Homecoming Slogan Tilt Opens Today

The Homecoming slogan contest will open at noon today, according to Pat Cloud, chairman. This contest is staged annually in order to find a prize-winning slogan which will be the theme of the weekend activities.

There will be a $5 prize for the writer of the winning entry. The contest is open to everyone and each person may write as many slogans as he wishes. These should be left at the alumni office for Cloud, or mailed to him at 1472 Kincaid street as soon as possible, but no entries received later than noon Monday, October 19, will be accepted.

Slogans should be short—3 or 4 "punch" words which will exemplify the spirit of Homecoming weekend. Last year's winning entry was "Blitz the Beavers," and was contributed by Buck Buchwach.

Cloud suggests that the slogan be something in keeping with the University and the part it is playing in the war effort—not all collegiate, not all patriotic.

Judging the contest will be the Homecoming weekend directorate composed of the chairmen of each major committee. The complete directorate has not been appointed, but will be announced tomorrow, stated Cloud.

In case of two identical entries the first one submitted and received will be the winning slogan.

Webfoots Send Reply To Brazilian University

In reply to the message sent to the students of the universities of the United States by the University of Sao Paulo, Brazil, Les Anderson, ASUO president, presented the reply of the ASUO to Dr. Hernane Tavares de Sa, representative of the University of Sao Paulo, during Dr. Tavares' lecture in Friendly hall last night. The text of the reply is as follows:

"To the students of the University of Sao Paulo, we welcome your message to us, and desire to express our common belief in the united front of American republics.

Both Nations

"Now that both our great nations are at war with a force that threatens our freedom and civilization, we feel that an even greater friendship and unity should exist.

"We are fully in accord with your belief that any foundation must rest on the understanding and comradeship of the young men and women of our universities.

"We join with you in such a pledge of understanding and comradeship.

"Signed,
"ASSOCIATED STUDENTS,
"UNIVERSITY OF OREGON."

The message will be printed on parchment and sent to the medical school at Sao Paulo.

Dr. Tavares, professor of biology at the University of Sao Paulo, in his address stated that Brazil would follow the words of Horace Greely, "Go west, young man, go west." Brazil has highly developed metropolitan areas, but the outlying districts are hardly developed.

Artist Series Gets Under Way; Adler, Draper Dance Monday

By BETTY LU SIEGMAN

Different in the way of entertainment is the forthcoming appearance of Paul Draper and Larry Adler, talented tap dancer and harmonica team, who will appear on the University campus Monday, November 16, in the first 1942-43 Greater Artist concert series.

The collaboration of Draper and Adler is of recent order, for their debut in the concert field may be said to date from their Chicago recital in December 1940.

Previous to this both had been individual performers in the entertainment world.

Classic Choreographer

Paul Draper, who has created his own style of dancing, is said to almost "tap the classics," for his original ballet type of tap
