

Jim Newquist Injured In Football Scrimmage

'Yellows' Nip 'Greens' 7-0

By BILL PHELPS

John Warren ran his newly inherited Webfoot football squad through one of their last sessions of spring practice yesterday in a scrimmage that saw a sophomore-studded yellow team unfurl a brilliant passing attack to defeat the greens, 7 to 0.

But more important than the score of the intersquad scrimmage was the condition of Jimmy Newquist, carried off the field with an injured hip in the first quarter. He was under observation last night, and it was feared that he may have chipped his hip bone.

Reynolds to Deeds

Bob Reynolds and Scotty Deeds teamed to form a passing combination that set the greens back on their goal line in the first quarter and they never recovered.

Late in the first quarter, Reynolds unfurled a pair of thirty-yard heaves that put the Golds within scoring distance, and a minute later a short pass to Deeds placed them on the nine.

Reynolds plunged to a first down on the six, and another pair of plunges put them within inches of the goal line, from where Len Surlles went over. Bill Mayther kicked the point.

"Yellows" Drive

A little later the Yellows had again driven to the ten-yard line, but Erickson intercepted one of Reynold's passes on the five, and galloped 65 yards to the thirty before he was pulled down. But the Golds stiffened there, to end the only Green threat.

Late in the last quarter, the Golds threatened again, with Deeds and Reynolds alternately running the ends, but the clock caught them on the 20-yard line.

baseball; two terms, tumbling and apparatus work, for development of arms and shoulders. Other terms will be optional, but must be taken from the above list.

Out

"Badminton, quoits, deck tennis, and light sports are out," Dean Leighton stressed.

Excuses will be granted as at present according to the head of men's physical education. He added that any man able to pass a physical given at the beginning of each term will be excused for that term.

This program, in which the coaches and P.E. school will work together, is patterned after that recently adopted by Oregon State college. The plan was drawn up by Clair Langton, director of physical education at OSC; Howard Taylor, of the University defense council; and George W. Peavy, dean emeritus of the school of forestry at OSC, and now president of the defense council.

Credit

The amount of credit to be given for these courses has been referred to the faculty senate.

At the meeting the faculty also approved for recommendation to the state board new courses in mathematics, geology, and geography. These will supplement studies preparatory to military service.

Make Up Games

The intramural games rained out April 30, will be made up this afternoon. The same schedule as posted for that date will be followed.

Vezie Accepts Coaching Job

Manny Vezie, end coach under Tex Oliver last football season, has accepted the position of assistant coach to John Warren, it was disclosed by Anse Cornell, graduate manager, yesterday.

Vezie runs a boys' camp in California during the summer but will report to his post at Oregon the first of September and remain through November 28.

Vezie is a graduate from Notre Dame and serve under the old master, Knute Rockne.

Recruit Ranks

a graphic picture of the various plans offered by the Army, Navy, and Marines, enabling students to continue in college, is designed to show the requirements demanded, the opportunities offered, and the advantages of each deferment program.

The registrar's office has requested that all students who leave for service with the armed forces withdraw through the regular channels. If they follow this procedure they will be issued a statement of credits earned which will greatly assist them in obtaining assignments to special work for which they are fitted.

That the individual may receive the best information available, the committee has appointed counsellors for each classification. The list includes: ROTC, Col. Sampson; medical corps, Dr. H. B. Yocom; quartermaster corps (Army), Dean Victor P. Morris; Air Corps, James C. Stovall; and V-1, V-7, special commissions, and merchant marine, Dr. C. F. Kossack.

Sophomores should especially be on the alert. Many sophomores do not realize it, but the Navy's V-7 program is open to them also. The program is not, however open to sophomores under 20.

World's Largest

pirants will be on hand in the Igloo to serve 6½ pounds of "The World's Largest College Yearbook" to respective owners. Emerson Page, business manager of the annual, warned that students should bring some form of identification, be it athletic card, activities card, or driver's license. No Oregon receipt will be necessary.

The rest of the 2,850 yearbooks are expected this weekend. "First come—first served" seems to be the theme of the distribution today. Distribution is expected to continue through Friday, providing the rest of the books arrive.

Girls First

University women will get the first chance at the Oregon, because most of the men will be handling rifles until 3. However, it is hoped that there will still be enough left today for ROTC students after drill, Page said.

No books will be given to friends of students, unless the friend has a signed note giving him permission to annex the book.

Wilbur Bishop, retiring editor, will not be on the campus to see his 9.26 tons of yearbook handed out to those who have put up their $5 or $5.50. After 2 years as director of the University's yearly publication, Bishop has journeyed to Klamath Falls for flight training. Wes Sullivan, managing editor of the book which will be distributed today, will be guiding the publication next year. Jeff Kitchen is the new business manager.

"If all of the annuals printed this year were stacked back to back," Page, in his usual pasty voice, told a reporter yesterday, "they would make a pile 415 feet 7 inches high!"
