

The Last Word

By MARGE CURTIS

A "short but sweet" spring term draws to a close with but one more weekend of social doings before coeds exchange formal and date dresses for slacks and comfortable studying clothes.

Saturday night brings another formal Mortar Board and the more fortunate campus males will be royally entertained by the fairer sex. The majority of women's houses are planning dinners before the dance, AWS is sponsoring its annual flower sale, and the gals are robbing penny banks to provide the required cokes, transportation, coat checks, and what not. Remember to extend to your date all the courtesies to which you would feel entitled—opening doors, assisting him with his coat, furnishing cigarets et al.

Suits and heels should prove popular at the Eugene Gleemen's concert Sunday in McArthur camp, but, as we've said before, campus clothes are perfectly acceptable for such affairs—with the exception of wooden shoes!

And that's —30— for this year!

Coed of the week...

Little 'Ruthie' Hall Has No Rule--Gets Success

By BETTY ANN STEVENS

Previous to meeting Coed of the Week, Ruth Hall, the tentative theme of the interview was to be "The Private Life of a Phi Bete" or "Secrets of a Brain," but small, unassuming "Ruthie" immediately dispelled any such false impression, as she led the way up to "third" of the Kappa house.

Seated on the edge of the couch, she hastily explained, "This isn't my room. I lived here for a month at the beginning of the term, but I'm living at home now."

Authority

That she has more than an air of quiet authority was confirmed by her admission that she held the presidency of her house last year, was Panhellenic president, in WAA, an Amphibian, an on the AWS council, besides making Phi Beta Kappa—"That was the biggest surprise of my life. I can't get over it yet," she exclaimed.

"Our five Phi Betes? I think it's phenomenal. I've never heard of such a thing!" She paused, then added, "Of course they took in a lot more this year. Maybe that's what accounts for it."

"My formula for academic success?" She impulsively giggled, then said, "I don't know—it's sort of up to the individual. I'm sure I'm no authority—Just work out a study program."

Displaying a Phi Delt pin beside her Kappa key, "Doug David." She admitted that she got it Sunday night.

Pins

"Freshmen taking pins? Now listen—I'm no authority! Don't quote me on that," she remonstrated laughingly.

"My childhood? Well, ahem!" She chuckled mischievously, "I caught a fish once. I was so excited I couldn't stand it." She went on, "I used to be a girl scout."

"Making fire with sticks?" she answered. "No, it rained that day."

Being a girl scout was a help, for she was a camp counselor for one summer.

interesting when you get to know them, don't you think?" she seriously remarked.

"When I graduate?" She glanced up at the ceiling, and said, "I'm interested in personnel work, but I'm not very settled yet. I'm going to get a job."

She smilingly apologized, "I guess I've lived quite an ordinary life. Isn't that sad?"

Howling Time Set For Dance

It's a women's world... this is our weekend to howl... Mortar Board is rounding the turn Saturday night...

AWS is sponsoring their annual flower sale in the women's living organizations... Corrine Nelson, general chairman of the sale, announces that carnations are available in white, red, or maroon... also adds that rose buds, gardenias, or any other flower may be ordered...

Thankee

THANKS TO... Carolyn Holmes and Marge Dibble for their swell campus luncheon arrangement... saved a lot of confusion... made it easier on the servers, too... by the way, the food was rated as A-1...

MORTAR BOARD... even with all the newly tapped members, Mortar Board gals have their hands busy getting ready for Saturday p.m. Billie Christensen, president of the honorary, states that the decorations will necessarily be simple because of the music contest to be held in the Igloo that afternoon... no matter what, Mortar Board promises to be one of the best attractions of the year...

Kwama

A big feature of the dance will be the tapping of Kwama members for next year... all freshman girls are urged to go... who knows...

Which reminds me that several activity minded freshmen have been asking Rohda Harkson, Kwama president, and Marge Curtis, Phi Theta prexy, how to get on the Mortar Board...

It's a women's world, all right... See you Saturday.

Boys Switch W.A.A. Date Lines For Evening

By LOIS HULSER

The usual line, "I'll be down in a minute" will be used by the men this weekend as coeds go to fraternities to take their dates to the Mortar Board ball. Joe College is sure to wash his hair Saturday" and just can't do a thing with it!" Of course the tailors of all days had to be late and he's oh, so sorry to keep you waiting for that's something he just never does! He hates to trouble you but would you mind slipping these things in your pocket (holding out a bunch of junk)?

Sororities are entertaining at formal dinners before the dance. As Joe walks into the Igloo (first) he realizes he has an opportunity to get more than a fleeting glimpse of a program. He probably hasn't really read one since last Mortar Board unless he was on the committee for the dance raising funds for Bundles for Greek Row.

Matrimony reversed activities this year and did pretty well leaving only four Mortar Boards to present the big dance. They will deck the Igloo with palms

Thirty-one University women were initiated into the Women's Athletic association at the final initiation of this year held last week.

New members are: Janice Thompson, Dorothy Larson, Margaret Murphy, Helen Gilson, Sherry Sheridan, Marnie Foster, Mary Aldrich, Frances Bacon, Mary Lou Bath, Virginia Campbell, Betty Casteel, Connie Crockett, Molly Dachtelberg.

Ruth Foreman, Berniece Davidson, Jeanne Gill, Barbara Gunning, Gerd Hansen, Marjorie Hoffman, Ardis Jensen, Muriel Lay, Sue St. Pierre, Harriet Noyes, Phoebe Smith, Martha Jane Switzer, Yvonne Umphlette, Lucille Younger, Mary Alice Lawson, Betty Lou Cramer, Dorothy Case, and Jackie Klein.

from six o'clock Saturday evening and set the stage for the last formal of the year. Betty, Steedie, Helen and Hope will prove they are really competent activity women.

The Kwama tapping ceremony between 10 and 10:30 will be accompanied by Art Holman's music.

From here on in weekends are closed and books should be open.
