tion earlier in the evening program when the board approved seven points presented by student members of the council.

Points two, three, four, and seven included transfer of the rally squad budget from athletic board to educational activities board budget, equal appointment of students and faculty on all subcommittees of the board, complete advanced notice of board meetings during the summer, and sending an agenda to all members before all meetings.

Point one provided a meeting of the president of the University and chairman of the board with the student executive council at the first of each new year.

Point five clarified selection of publication heads. The executive council hereafter will receive petitions of candidates before approving the educational activities board choices.

In case of dispute, the president of the University will appoint a committee of three students from the council and three members from the board to meet with him to settle the matter.

Top figure for the Homecoming budget, according to the final point still will be set by the educational activities board, but the council, with Manager Dick Williams will have the power to make changes in funds allotted for individual events.

A 400-page Oregana for 1943 was approved following discussion of plans presented by Editor Wes Sullivan. Contracts for the book were approved.

The policy that editors and business managers of publications may not hold other jobs was not changed, but the board granted Ray Schrick, editor of the Emerald, Wes Sullivan, editor of the Oregana, and Betty Biggs Schrick, business manager of the Emerald, the right to do editorial work on Old Oregon, alumni magazine for the fall term.

A committee of Williams, Anderson, and Rog Dick, president of the junior class, was appointed to investigate plans for a main event for Junior Weekend, 1943. The group will decide if there is to be a Canoe Fete, and if not, what will take its place.

Appointments of Duncan Wimpers, managing editor, and Jack Billings, news editor, of the Emerald; and of Roy Nelson, managing editor, and Helen Johnson, associate editor, of the Oregana were approved.

Budget for the all-campus sing will be set by the educational activities board, but plans will be executed through the Executive Council.

At Second Glance

value is "The Setting Sun of Japan" by Carl Randau (PM correspondent) and his wife Leane Zugsmith. Shows what Nazis are doing in Japan, and even how a telegraph operator prevented a Nazi coup in the Dutch East Indies. Certainly worth a try.

Cinema's best bet is either "Yankee Doodle Dandy" or "Talk of the Town," both two of the best of Hollywood's fall season. Price may halt many from seeing YDD, but it's worth $1.10. TOTT is easily one of the best dramatic comedies yet screened any time any where.
