

Hi, Frosh!

We're New on the Campus too

Yes sir, there are new owners and managers at BEST CLEANERS. This may be our first year on the campus but we aren't "green" about the careful care and service Betty Co-ed and Joe College demand to keep their wardrobe neat and clean.

For many years we have been connected with a downtown Eugene laundry and cleaning firm and we know just how to please the "college crowd."

DROP IN AND SEE US.

Job Field Opens Wide

"More jobs are available to students this fall than ever before," declared Miss Janet Smith, University employment secretary when asked about the job situation.

Miss Smith stated further, "The demand for student workers has been tremendous. We have turned down hundreds of jobs this summer and are relying on the new students to help fill the labor shortage."

Many boys are needed for hotel, restaurant, and sorority house to work three and a half hours a day for meals. Women's room and board jobs are also plentiful.

Although personal interviews are usually necessary, students are encouraged to write to Miss Smith at the University of Oregon employment office, before coming to school. In some cases it will be possible for her to arrange an interview at the student's home.

There are some positions open which would offer continuous employment throughout the college career to dependable workers, Miss Smith revealed.

The usual wage at present for odd jobs is 40 cents an hour.

Hulten Won't Return to UO

Charles M. Hulten, associate professor of journalism, will not return to the campus this fall, according to word reaching the school of journalism.

Mr. Hulten has been working with the bureau of budget in Washington, D. C., during the summer and will reportedly be connected with the office of war information for the duration. His wife and baby son are expected to join him there in two or three weeks.

Professor Hulten has been on the faculty of the University since 1934. Last year he taught classes in elementary journalism,

'Call It a Day' Listed for Fall

"Call It a Day," by Dodie Smith, will be the first play on the 1942-43 drama department program, Horace Robinson, director, announced this week. The production is scheduled the first or second week of fall term.

The all-University cast will be virtually the same as that which presented the play for summer school audiences. There will be only three changes in minor roles.

reporting and copyediting laboratory, law of the press, and public opinion.

It is supposed by reliable sources that Mr. Hulten will ask for a leave of absence for the duration of the war.

"Call It a Day" will be produced in circus style, something new to campus audiences, with the audience sitting on all four sides. Action moves from all directions, and entrances and exits are made through the aisles.

The story shows the effect of the first spring day on one English family. Everyone, even down to father and mother, are hit by the amorous emotions of that time of year. Action takes place between 8 a.m. and 12 p.m. of one day, and by evening, life is once again back to its normal plane.

Director Robinson announced that complete cast will be published in early fall term Emeralds. Place where the show will be put on has not yet been announced.

Whodunnit? Book Covers Turn Up--6300 Missing

Fate or the lithographers conspired against Dean of Person Karl W. Onthank this summer. Welcome books were scheduled for release earlier than usual—in June—until a count showed 700 covers printed to bind the 7000 booklets. The missing zero was restored through an extra month of work, and the Welcome book entered the mail almost on last year's schedule—in early July.

Mystery Fee Bared Answer Simple

As the announcer would say, "Now for the $64 question: What is a matriculation fee?"

And as eight out of ten students from senior down to freshman would answer, "Shux, there goes my one chance for easy money."

After a thorough canvass of the University business office, it was discovered that the matriculation fee covers cost for a student's enrollment, for setting up records as to his (or her) credentials, and for handling them through his (or her) college years.

This $5 fee is paid at Johnson hall prior to registration by all incoming students—the first thing upon arrival on the campus.
