shumaker, and Mr. Brown are all new members that have taken the place of Gerda Brown, Ethan Newman, and Robert Horn.

Vacation Boosts

A surprise was given by-standers when Val Culwell, right guard, took over quarterback duties for the White team. Whether the husky lineman will continue at that post or will return to his old position has not been disclosed.

A 45-minute rock-em-sock-em scrimmage closed the workout. No particular point was stressed but all details were gone through quite thoroughly.
