

"PEST" WELCH . . .
 . . . Husky mentor, sizes up two of Oregon's hard-charging back-field aces.

Lineups for Tomorrow's Game:
 (Kickoff 2 o'clock, Multnomah stadium)

Washington		Oregon
Weinmeister (200) LE	(198) Shephard
Riggs (215) LT	(195) Moshofsky
Clark (195) LG	(200) Rhea
Harrison (194) (C) C	(208) Bodner
Saksa (180) RG	(200) Culwell
Friedman (212) RT	(205) Kufferman
Tracy (183) RE	(185) Nowling
Susick (185) Q	(185) Roblin
Erickson (180) LH	(175) Reynolds
Robinson (195) RH	(184) Dyer
McCorkle (190) F	(185) Davis

ROY DYER AND LEN SURLLES . . .
 . . . who will be out to tame the ferocious Washington Husky into a docile pup tomorrow in Multnomah stadium.

Ancient Rivals Poise for Tilt

Ducks Ready Passing Attack; UW to Run

By JOE MILLER

Head Coach John Warren's Webfoots polished up their newly-found offense and worked late Thursday on new pass plays in preparation for the assault of the University of Washington Huskies Saturday on the fast turf of Portland's Multnomah stadium. Mentor Warren felt that his squad was coming out of the doldrums and would be ready for the traditional fray with the Huskies.

The guard post was further weakened when it was announced that Second Stringer Hank Steers would be out with a rib injury. This is the first time either of the Steers twins have been hurt in three years of frosh and varsity play.

Fast-Moving Game

Every indication points to a wide-open scoring battle between the ancient rivals. There is no doubt in the mind of anybody that has watched the Webfoots practice this week that they are going to shoot the works against the northerners.

The presence of the R-R boys—Roblin and Reynolds in the lineup at the same time—give the T-T offense of John Warren double-barrelled power when a scoring opportunity presents itself.

The Duck punting department, weak at the start of the season, is now one of the strongest in the conference with either Roblin and Reynolds a better - than - 40 - yard kicker. If the Oregons choose to play a waiting game this long range booting should be an important factor in keeping the Huskies rocked back on their heels.

Welch always turns out wide-open offensive elevens and from all advance reports this first varsity club of his is no exception. Most of the Husky offensive comes from the T formation, although they occasionally revert to the straight Notre Dame single wing.

Pete Susick, minute senior from North Bend, Oregon, handles the ball on ninety per cent of their offensive plays and does all the kicking and passing. Fred Provo, Vancouver speed-burner at right halfback, teams with Fullback Mark McCorkle to give the devastating Washington offense both speed and power.

Neil Brooks, another powerhouse fullback that went over against the Ducks last year at Seattle when the Webfoots came from behind to take a 19 to 16 triumph in the coast's most thrilling game, will be out of action due to a leg injury.

Although the betting odds fa-

OSC, WSC Risk Records

Three conference tilts are on coast sports fans' menus for Saturday, with two of the league's unbeaten, untied crews tossing their crystal-white records out into the ring.

Washington State, victor over Oregon, 7 to 0, doesn't risk much when it meets the woefully-weak Montana Grizzly at Pullman. It should be the Cougars in a walk-away.

OSC Favored

A much tougher tilt looms for Oregon State when the "hot" Beavers hustle down to Los Angeles, taking on the UCLA Bruin twice-beaten outfit. In spite of vored the Huskies at 10 to 7, Portland pickers would give no points to the Oregons, and the odds swung nearer even money as game time approached.

Despite the varying records of the two elevens, the Huskies having swamped C.O.P. 27 to 0 and pushed California all over the field, although only gaining a 0 to 0 tie, while the Ducks were both losing to the Navy Preflighters and Washington State, the game figures to be a sure tossup.

From advance ticket sales the crowd is expected to be far superior to the disappointing 10,500 that watched the Preflight fray. Upwards of 25,000 alumni, students, and supporters of both institutions will be in Multnomah witnessing the contest—perhaps the final Washington-Oregon one for the duration.

Each team has won 16 games and tied four over the span of 40 interrupted years. The rivalry is the oldest and most traditional in the Northwest, and the game is the biggest sectional attraction of the year. Past performances and records have a habit of getting tossed out of the window when these two schools meet—and it is never liable to prove truer than this Saturday.

injuries to key men the Orange are going too strong to be way-laid by the mediocre Ukes.

Still stinging from a pair of spankings administered by WSC and the Navy Cadets, Oregon turns northward to Portland, engaging Washington with a blood-in-the-eye complex. The teams rate about on a par, slight edge to Oregon if hepped up in this traditional conflict.

Non-league tussles are the order of the day for Southern California against Ohio State at Columbus and Notre Dame at South Bend, California and Santa Clara at Berkeley. Winners should be Ohio State, Notre Dame, California all chosen on the strength of past showings.

Frosh Gridders Push Plans For "Little Civil War" Tiff

By BILL STRATTON

Oregon's frosh grid machine continued its workouts yesterday in preparation for the "little civil war" scheduled October 23 in Portland. After Assistant Coach Ray Segale finished his ever-irritating conditioning exercises, the yearling squad ran through the dozen or so plays Cornell has given them and then scrimmaged for nearly a half hour.

According to Oregon State's official organ, the Barometer, the Rooks have the largest turnout in history, including some sizable boys.

245 Pounds

The Rooks claim a 245-pounder, but don't explain his ability or physical condition. However, he will outweigh any man on the Duckling squad.

Oregon State also claims two aspirants from Honolulu, according to the Barometer. Chuck Vannatta, Duckling tackle—and a darn good one—is also from Honolulu and he has never heard of the two Rooks that have rated the headlines in the Oregon State publication.

The Rook turnout of 106 players gives the edge to OSC, but the Oregon yearlings have a squad large enough, and efficient enough to make a creditable first squad with plenty of reserve strength. The Duckling turnout the first day reached 69.

Even though Oregon State has an enormous turnout, the Barometer states that not much is EX-INDIAN . . .

 . . . Norm Standlee, Stanford All-American now playing ball for Western Army All-Stars.

Four Oregons On UW Squads

When John Warren's Ducks meet Washington in Portland tomorrow, there are four Oregon men that are liable to see action on the behalf of Washington, however—not for the U. of O.

Among the Oregon boys are three from Portland and one from North Bend. Don Hoff and Don Deeks will possibly see action in the tackle posts, and another Portland lad, Arnold Weinmeister, is almost sure to start at the end post.

Pete Susick from North Bend is the outstanding Oregon man on the Husky squad. He has recently been shifted from half-back to quarterback.

TOUCH FOOTBALL SLATE

Monday, October 12—

4:00—Field 1—Phi Gamma Delta vs. Campbell club.

Field 2—Theta Chi vs. Omega hall.

4:45—Field 1—Beta Theta Pi vs. Sigma Phi Epsilon

Field 2—Sigma Alpha Mu vs. Sigma hall.

HANDKERCHIEF TEST PROVES VITAL ZONE

Spotless

NO MATTER HOW OFTEN YOU SMOKE IT

STOP GOO

HESSON GUARD MILANO $1

NO GOO CAN PASS HESSON GUARD

IT'S CUSHION SEALED