

Music Week Highlights Morale Lifts

"American Unity Through Music" and "Music Maintains Morale" are the two keynotes chosen for National and Inter-American music week, which will begin on May 3.

This institution will be observed at Oregon by three events: a University orchestra concert on Sunday, May 3; a harp recital on Tuesday, May 5, and an advanced violin recital by Verne Sellin and Helen Horner on May 7.

Latin-American Music

The week is designed to emphasize the harmonizing qualities of music, and the atmosphere it creates of sympathetic understanding, comradeship, accord, and common interests. Throughout the United States groups are being urged to play more Latin-American music, and more music by native American composers.

Through schools, churches, libraries, clubs, museums, radio music will be emphasized as a means of bringing about better accord. Representatives of such organizations as the Metropolitan Opera Guild, ASCAP, and the National Association of Schools of Music are on the active committee. Chairman of the honorary committee of governors is Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mayor to Set Music Week

Elisha Large, mayor of Eugene, will publish a proclamation opening music week officially in Eugene on the first day of the week. Sunday the University orchestra will lead off with their concert at 3 p.m. in the music auditorium.

Featured on their program will be "Symphony Moderne," by Max Steiner, and "Classical Symphony" by Prokofieff. Other numbers will be Nicolai's "Merry Wives of Windsor" and the "Emperor" waltzes by Strauss. Rex Underwood, professor of music, will direct the orchestra.

Next on the list of music week celebrants are the harp ensemble, directed by Mrs. Doris H. Calkins, instructor in harp. The ensemble consists of Dorothy Bruhn, James Gibson, Lynn Alexander, Maxine Cuning, and Sally Calkins. Assisting the ensemble will be the University quartet and members of the University orchestra.

Music Ensemble Program

Their program will include: "Dances Sacree et Profane" by Debussy, "Bohemian Song" by Skroup, "Au Monastere" by Haselmans, "Little Chinaman" by Smith, "Last Rose of Summer," "Two Guitars" by Horlick, and "Introduction and Allegro" by Ravel.

Verne Sellin and Helen Horner, advanced violinists, will be presented in recital on Thursday evening, May 7, concluding the observance of music week at Oregon. This is the first advanced violin recital of the year. The pair will present as main works on their program: Saint-Saens' "B flat minor Concerto" and Mozart's "Concerto in A major."

Miss Durkee Says

The picture of calm, efficient and unruffled most of the time, Dorothy occasionally lets up and takes a nap on the drama studio couch. "Oh, I am responsible to Mr. Robinson, and then I take care of lots of the mechanical things and organizing," she said.

This assistant manager is reluctant to talk about herself, and constantly bursts out with some new angle of "the show." "Really, you'd be surprised—it's really professional in lots of ways, and we've got a large budget, so the stage craft is really going to town. You should see those stairs Jim Bronson built; they go clear above the balcony seat level for the Capitol scene."

Then she turned to serenely answer the fifth telephone call and listen to the woes of the third visitor in the last half hour.
