

Quartet Will Play Musical

Mozart, Beethoven, and Ravel will be represented on the program of the Coolidge string quartet in its concert here Monday, April 20, at 8:15 p.m., in the school of music auditorium.

Quartets by these three composers will be played by William Kroll and Jack Pepper, violins; David Dawson, viola, and Naoum Benditsky, violoncello, who comprise the quartet.

Founded in 1936 under the sponsorship of Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge foundation of the library of congress, Washington, the quartet has played throughout Canada, Mexico, Honolulu, and the United States and are noted for their radio programs from Washington, D. C.

William Kroll, a native New Yorker, began his musical career at 10 when he began studying under the late Henri Marteau in Berlin. Back in New York he continued his studies under Franz Kneisel at the Institute of Musical Art from which he was graduated with highest honors. He was a violinist of the Elshuco Trio and first violin of the South Mountain Quartet before helping to found the Coolidge quartet.

Jack Pepper, also American, was a scholarship student at the Eastman school from 1928 until 1930 and also studied with Leopold Auer. He played for three years with the Los Angeles Philharmonic under Otto Dlemperer.

David Dawson of Virginia studied at the Juillard school under Hans Letz and Felix Salmond. After graduation he became solo viola of the National Orchestra association under Leon Barzin; later he was a member of the Metropolitan Opera orchestra. Later he was principal viola of the Minneapolis symphony under Dimitri Mitropoulos.

Naoum Benditsky, Russian, at 13 had won a scholarship to the St. Petersburg Imperial Conservatory, and at 16 was solo cellist of a major Russian orchestra. In the United States he has been a member of the Gordon string quartet.

Tickets for the concert will be on sale Friday, Saturday, and Monday at Miller's. Admission is $1 for the main floor and 50 cents for the balcony, reserved for students.

Navy on Deck-- With New Cards

Here's a new deck of cards for bridge fiends to translate. There aren't any queens, kings, or jacks in the deck of 66 but they are all face cards—signal flag cards of the United States Navy.

On the face of each card is a flag with its interpretation on the reverse side along with its equivalent in Morse code and semaphore signaling. As all naval reserve students must be thoroughly familiar with this signaling device they might do a little pre-school training with the cards over a coke.

The Co-op has the cards in stock.

Lost, One Hand; Who Owns It?

Screams and gasps issued from the drafting room of the architectural building yesterday as students suddenly gazed in horror on a blood smeared human hand.

After recovering from their first scare, students screwed up their nerve and took another look at the hand to discover that it was actually a plaster of paris model smeared with red paint.

The "hand" was pushed into the faces of unsuspecting students by Bill Cox, sophomore in architecture and allied arts, who recently found the object in the basement of the apartment house where he lives.

Psych Convention Set for May 9

Dr. Lester F. Beck, associate professor of psychology, announces the annual meeting of the Oregon Psychology association, to be held on the campus of the University of Oregon, May 9.

Well-known psychiatrists from Portland, the director of the Oregon Public Welfare committee, representatives from the University psychology department, and other interested persons will attend the convention.

"The date of the meeting may be advanced one week to May 16," Dr. Beck said.

Grads at Fort Lewis

Lowell Dick and Lloyd Beggs, both graduates of 1941, reported to members of the faculty that they are now stationed with the army at Fort Lewis, Seattle, and expect to be sent overseas soon. They both majored in journalism while attending the University.

Oregon Retail Meeting Set

In war time retail distributors have special problems such as price trends and their effect on merchants, government regulations, inflation, advertising. There is very little they can do about these problems except discuss them, so the merchant-members of the Oregon Retail Distributors' institute will meet on the Oregon campus for their sixth annual conference to discuss their mutual problems Wednesday and Thursday, April 15 and 16.

Dr. Victor P. Morris, dean of the school of business administration, will preside over the sessions, which will open Wednesday night with a banquet in the Osburn hotel.

Notables Speak

Speakers include Dean Morris; E. A. Burkitt, president of the institute; Thomas L. Willis, president of the institute; Thomas L. Willis, president of the Northern Wholesale Hardware company, Portland; Dr. N. H. Comish, professor of business administration; G. Vandeneynde, manager of Sears, Roebuck, and company, Salem; Thomas Parkinson, proprietor of Parkinson's Food Market, Roseburg; Frank Nau, president of Frank Nau's Drug company, Portland; Arvin Cole, president of the Federation of Advertising Clubs of Portland.

M. L. Solomon, manager of the Arden Millinery Shop, Portland; Lloyd V. Ramp, Lester Ireland and company, Hillsboro; Claude E. Hall, proprietor of the Waldport Market, Waldport; W. V. Merrill, manager of Murphy's Feed and Seed company, Albany; Roy Morse, manager of Broadway, Inc., Eugene; W. T. Switzer, manager of Montgomery Ward and company, Eugene.

University Delegates

Three University delegates will attend the meeting of the Northwest student scientists, to be held in connection with the meeting of the Oregon section of the American physics teachers in Corvallis, April 25, it was announced Tuesday.

According to Monroe Shelley, chairman of the local science group, those who will attend will be Randall Caswell, Eugene; James Watson, Gooding, Idaho; and Borys Malkin, Eugene.

Alum in Marines

Lieutenant William R. Curry, former University student, is with the fleet marine force in the South Pacific waters. He went into service a year ago this April as a permanent appointee in the navy. He attended the local high school in Eugene, and then the University and later the North Pacific Dental college in Portland.

With 13 stations scattered throughout the state carrying the program, the University of Wisconsin band is in its fifth year of broadcasting concert music.

Mid Terms Due Week Earlier

Mid-term grades are due today. Were it not for the "acceleration" of 1942, and a cancellation of spring vacation, mid-terms would be still another week away. Students would still be dropping courses and starting such new courses as the following which were added this spring term:

Art education, general bacteriology, Greek prose composition, history of the book, physiography of the United States, second-year Norwegian, trade regulations, Red Cross home nursing, instructor's first aid, and human parasitology.

The curtailment of mid-term cramming time by a week, however, permits closing school a week in advance of the original plan for 1942. Spring term ends May 29.

Dr. Ganoe Speaks

Dr. J. T. Ganoe, associate professor of history, spoke to the Rotary club at their Tuesday noon meeting. The theme of the day was Pan-Americanism and Dr. Ganoe, an authority on the Latin American countries, spoke of the growing solidarity, relationships, the history of the movement, and ways of improving relationships.

Attends Meeting

Miss Leona Tyler, instructor in psychology, left Eugene Friday, to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the Northwest Personnel association, held in Seattle this weekend. The weekend committee plans the program and future meetings of the association. The association is composed of persons interested in personnel work and its development.

One hundred twenty engineering, science and management defense training courses are now underway in Texas.
