Emerald Captures All-American

For the fifth consecutive year, the Oregon Daily Emerald was awarded a rating of All-American by the National Scholastic Press association, it was announced Monday evening at the Emerald banquet. The rating was based on news values and sources, news writing, headlines and typography, and special departments.

All-American is an award given to seven of the top student daily publications in the nation this year. The Emerald was the only college daily in the northwest to receive such a rating, according to the national board of judges for college newspapers.

Editor Helen Angell and Managing Editor Ray Schrick headed the publication which won this rating for the fifth time. The honor was first held here in 1937-38 when LeRoy Mattingly won the distinction of being Pace-Maker.

Editor in 1938-39, when the Emerald won All-American for the second time, was Paul Deutschmann. Bud Jermain in 1939-40, and Lyle Nelson in 1940-41, also edited an All-American Emerald.

Specific comments by the judges on the work in the Emerald follow: "Crisp, straightforward news handling," "Editorials are very well done—there is an excellent variety of topics," "Uniformly high degree of life in paper."

Oregon Students Slap Japs by Proxy

Two Fliers Help in Raid

Two University of Oregon men were with the group that came out of the sky April 18 to shower Tokyo with bombs.

Lieutenant Robert S. Clever and Lieutenant Robert G. Emmens were the University men who participated in the attack. Each has been awarded the distinguished service cross.

The attack was the first in the current war on the capital of the Japanese empire. Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle led his 79 men in the raid from a base which is still a military secret.

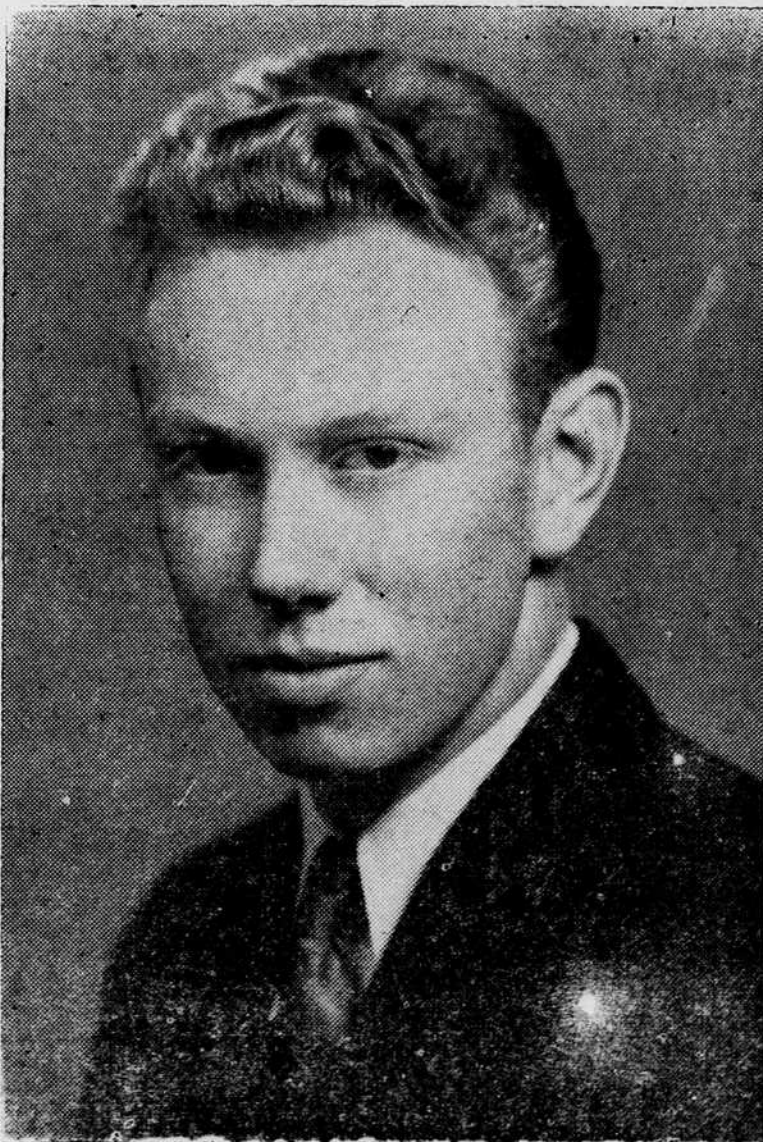

The men who participated in the attack had been stationed at the Pendleton air base until recently, and, while on his way there, Lieutenant Clever stopped off at the University to visit for two days.

Swan Song

Finals are a funny time
When against the nature of the clime,
People rouse from out their slumbers
And study in enormous numbers,
And thwarted Tennyson's like me
A'quit a'writing poetry.
