Student Vote To Determine Final Status

The yell leader will become an ex-officio member of the ASUO Executive Council if a constitution partially passed by the Executive Council yesterday receives approval of students at large at a coming campus-wide vote.

A four-to-three count approved the yell leader as a non-voting member. Les Anderson, student body president, cast the deciding "aye" to break a three to three tie.

The final vote was: Marge Dibble, Carolyn Holmes, Nancy Riesch, and Les Anderson, yes; Hal Locke, Wes Sullivan, and Ray Schrick, no; Walt Dickinson, Max Brown, and Jim Bennison, absent.

Those in favor of adding the yell leader as an ex-officio (non-voting) member contended that even though many affairs which come before the committee do not affect the yell squad activities directly, almost an action has either a direct or indirect effect on rally spirit. They also emphasized the all-importance of school spirit, which the Executive Council must promote as part of its work.

Those opposing the move were in favor of including the yell leader as an ex-officio member, but only in affairs which directly concern yell activities. They maintained that the yell leader is chosen on an entirely different set of qualifications from other ASUO officers and therefore is not necessarily qualified to voice opinion on such questions as class cards, and scholastic eligibility which are farther removed from the more specialized rally work.

Air Corps Board Says UO Men 'Look Good'

"The boys looked good today." This was the greeting extended Lieut. James A. Carvin, public relations officer for the traveling Air Corps examining board which is visiting the University campus this week.

"The University deserves a pat on the back," continued Lieutenant Carvin. "Sixty-one applicants were given the mental test. Of these fifty passed the examination. This is a high percentage of 82. Usually in a group of this size from twenty-five to forty per cent fail."

Applications for enlistment are being accepted from men 18 to 23 years of age. If a student is inducted into the reserve he is deferred until he completes his college courses.

The men who passed the mental tests today will be given the physical examination tomorrow.

The board will remain in Eugene as long as it is deemed necessary, however, as soon as it appears that there are no more applicants they will depart. Mental examinations will be continued tomorrow.

The board, consisting of: First Lieut. William A. Miller, president; First Lieut. Lawrence G. Gilbert, Second Lieut. Robert M. Tuttle, and Captain Donald M. Corgill, medical officer, is under the command of Lieut. Co. William A. Matheny senior officer in charge of Aviation Enlisted Reserve in Oregon.

Regarding the University's reaction to the program, Colonel Matheny said, "I am highly gratified at the response received from the University of Oregon. I would like to urge all men interested in the program to appear for examination."

Cocktails

Eating cocktails with a fork is really out of tune. It would be much more practical To eat them with a spoon.

Spearing bits of fish or fruit Has gone to a pretty pass, And I always hate to leave that sauce

At the bottom of the glass.
