

Book Contest Closes; Men Take Honors

By PEGGY OVERLAND

The winners of the student private library contest, sponsored annually by the University library as a feature of Library Day, which was Saturday, May 2, and Sunday, May 3, were announced last Saturday. John Speer, Eugene, won the $10 first prize in the undergraduate division, while the $5 second prize was awarded to Billie Wade, Condon. Prizes for the best graduate student libraries were of the same amounts, and were presented to John Gross, Eugene, graduate assistant in English, who won first prize, and to Austin Ranney, Corona, Cal., graduate assistant in speech, second prize.

Libraries Displayed

The winning student libraries and others entered in the contest, were on display during open house Sunday, May 3, from 2 to 5 p.m., in the main corridor of the first floor of the library. Other first floor exhibits were: in the circulation lobby, the Caroline Sweetser collection of water colors of Oregon plants and wild flowers; a war information center; a selection of books purchased during the past year from the Henry Villard endowment fund; World War medals from the Dr. Frederick W. Skiff, Portland, collection; an exhibit from the Eugene collection; and displays of student work from the school of architecture and allied arts.

Other Exhibits

In the Adelaide Church memorial room (browsing room) on the first floor, were displayed additions to the Pauline Potter Homer collection, including Currier and Ives prints reproduced in color; also leaves from famous Bibles. The Burgess collection of rare books and manuscripts were displayed in the Burgess room, and the Angelus collection of historical pictures in room 150 on the first floor.

Second floor exhibits included: war posters and recent gifts of books in the map room, 210; the A. R. Sweetser collection of herbals and printing by John Henry Nash in the open shelf reading room; fine printing in the John Henry Nash room; a demonstration of the use of microfilm, a process whereby books, papers, and magazine articles can be reduced to microscopic size, then projected for reading, in room 204; exhibits from the Braille collection of books for the blind were in room 221 and exhibits from the rare book collection in room 223.

Gift

The Philip Ranney Brooks memorial library, a gift of Mrs. Josephine Brooks, Portland, was open to visitors on the third floor. In the graduate reading room and east corridor of the same floor were displayed the Oregon and University collections; recent books of Oregon authors; pioneer diaries; and the Charles E. Wagner pictures of early athletic teams, with other gift photographs.

YW Songfest Set for Tonight

College songs, spirituals, and songs everybody knows will be the order of the day at the all-campus sing tonight from 6:30 to 7:30 on the YW bungalow lawn, Master of Ceremonies Fred Beardsley announced today.

All students are welcome to attend, according to Chairman Jenelyn Gaston.

Several Houses Take Part

Several sorority and fraternity living organizations have been selected to sing at the affair. Following each of these songs the students will join in on the choruses.

Houses which will take part in the songfest and the numbers that they will sing are as follows: Alpha Tau Omega chorus singing "When You Come to the End of a Perfect Day"; Pi Kappa Alpha trio with "Old Black Joe"; Pi Beta Phi trio, "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot"; and the Alpha Omicron trio selection is yet to be chosen.

All-Campus Winners to Sing

Fred Beardsley will lead the sings and Shirley Holcomb will accompany them. Winners of the all-campus sing, Alpha Tau Omega fraternity and the Alpha Omicron Pi sorority are tentatively scheduled to sing their winning selections.

Standard Oil Co. Offers Seniors Jobs

Miss Janet Smith, University employment secretary, said Wednesday that graduating seniors interested in permanent positions with the Standard Oil company, should contact her at her office in the YMCA house.

Miss Smith also announced that male stenographers are in great demand in the offices of the FBI, and that she will discuss these possibilities with anyone with a deferred rating.

ISA Elections Open Today

Independent students will pause for a few minutes today, forget the humor that has come forth concerning politics since a campus production of political life has taken the spotlight, and seriously consider whom they will elect to lead them for the coming year as officers of the ISA.

Elections in Gerlinger

The men's lounge on the main floor of Gerlinger hall will be the scene of the election and the polls will be open from 12:30 to 5:30 in the afternoon. Each independent should bring some identification, preferably their activity card. Names will be checked from a complete list of independent students which the election board has.

"This is expected to be one of the most important elections of the year because a new cabinet will lead the independent students in what should be their biggest year on the campus," was the statement of Max Brown, co-chairman of the election. George Moshier is the other chairman of the election board.

Candidates for Office

Candidates for the office of members at large are Dick Walling, Leighton Platt, and Al Larsen. Two of these will be elected, one to serve as president of the ISA senate and the other to be president of the cabinet.

Candidates for the senior representative are Alene Gardner and Paul Thurston. Junior nominees are Aaron Jones, Audrey Lynds, and Norman Mannheimer. Sophomore candidates are Felix Asla, Malcolm McCallum, Marian Schaefer, Audrey Holliday, Louise Rickabaugh, and Doris Nordstrom.

Returns of the election will be announced in Wednesday's Emerald.

All independent students are eligible to vote.

Former UO Student Takes Alaskan Job

Lawrence Thompson, former student of the University, left Eugene, last Thursday, April 30, for Fairbanks, Alaska, where he has been assigned to an engineering project in connection with the national movement for defense of the vital areas in Alaska. Thompson, who was in his sophomore year here, was majoring in pre-engineering and was intending to continue at Oregon State and obtain a degree in the course.

Absent All Summer

Vice-president of the Yeomen organization, independent men students of the campus, and former member of the honor company in the ROTC, he will be absent all summer as army engineer of this project, but according to former plans, he will return in October and register for the continuance of his course at the University.

Thompson obtained the position because of previous experience on road work during the summers, and although he has not been permitted to give details of the work, he is expected to be in Fairbanks for the next five months.
