Sing Groups Get New Time - 7:30

Plans are proceeding apace for the all-campus sing, with the time set for 7:30 Saturday evening; the place, McArthur court.

"Things are proceeding as planned," Bob McKinney, chairman of the sing, said yesterday.

Judges for the sing will be announced shortly. Dr. Theodore Kratt, dean of the music school, will invite them to serve, and he has said that they will be impartial, out-of-town musical experts. Particularly has Dean Kratt stated that they will judge on musical quality alone, and not tend to lean in favor of classical works rather than popular ones.

Withdrawals

Several houses have withdrawn from the sing; among them Chi Omega, Alpha Gamma Delta, and Phi Sigma Kappa. About 27 groups will enter the competition. The results of the sing will be announced the same evening.

As an experiment in spontaneous singing by a large group, the entire body of songsters will unite in presenting a traditional Oregon song, "As I Sit and Dream at Evening," as a grand finale.

Dress will be informal for the

All contestants are requested to come in a body at 7:15 p.m.

Conference to Feature Dr. Hunter, UO Alum

Dr. Harold Benjamin, dean of the college of education at the University of Maryland and graduate of the University here, will be one of the guest speakers on the program of the State Educational conference, to be held in Monmouth April 25, it was announced yesterday.

Dr. Frederick M. Hunter, chancellor of the state system, will discuss "The Teaching Profession Enlists for the Duration," as one of the principal speakers at the conference. The conference will be held at the Oregon College of Education.

Queen Ellie I Rules at Party

Queen Eleanor Engdahl, presiding beauty of Junior Weekend, will first be formally introduced to her fellow class members at a junior class party next Tuesday, Earle Russell, chairman of the party, announced Thursday. The party will be in Gerlinger hall from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Also presented for the first time will be the queen's court of four princesses: Milodene Goss, Margaret Sleeper, Dorothy Greer, and Frances Cox.

Open House

The party is open to all junior class members and no class cards are needed. It will be a no-date affair. By invitation of junior classmen, members of other classes will be admitted.

The party's program will feature a song sung to the tune of "Of Thee I Sing." The words will be dedicated to the queen and are written by J. Wesley Sullivan, junior in journalism. The song will be introduced by the Alpha O trio.

Flag

The flag of the junior class will be presented to the queen at the party. Refreshments will be served and after the program there will be music for dancing.

Joe Montag, junior in business administration, is assisting Russell in his work.

'Susy-Q's' Try Solitary Cells

Susan Campbell hail, not to be outdone by representation of the Greeks in the infirmary, have sent two of their Susies to the dark recesses of the quarantined hospital. Isolation signs flaunted in any potential visitor's face have kept the number of sympathizers down to a minimum.

Still infirmed in the infirmary are Gaynor Thompson, Virginia MacMahon, Mary Ann Campbell, Jean Hoover, Maxine Wyse, Marie Gobel, Jerry McCroskey, Helen Fleming, Harold Maddren, Robert Yancey, Mary Bovine, and Berdean Day.

Blood Bank Enlists Greeks

Within one year it is expected that every able bodied fraternity man in the country will have given at least one pint of his blood to the American Red Cross blood bank.

Under the direction of the executive committee of the National Interfraternity conference, which is composed of over 60 national college fraternities in the U.S. and Canada with approximately 2,500 chapters, the organized blood donation will be made in cooperation with the American Red Cross.

War Effort

Adoption of this mass blood contribution is part of the conference's search for ways in which national Greek letter groups can aid in the furtherance of the war effort.

John M. MacGregor, chairman of the conference, sent a copy of the resolution to President Roosevelt stating that the National Interfraternity conference "offers to assist in organizing the student bodies of the American colleges and universities to the end that every student may appreciate the need of his donation to the much needed blood bank."

MacGregor also declared in his letter to the president, "among the undergraduates we have already found a very enthusiastic response. The donation to the blood bank is one way in which the fraternities can make a practical and valuable contribution."

Show to Have UO Art Work

Members of the faculty and students from the school of architecture and allied arts are busy this month preparing entries for the annual All Oregon artists' show, according to Mrs. Mabel Houck, secretary of the art school.

This is the second show of its kind sponsored by the Portland Art Museum. Last year several University people entered and some of their work was sold. All entries in the show must be for sale and the museum is planning to sell at least 10 pieces, according to the latest bulletin received at the art school from the Portland museum.
