

Coed Cooks...

Corrine Keeps House, Heads Mortar Board

By BETTY ANN STEVENS

Between figuring out her schedule and telling moron stories, Corrine Wignes Nelson, coed of the week, sat in a chair in front of the fireplace in her home and answered pertinent questions on the "story of her life."

Living in the right side of the white duplex just across from the news bureau, small, blond Corrine is married to Lyle Nelson, acting director of the news bureau, former editor of the Emerald, ex-president of Sigma Delta Chi, member of Friars, winner of the Koyle cup, editor of Old Oregon, Sigma Chi, etc. Corrine hasn't been far behind him. Her activities include Kwama, Phi Theta, president of Mortar Board, co-editor of the women's page, executive secretary to Lyle ("Only I didn't do any work!"), president of Orides, co-chairman of the sunlight serenade for Junior Weekend, vice-president of AWS, a member of Theta Sigma Phi, journalism honorary, and on the college board at Charles Berg's in Portland this summer.

"Oh, we're celebrating our first anniversary this coming Friday," she announced with a quick smile. "I'd better check on that, she frowned, rummaging rapidly for a calendar. "Mmmmm, that's right."

"Start the 'formal' interview?" her round, blue eyes twinkled. "This seems so funny being interviewed after I've done it myself so many times," the former "coed of the week" interviewer exclaimed.

"Well, I came from several places... Well, Heimdal, North Dakota. I lived there until...

let's see, how old was I? I'm getting so old now I can't figure it out. Let's see, I was a junior in high school when we moved to Reedsport, wasn't I? Mmmm... I should've figured this out before you came," 21-year-old Corrine demurely apologized.

Moving around so much gave Corrine the opportunity to be valedictorian in two grade schools and Reedsport high school, and when she graduated she "cried and cried." "I don't know why, but I cried so much I had to leave the receiving line, and I went outside on the steps and cried some more."

"The 'atmosphere' of the place?" She laughed, looked up at the paneled fireplace with its books and gay prints, and said,

A.W.S. Notes

Being as how as the freshman girls are spending all available time going to meetings, meetings, meetings, etc., they probably won't have any time to read this column, therefore this plug goes for naught, but being as how as we don't know any other way to begin, here goes...

Coed Capers, that time in a young good girl's life when she doesn't have to worry about a date, coming up November 12...

... All out for defense—of overworked feet Saturday night at ye annual Bunion Derby. See this sheet at some other portion for more interesting data.

... "Remember your dead grandmother" was the theme of very serious Kwamas as they tapped two simply swell new members, Joanne Dolph, and Flora Kibler, Tuesday evening. Why the "dead grandmother"? They had to remain strictly deadpan as they circled the dinner tables, in spite of giggling ChiO and Tri-Delt pledges. Joanne was chewing on something chewy when all the Kwamas marched in, and practically got paralysis of the esophagus.

... AT THE HELLO DANCE: "Check your coats to the left, pliz, and the receiving line is to the right, pliz" became, after much repetition by two Kwamas, "Check - your - bag - to - the - left - an' - chuck your - line - to - the - right - pliz."

... Some disheartening news for the assembly-weary frosh: There is a faint rumor that—in other words, it isn't official yet, but Phi Thetas and Kwamas, according to sources close to said organizations, are planning another bang-up assembly in the near future that is, as the old saying goes, going to show but plenty.

... Rohda Harkson and Marge Dibble (you know them) are trekking south to Roseburg (unspecifically speaking) next week to speak for something at Roseburg high school.

"See my pictures up there? They always fall down when they get warm. I have them up with some gooey stuff."

"Want to know how I spent my summer?" she inquired. "Well, I spent my summer canning and canning. Come into my kitchen," she invited. She jumped quickly to her feet and led the way, opened the cupboard to shelf upon shelf of jars. "Oh, and I have a drawer for everything," she announced.

Back by the fireplace once more, she unexpectedly declared, "I had a little kitten once... a white one, but he ate grasshopper poison and died." She jumped up again to return with three stuffed animals, "Now this is Tarzan, and 'Charlie,' and 'Little Dog,'" she explained. "Our family, aren't they cute?"

"My likes and dislikes? Oh, dear!" She paused in deep thought. "Qualities in people? Oh, I like all kinds of people, just so they're friendly."

She went on swiftly, "I don't like mayonnaise, neither does Lyle. Oh, dear... I'll think of something better. What don't you like? Crab? Oh, I don't either... or clams or shrimp."

"Description? Well, I don't look like a freshman," she firmly declared, as she stood in the doorway. "I look like a senior... so that's silly."

Capers' Head Forms Due

Applications for chairman of Coed Capers, coming up November 12, are now open, according to Marge Dibble, president of

AWS. Due by Saturday noon at the AWS offices in the Igloo, the application must include a list of what you have done in activities, your plans for the Capers, and why you wish the chairmanship. Cochairmen are not wanted. "If no one is there, slip it under the door," "Dib" announced.
